Russia Delays U. N. Showdown

Small Nations Take Spotlight In Spy Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union, faced with certain defeat, Wednesday delayed a showdown in the U.N. Security Council over condemnation of the United States for spy plane flights.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said he wanted more time for a summing-up speech on his demand that the Council brand the United States an aggressor. The move made a vote impossible before Thursday.

Only the Soviet Union and Communist Poland were counted as yes votes. Seven others were opposed. Tunisia and Ceylon, the two neutral nations on the Council, were expected to abstain.

There was speculation that Gromyko wanted to study President Eisenhower's report to the nation Wednesday night on the Paris summit conference before making a final speech.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had hoped for a vote Wednesday. But Gromyko held the key to the timing, since the Council was debating his resolution against the United States.

Lodge was set to reply to Gromyko before a Council vote.

Smaller Nations Air Views

The smaller nations — Tunisia, Ecuador and Ceylon — took over the spotlight in Wednesday's debate. Those three, along with Argentina, are sponsoring a resolution urging the Big Four to resume negotiations on major East-West issues with the help of the United Nations.

Tunisia's Mongi Slim made no direct mention of the resolution expected to be introduced after disposal of the Soviet complaint.

But he pleaded for resumption of big-power negotiations in order to head off a full-scale return of the cold war.

He said the incident of the American U2 spy plane flight over the Soviet Union May 1 should not be classified as an aggressive action "since the essential elements which characterize aggression are missing from it."

For this reason, he added, he could not vote for the Soviet resolution.

Correa Speaks For Ecuador

Ambassador Jose A. Correa of Ecuador called upon the Soviet Union not to press its resolution to a vote.

Referring indirectly to the four-nation resolution, Correa expressed hope the Soviet Union would "deecide to cooperate by a conciliatory action that will open a new role for collective security."

He said the international situation was such that a mistake could touch off a terrible war.

He said Ecuador objected to the Soviet resolution because it calls for condemnation of the United States without taking in the whole picture of espionage, and that it is based on the premise that the United States has aggressive intentions.

Plane Returns From Behind Iron Curtain

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI) — Nine Americans, including one woman, who had been held for five days by the Soviets in Communist East Germany flew to freedom here Wednesday to their U.S. Air Force C-47 transport. The pilot was promptly grounded for violating flying directions.

The plane, held by Soviet troops since it was forced to land by Russian fighters last Friday after straying across the Iron Curtain, landed here at 9:42 p.m. (4:42 p.m. e.d.t.). Its occupants were tired but happy to be on free soil.

In Washington, Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, promptly grounded the pilot, Capt. James P. Lundy, for having "clearly violated pertinent flying directions" in his flight from Copenhagen to Hamburg.

The C-47 flew here from a muddy corn field at Grevesmuehlen, East Germany, where fog, high winds and heavy rain squalls had frustrated take-off efforts most of the day.

A little more than an hour before the take-off, U.S. authorities had requested permission for five of the Americans — including the woman passenger be brought back by automobile if the bad weather continued to block the flight to the west.

The Soviet surprised U.S. officials by clearing the diplomatic path for the release of the plane and the occupants in record time.

The East German Communist news service ADN reported that before leaving, the crew of five and four passengers "expressed thanks for the good treatment they received."

The Air Force said that the returning Americans would not hold a news conference Wednesday night because of the lateness of their arrival. A spokesman said a press conference would be held Thursday.

U.N. Assembly To Get Ike's Open Skies Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said Wednesday night President Eisenhower's new, broadened open skies plan would not be submitted to the U. N. Security Council.

Lodge told reporters in answer to a question that the plan would be proposed for debate in the 82-nation General Assembly session opening Sept. 20.

"If we put it into the Security Council," he said, "the Russians would only veto it. We want it to get calm, careful consideration."

The plan would have the U. N. set up aerial surveillance against surprise attack in all countries accepting such inspection.

Rockefeller Would Run If Draft Choice

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller declared Wednesday he would accept a draft for the Republican nomination for president but he conceded his chances of getting one looked slim at the moment.

The New York State Republican organization, however rallied behind the governor and agreed its 96-vote delegation would go to the GOP National Convention uncommitted to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon is the party's only declared candidate and, by an unofficial count, now has more than enough delegate votes to win the nomination.

May Attend Convention

In Washington, Nixon's press secretary said the vice president would have no direct comment on Rockefeller's statement. But the press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, added: "The vice president has always made it clear that he would welcome any competition for the nomination."

The strategy of Rockefeller and New York Republicans is keyed to the possibility, however remote, that something will happen between now and the July convention in Chicago to cause the party to shift from Nixon to Rockefeller.

Rockefeller reopened the door for his leading the New York delegation to the convention. He had said he would not attend, because he wanted to avoid any attempts to draft him as the vice-presidential candidate.

Rockefeller said he would go to Chicago at the head of the delegation if he could get firm guarantees from Republican national leaders that no attempt would be made to draft him for the second spot on the GOP ticket.

Huddle Cited By State GOP

The governor explained his position at a meeting of the executive committee of the state Republican organization, and then at a meetin of GOP county chairmen.

The meeting had been called in an attempt to clarify the GOP political situation in New York. Some of the state's county chairmen had protested against leaders' demands that they remain neutral in a one-man race.

Asked what he had said at the closed-door meeting, Rockefeller told a news conference he had informed the GOP leaders that, "If there were a draft for the presidency, that, in all candor, I would accept."

But he added that the nomination of Nixon "obviously is to be expected" in the light of delegate pledges elsewhere to the vice president.

Kennedy Reportedly Asks Liberal Support

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) conferrred with a top Liberal party leader Wednesday and reportedly appealed for Liberal support in his presidential bid.

The Liberal party, which gave Adlai E. Stevenson more than 400,000 of his New York votes in 1952, frequently is the balance of power in state elections. It almost always endorses Democrats but has supported Republicans locally and occasionally for major offices.

Alex Rose, vice chairman of the Liberal party, said he met with Kennedy for about an hour Wednesday and that Kennedy made a personal appeal for support from Rose and his party.

Living Costs Hit Peak As Food Prices Spurt

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spurt in food prices sent the nation's living costs to another record high in April.

The Labor Department said Wednesday its index rose four-tenths of one per cent, the biggest monthly increase since last June. The index moved up to its highest point ever at 126.2 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

With April prices nearly two per cent above the year-ago level, officials said they expect gradual rises all summer in response to new seasonal food price increases.

Arnold Chase, Labor Department price chief, said some April living cost increase had been expected but not so much as did occur. He said it was brought on by poor spring growing conditions.

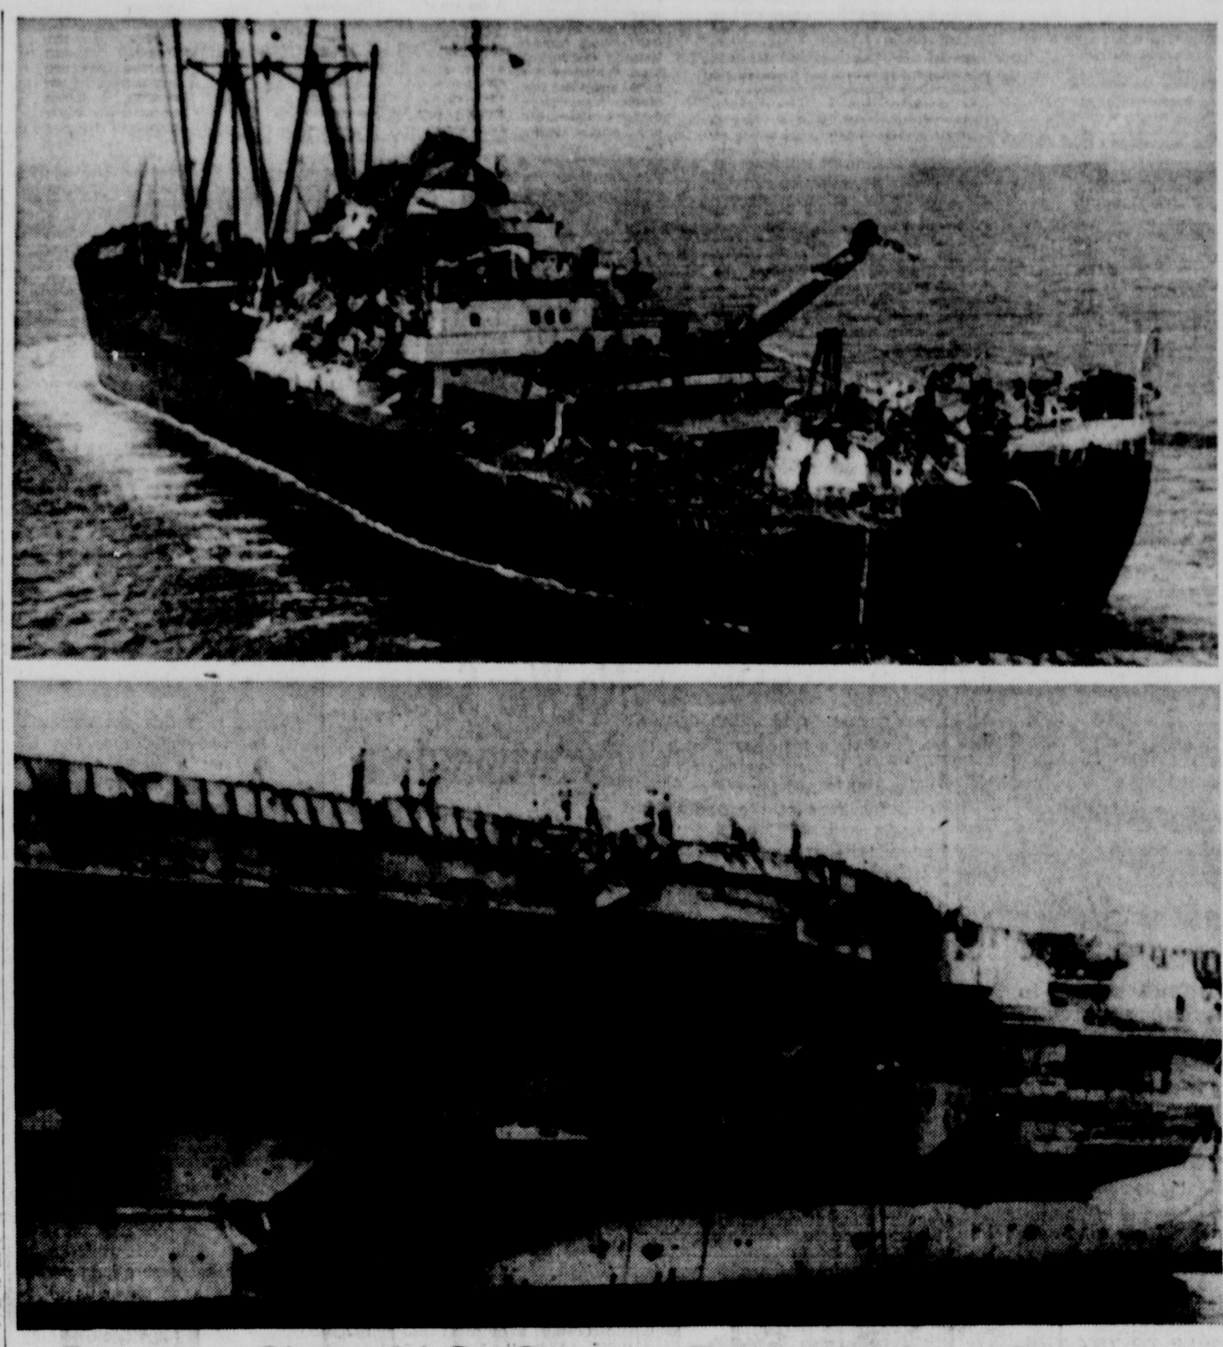
This helped boost fruit and vegetable costs. Also, pork and eggs, two customary table items that have been relatively cheap for some time, are moving up again.

Eggs increased by 13 per cent in one month. Pork registered its sharpest April rise in four years.

Chase said he wanted to emphasize, however, that he doesn't expect a big upward summer price trend of the type experienced in April—only a modest gradual one. He said the 1½ per cent increase in April food prices represented the largest monthly rise since March 1958.

Figuring the consumer dollar at full value a decade ago, it is now worth less than 80 cents.

The buying power of factory workers, the department said, is about 2½ per cent less than a year ago.



German Ship, U.S. Carrier Damaged In Collision

The German freighter Bernd Leonhardt (top) steams slowly up Chesapeake Bay toward Baltimore bearing the scars of her collision early yesterday with the aircraft carrier Saratoga (bottom) off Cape Henry, Va. The 10,800-ton German vessel lost most of its superstructure and mast and had about half of its port side dented in when she tangled with the 60,000-ton carrier. The Saratoga's left side was damaged extensively. There were no injuries reported on either vessel. (Story at bottom of page) (AP Photofax)

House Group Votes Excise Tax Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday approved another year's extension of the relatively high Korean wartime taxes on such things as liquor, cigarets, auto parts, telephone service and travel.

The committee also went along with President Eisenhower's request that the national debt ceiling be set at 293 billion dollars temporarily for the year beginning June 30.

The ceiling approved is two billion dollars under the present temporary ceiling of 295 billion. Without congressional action, the current temporary ceiling would drop back to the permanent ceiling of 285 billion.

Congress has been voting a temporary ceiling higher than the permanent limit for several years with enough room to give the Treasury about a three-billion-dollar working margin. The lowering of the interim ceiling is based on an anticipated budget surplus in current and next fiscal years.

The extension of the excise and corporate tax rates is necessary, administration witnesses told the committee, or the Treasury will lose about four billion dollars a year in revenues. Without congressional action, the rates would drop back to the pre-Korean War levels on July 1.

The House which usually follows the committee's recommendations, is expected to vote on them next week.

Khrushchev Delays His Summit Report

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev's personal report to the Soviet people on the Paris summit conference has been delayed until Saturday, diplomats reported.

Khrushchev usually reports on his tours abroad as soon as he arrives home, but he departed from that custom when he returned last Saturday.

Diplomats said they have been informed the report will be made at a Communist party conference for workers in the Kremlin Parliament Hall. Wide circulation of the speech through Soviet press, radio and television is expected.

Stricken Chile Hit By New Disasters

2,000 Dead, Missing; 2 Million Homeless

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Heavy quakes, tidal waves, volcanic violence and avalanches struck new blows of death and devastation Wednesday in this land of the trembling earth.

Smoke and ash from quake-born volcanoes spread over much of desperately stricken Chile.

More than 2,000 persons were dead or missing in the disaster that began Saturday. The toll was expected to rise sharply when reports arrive from areas still isolated by communications breakdowns.

The official death toll climbed to 1,206. The number of missing was put at 812 and the injured at 2,000.

There were perhaps two million Chileans homeless.

The Interior Ministry during the day said property damage will run into many hundreds of millions of dollars and will take years to repair.

Wednesday night Finance Minister Roberto Vergara told a news conference damage already amounted to at least 300 million dollars and foreign help will be needed to rebuild Chile.

Three new tremors were reported Wednesday by the government seismology department.

Official spokesmen said 100 persons died in an avalanche that crushed the little town of Osorno. The fate of many other small towns in the provinces of Chiloe, Cautin, Valdivia and Llanquihue was unknown.

Low-lying clouds and bad weather in many southern towns impeded rescue operations.

An 8 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew was imposed in Valdivia Province as a step to prevent looting.

Survivors flown to Santigo from some devastated areas told of heaving streets and crumbling buildings that buried victims under tons of debris.

"The whole word seemed to be shaking and quivering," said one.

Associated Press correspondent Thomas J Stone, aboard a U. S. Air Force C54 flying relief supplies to southern Chile, witnessed the eruption of one snow-capped volcano. He reported it resembled an atomic explosion with smoke billowing thousands of feet into the air

Early morning rumblings of the earth caused fear among thousands of homeless sleeping outdoors—and other thousands who had roofs over their heads.

A heavy rain was falling when the first of the convulsions spread across the southern provinces of Valdivia, Osorno and Llanquihue at 1:37 a. m. In the city of Valdivia, a previously damaged high steel tower fell. Most of the city's people were in the nearby hills.

Rocket, Flare Firings To Test Spy Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The world's first experimental spy satellite—America's Midas II —spun in its near-circular orbit Wednesday, scanning the United States for signs of a rocket or flare firing.

The Air Force plans several firings to learn if the satellite's infrared sensors will detect them. The first tests could come in a day or two.

The sensors are the key to Midas' ability to spot an enemy missile attack. They are designed to pick up the infrared light radiated by a rocket flame the instant it is launched.

If it were an enemy missile, radios in the satellite would relay the information to this nation, which then would have about 30 minutes to activate defense and retaliatory measures.

The first flare—more brilliant than most missile exhausts—is expected to be ignited at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., within a few days, when Midas passes overhead. The Air Force said rocket launchings at Cape Canaveral and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., will be timed whenever possible to coincide with a Midas flight.

The satellite does not travel over the Soviet Union.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The USS Saratoga, one of the world's largest aircraft carriers, and the West German ore ship Bernd Leonhardt collided off the Virginia coast early Wednesday in clear weather.

No one on either ship was hurt, but the left sides of both vessels were damaged extensively in the sideswiping crash, which occurred 60 miles southeast of Cape Henry one minute after midnight.

The German ship, escorted by a destroyer, came into Chesapeake Bay and headed for Baltimore her original destination, to discharge her ore cargo. The Saratoga, which was en route from Norfolk to Mayport, Fla., returned to Hampton Roads for a damage survey.

Naval spokesmen at Norfolk said there was no immediate explanation of the cause of the collision.

Capt. Alan F. Fleming, the Saratoga's skipper, told newsmen on arrival in port "if we had hit just a few seconds earlier our bow would have knifed right through the middle" of the ore ship. The Saratoga was in a hard right turn when the ships collided.

Fleming said the collision developed "over a period of minutes."

The Saratoga's angled flight deck smashed into the other ship's bridge. The bridge and the living quarters on the left side were destroyed. A mast was knocked overboard, leaving the ship without radio communications.

The catwalk on the Saratoga's left side was crumpled like an accordion, a lifeboat was smashed, and two gun tubs were damaged. Fire, caused by the rupturing of fuel lines, broke out but was extinguished in less than five minutes.

Aboard the Saratoga were 2,400 men and 160 officers; aboard the German ship a crew of 35. The 60,000-ton Saratoga is 1,040 feet long; the 10,800-ton Bernd Leonhardt is 485 feet long.

Eisenhower Defends Spy Flight Timing

U.S. Must Continue Negotiations With Soviet, Nation Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower declared Wednesday America must continue "businesslike dealings with the Soviet leaders" despite the blowup of the Paris summit conference.

"I think," Eisenhower told the nation, "we must not write the record all in red ink. There are several things to be written in black."

In a prepared radio-TV report to the nation on the summit collapse last week, the President conceded that Soviet action leading to that collapse "has turned the clock back in some measure."

But he added that it should be noted that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "did not go beyond invective—a timeworn Soviet device to achieve an immediate objective."

In his address, Eisenhower sketched the course he feels the United States and its allies must follow.

Several hours ahead of Eisenhower's report, it was announced he will brief key congressional Democrats and Republicans at breakfast Thursday on the factors that led to the collapse of the summit talks before they really got off the ground.

Flight Timing Defended

Eisenhower strongly defended the spy plane flights which Khrushchev has made a hot U. S.-Soviet issue.

And he struck back at Democratic critics and others who have said such a reconnaissance mission on the eve of the summit talks was a blunder.

Alluding to that, Eisenhower said: "As to the timing, the question was really whether to halt the program and thus forego the gathering of important information that was essential and that was likely to be unavailable at an early date. The program went forward.

"The plain truth is this: When a nation needs intelligence activity, there is no time when vigilance can be relaxed."

One passage of Eisenhower's speech was viewed as a possible hint he might consider new talks with Khrushchev—even though the Soviet leader has thrown harsh words in his direction.

"Fellow Americans," Eisenhower recalled, "long ago I pledged to you that I would journey anywhere to promote the cause of peace. I remain pledged to pursue a peace of dignity, of friendship, of honor, of justice."

Open Skies Plan Cited

After declaring "we must keep up our strength, and hold it steady for the long pull," Eisenhower asserted: "We must continue businesslike dealings with the Soviet leaders on outstanding issues, and improve the contacts between our own and the Soviet peoples, making clear that the path of reason and common sense is still open if the Soviets will but use it."

Although this was billed as a report to the American people, it was meant for the ears of Russians, too. The White House had made a special plea that the Soviets not jam rebroadcasts of Eisenhower's words in Russian and other languages. The rebroadcasts are set for Thursday.

Eisenhower dealt at some length with the American spy plane episode on which Khrushchev seized to bring the summit meeting to collapse.

Hawaii Alert Is Called Off

HONOLULU (UPI) — A new tidal wave alert in Hawaii touched off a mid-day scramble to high ground by thousands of tourists and islanders Wednesday but the alert was called off when hours passed with only minor fluctuations in the sea level.

Marine M.Sgt. John L. Pracanica, 33, died of a heart attack after taking his wife and three children from their low-lying quarters to the hilltop area of Kaneohe Marine air station.

The 1 p.m. (7 p.m. e.d.t.) alert caused fears of a repetition of Monday's series of huge waves that killed 45 persons in the Hilo area, left 17 missing and caused damage estimated at more than 50 million dollars.

The alert was called off at 3:29 p.m. (9:29 p.m. e.d.t.).

At 2:40 p.m. there was a one-foot rise in the sea at Haleiwa, on the northern tip of Oahu, the island on which Honolulu is located. There was a rise and fall of about a foot at Hilo, on the "big island" of Hawaii.

Justice Dept. Will Investigate W.Va. Vote-Buying Complaint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department announced Wednesday it will investigate charges that votes were bought with both money and whisky in a West Virginia county during that state's recent presidential primary.

A spokesman said the department would act on a complaint made by Clyde Freeman, mayor of Chapmanville, W.Va. He said the inquiry would be limited to Logan County, where Chapmanville is located.

Freeman complained of various voting irregularities, including the purchase of votes, the spokesman said.

In the West Virginia primary, held May 10, Sen. John F. Kennedy (Mass.) scored an upset victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.). Following his defeat, Humphrey withdrew as a declared candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Some West Virginia newspapers have charged that pro-Kennedy forces bought votes in the primary, and that Kennedy funds were involved in the Logan County voting.

The Justice Department said it would made a "preliminary investigation" of Freeman's complaint. A spokesman said the department also was willing to hear a delegation of Logan County citizens who have petitioned Attorney General William F. Rogers for help in policing elections.

Rep. John M. Slack (D—W.Va.) has asked for an appointment with Justice Department officials on behalf of the group, which claimed that cash and liquor were used to sway voters in the county.

It was considered unlikely that the group would meet with Rogers himself. In fact, the department told Slack it felt the complaints could best be submitted in writing rather than through a meeting with government officials.

The federal voting statutes do not apply to primary elections. But informed sources said the Justice Department could take action under a civil rights statute making it a crime for two or more people to conspire to deprive a citizen of his constitutional rights.

This statute carries a maximum penalty of $5,000 in fines, 10 years in prison or both.

"Pork Barrel" Bill Approved By House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House passed and sent to the Senate Wednesday public works bill carrying construction funds for 388 rivers and harbors and reclamation projects estimated to cost eventually 15 billion dollars.

The bill, sometimes known as a "pork barrel" measure, provides $891,198,100 for the so-called civil functions of the Army Engineers and $277,362,705 for the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation.

A total of $960,027,180 would go into actual construction of water resources projects scattered throughout the country. The bill gets its nickname from the fact that congressmen sometimes trade support for pet measures.

The bill, covering spending in the 12 months starting July 1, also carries $2,659,060,000 to run the Atomic Energy Commission, and provides funds for the Bonneville Power Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the southeastern and southwestern power administrations.

Turk Deputies Protest "Gag"; Battle Erupts

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—In a riotous session, Premier Adnan Menderes steam-rollered a three-week recess through Parliament Wednesday. Opposition deputies said they were being gagged. Fist fights broke out.

"You are voting to close the only place where the nation's voice can still be heard," shouted opposition Deputy Emin Soysal. "Let Menderes proclaim himself a dictator if he has the courage."

A chair flew through the air from the Democratic side, narrowly missing the almost bald head of Gulek. Then several Democrats raced toward him.

Opposition Republicans joined in and fists flew for 10 furious minutes until order was restored by the speaker calling a 90-minute recess.

At least seven Republicans and an equal number of Democrats required first aid after the melee.

Menderes will use part of his time between now and the reconvening of Parliament in a tour of Turkey's rural provinces, where his appeal is particularly strong, beginning Thursday.

No War Seen By Symington

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said Wednesday he believes the Soviet Union does not intend to start a war but poses a threat of "potential economic aggression."

Symington, who has been endorsed by former President Harry S. Truman for the Democratic presidential nomination, made the statement in a speech to the Advertising Club of Baltimore.

"These people have no intention of starting, in my opinion, any kind of war, much less a nuclear war,' he said.

Symington suggested the Soviet plan is "to get strong and stay strong" so that U. S. S. R. representatives can bargain from a position of strength at such conferences as the abortive summit meeting last week.

The Missouri senator described the collapse of that session as "unfortunate." He pointedly refrained from criticizing the Republican Administration generally or President Eisenhower individually in connection with the summit meeting.

Symington spoke to 505 persons attending a luncheon honoring the memory of Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland from 1920-1935. A former Baltimorean, Symington comes from a family long prominent in Maryland politics. His father was named to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City by Ritchie.

Speeding Wasn't Woman's Fault

Eisenhower

"does still remain," the President said.

He recalled his "open skies" proposal of five years ago for reciprocal aerial inspection of ground installations. He said the offer still is open, and repeated that the United States intends to submit such a proposal at the appropriate time to the United Nations, with a recommendation that the U.N. itself conduct such aerial reconnaissance.

Should the U.N. accept this proposal, the President went on, he is prepared to propose additionally that the United States supply part of the aircraft and equipment required.

On that point, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen such aircraft would include the swift, high flying U2—the type of plane which touched off the furor when the Russians shot one of them down over Soviet territory on May 1.

But he pointed out once again that he had notified Khrushchev in Paris that flights over Soviet territory had been halted and would not be resumed.

Dealing with this government's first announcement that the U2 was only on a weather mission and apparently had strayed by accident into Soviet airspace, Eisenhower also defended that statement which has stirred great controversy.

"As to our government's initial statement about this flight," Eisenhower said, "this was issued to protect the pilot, his mission and our intelligence processes, at a time when the true facts were still undetermined.

"Our first information about the failure of this mission did not disclose whether the pilot was still alive, was trying to escape, was avoiding interrogation, or whether both plane and pilot had been destroyed.

"Protection of our intelligence system and the pilot, and concealment of the plane's mission, still seemed imperative. It must be remembered that over a long period these flights have given us information of the greatest importance.

"Their success has been nothing short of remarkable."

When it developede that the Soviets had shot down the plane, captured its pilot and claimed a spy mission confession had been obtained from him, "the factual details were set forth," Eisenhower said.

As for why he decided to halt the U2 flights, Eisenhower said: "Clearly their usefulness was impaired. Moreover, continuing this particular activity in these new circumstances could not but complicate the relations of certain of our allies with the Soviets.

"Furthermore, new techniques, other than aircraft, are constantly being developed."

Jobless Truck Driver Held In Fatal Shooting

CLARKSBURG, Md. (AP)—A 42-year-old unemployed truck driver was held on a murder charge Wednesday after the fatal shooting of Frederick A. Blowers in his apartment here.

Montgomery County police identified the man as George Edward Cook of Frederick, who formerly worked at a Bethesda, Md., manufacturing firm with both the victim and his wife.

Officers said Cook, picked up at his Frederick home, was ordered held on the murder charge without bond pending a preliminary hearing.

Det. Sgt. Frank Griggs said Cook was arrested on information furnished by the victim's wife, Kathleen.

Officers said she told them she and her husband had gone to bed about last midnight and a few minutes later were aroused by a knock on the door. Her husband admitted the visitor, Mrs. Blowers told police, then she heard talking in the hallway, a shot and someone running down the stairs.

Peiping Charges U.S. 'Aggravates Tension'

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China accused the United States Wednesday night of "aggravating tension" in the Formosa Strait area amid mounting indications that the Chinese Reds might be stirring up a new crisis in southeast Asia.

The Communist New China News Agency charged the United States is stepping up "war activities" in the Formosa area in a dispatch broadcast just a day after Red Chinese artillery shelled the Matsu offshore islands for the first time in three months.

At the same time, the Chinese Communists charged that a U.S. warship and a U.S. military plane had violated Chinese waters and air space Tuesday and Wednesday. The Peiping foreign office issued its 99th "serious warning" against such action.

Kishi Foes Join Forces, Call Tokyo Demonstration

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's enemies joined forces in a snowballing campaign to force him out of office, defeat the U.S.-Japan security treaty and block President Eisenhower's visit here next month.

The Socialist party and the Sohyo Labor Federation, leaders of the campaign against the pro-Western Kishi, called for 150,000 demonstrators to mass around the Diet building Thursday.

Thursday is the last legal day of Parliament as far as the Socialists and other opposition parties are concerned. They do not recognize a 50-day extension rammed through the House of Representatives last Wednesday as part of Kishi's drive to win approval of the treaty. The pact allows U.S. troops to be stationed in Japan for at least another 10 years. The Socialists not only oppose the treaty but want Japan to become neutral in the cold war.

Kishi's Liberal-Democratic party leaders called in police to stop fighting in Parliament corridors last week. The Socialists boycotted the session, and the Liberal-Democratic majority promptly ratified the treaty.

Their 288-179 majority in the lower house shows they represent public opinion, they said.

Caught In The Act

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Police seized two men Tuesday as they were placing a bomb at the historic old Cabildo building, where Argentina launched its war of independence from Spain 150 years ago.

Police said the two carried propaganda material supporting the ousted dictator Juan D. Peron.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The spending ways of America's 19 million teen - agers bolster the nation's economy by 10 billion dollars a year.

And by 1970, teenologists estimate, the bobby - soxers will be making cash registers jingle-jangle to the tune of $17,500,000,000 a year.

Allowances — a fixed-item in the typical family's budget—contribute mightily to the affluent status of the nation's 'teens. But millions of boys and girls fatten their financial status watching babies, cutting lawns and performing other odd jobs.

While the 'teens are the mainstay of the record industry, they contribute more than token support to many other industries in the economy.

A survey taken by the 'Teen National Consumer Board found that 50 per cent of all teen-agers have typewriters bought exclusively for their own use; 63 per cent own musical instruments; 89 per cent, wrist watches.

Where cars are concerned, one recent survey of boys in a typical high school showed that 26 per cent owned their own cars. For girls, the car ownership was found to be 17 per cent.

But the direct spending by 'teens doesn't tell the whole story about the bobby-soxer influence on the nation's economy.

It's estimated that teeen - age preferences strongly influence family purchases of everything from toothpaste and other toiletries to cars, car accessories and hi-fi sets.

The girl teen-agers are a force to face when time comes to select new furniture, carpets, curtains and appliances. She expects to entertain her friends and she wants her home to "keep up with the Jones girl's home."

Forand Reaches 65

CUMBERLAND, R. I. (AP) — Rep. Aine J. Forand (D-RI), the man who has caused so much talk about the "social security age" of 65, reached that milestone himself Monday.

He and Mrs. Forand spent 10 hours of the day driving in drizzle, fog, and blinding rain from Rhode Island to Washington.

Forand's proposal to incorporate a program for medical care for the aged under Social Security started a national controversy.

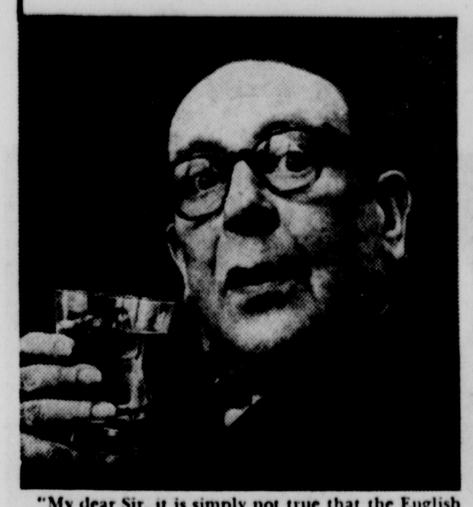
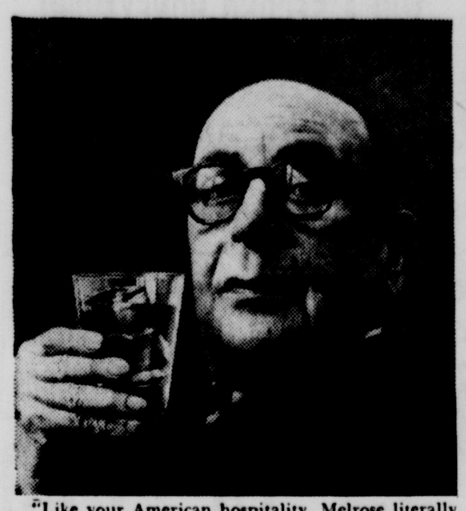
Discovers MELROSE Whiskey



"My dear Sir, it is simply not true that the English drink nothing but Gin, Scotch, or Tea. Some of the greatest potables are American born.

"Melrose Whiskey, for example. A most unexpected and delightful depth of character and flavor—yet, very very light.



"Like your American hospitality, Melrose literally overflows with a rich, hearty joviality...yet the flavor is delicate and the bouquet is appetizing.

"Henceforth, Melrose is my favorite American Whiskey. As they say, and excellent advice it is...

B17, Legendary Bomber Of World War II, Gone From Skies It Once Ruled

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unnoticed but not unlamented, the gallant B17 has disappeared from the skies it once ruled.

The Air Force has destroyed the last B17 carried on its books as a missile-target aircraft, the Coast Guard has given up the B17's it used as air - sea rescue planes, and about all that remains is a flock of legends and memories.

One of them is being used as a flying aquarium. A couple still are flying as crop-dusters. But as an active aircraft, the B17 has gone into retirement.

Dubbed the "Flying Fortress" when Boeing brought out the first model in 1935, the B17 was undoubtedly the most famous warplane ever built. At the time, it was widely criticized as too big a plane for pilots to handle. By the end of World War II, however, Boeing and two other licensed manufacturers had turned out 12,731 of the four-engined giants, and they carried the brunt of the air war against Nazi Germany.

B17's dropped 640,036 tons of bombs on European targets—about 75 per cent of the bomb tonnage unloaded by all U.S. aircraft. In compiling this record, the B17 also managed to build a host of legends about its 'antastic durability.

It was a noisy and drafty plane. Pilots claimed it was like taking off in a perforated box car. But there never was an airplane built that could absorb punishment like the B17. They used to limp home on two engines, with tails half shot away and wings literally flapping.

One of the favorite B17 stories concerned the ship that developed engine trouble over Italy. The crew bailed out leaving behind a couple of small dogs carried as mascots.

The B17 droned along on two engines, finally wound up over Turkey, ran out of gas and glided to a perfect landing. When Turkish troops inspected the plane, all they found were the two dogs. To this day, some of those soldiers probably are convinced the U.S. trained canines to fly bombers.

The most famous B17 was "Alexander the Swoose" which set a wartime record by averaging 150 combat hours a month. Originally, it was just an ordinary run-of-the - mill B17 which was parked on Clark Field in the Philippines Dec. 8, 1941.

Attacking Japanese planes made a mess out of that particular bomber. They tore holes in the shining aluminum, turned the four engines into junk and did a haircut on its two miles of wiring. When they finished, the $200,000 B17 was worth about $200 in a junk yard. That's where it would have ended except that the U.S. needed planes too badly.

Mechanics installed undamaged engines from hopelessly wrecked planes. They patched up the wiring and grafted parts from other aircraft beyond repair. That's where this B17 got its name—"Alexander the Swoose," after the Walt Disney character that was half swan and half goose. The crew painted a funny-looking bird on "Alexander's" nose, with the body and wings of a goose and the head and neck of a swan. Underneath they lettered the words, "It Flies?"

"Alexander" flew Missions over the Philippines and Dutch East Indies. In one year, the hybrid bomber flew enough missions to equal 15 flights around the world. "Alexander" became famous after some one wrote a book about it and an Air Corps general pulled "Alexander" out of combat duty and made it his personal plane for a while.

"Alexander" eventually was reduced to ferrying personnel and mail. V-J Day found it in a graveyard for surplus warplanes too weary and battered for active duty. But Air Force officials who remembered the veteran saved "Alexander" from the junk yard and marked it for perpetual display in the Smithsonian Air Museum.

E. German Reds Dealt Russ Slap In Plane Case

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet handling of the latest American plane incident raises an important question: Has the need disappeared, for the time being, to insist upon the fiction that Red East Germany is independent?

The Soviets have reverted to treating the East German regime the way a colonial power might handle military occupation of a conquered province.

In the case of the latest incident the Soviets found it unnecessary to insist upon East German sovereignty. This hints that the procedure is not important right now. The whole case reflected little Moscow faith in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's prediction of another summit conference in six or eight months.

Moscow's attitude was far different when the Soviets several years ago began a campaign to force a summit conference. Then the Soviets, in a situation similar to the case of the U.S. Air Force C47 transport downed over East Germany, insisted that the East German regime was sovereign and had full jurisdiction.

The object was to force the United States to deal directly with the East German regime. This would imply East German sovereignty in advance of a summit meeting, in which East Germany's recognition would be a key question.

The last major plane incident in East Germany was strikingly similar to the case of the U. S. Air Force C47 downed by Soviet units last Friday.

It was on June 7, 1958, that a U.S. Air Force helicopter with nine aboard, lost in a storm, strayed over the frontier of Communist territory and was forced down.

Then the East Germans made the protests of air space violation. The U.S. personnel was in the hands of East German authorities.

The Soviets turned their backs on all American demands, insisting it was purely a matter of East German jurisdiction. The East German regime demanded direct talks with the United States, which would indicate a degree of recognition.

The nine Americans were held 42 days before the American Red Cross obtained their release. The Soviets all along refused to take any responsibility.

That was when the Soviets were insisting on direct talks between West Germany and Communist East Germany. It also was a moment when Soviet propaganda was carefully building its case for a summit conference.

This time, the Soviets made no pretenses. The strayed C47 was in Soviet hands and they never bothered to say otherwise. The only excuse they gave for applying Soviet jurisdiction was that the East German Communist regime was a member of the Warsaw Alliance of Communist nations.

There seemed little doubt that the Soviet handling of the affair is a sharp slap for East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht and his party.

Hungary Blasts U.S.

VIENNA (UPI) — Communist Hungary Wednesday condemned the launching of the American Midas spy-in-the-sky satellite as an "obvious provocation."

"At a time when the American delegate tries to refute the justified accusations by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the U.N. Security Council, the launching of this 'spy satellite' shows that spying indeed has become an integral part of the American foreign policy," Radio Budapest said.

MPA Official Reported In Conflict Of Interest

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Evening Sun said Wednesday that a Maryland Port Authority board director has business connections with a firm doing about two million dollars worth of construction work for the port authority.

The newspaper said Chairman John L. Kronau of the authority's board of commissioners is listed on a report with the State Department of Taxation and Assessments as a member of the board of directors of the Empire Construction Co.

Kronau was not available for comment.

Last month the company was awarded a $1,908,666 contract by the Port Authority for extensive construction work at the agency's new Dundalk Marine Terminal.

Last October the same company received a $148,795 contract for bulkhead repairs and other improvements at the same terminal.

The Evening Sun called attention to the legislative act creating the authority which prohibits any authority member, agent or employe from entering directly or indirectly into any contract with the agency.

Violation of the code carries a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than a year, or both.

Attorney General C. Ferdinand Sybert said he would assign a member of his staff to "study the situation" immediately.

Joseph L. Stanton, executive director of the Port Authority, said "this is the first I've heard of this and I really haven't given the matter any thought" when asked about Kronau's connections with the construction firm.

Stanton said "I wouldn't think this would have anything to do with that" when the subject of conflict of interest on the chairman's part was raised.

Kronau, 53, was appointed chairman of the Port Authority by former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin in September, 1958, for a six-year term.

Club Robbery Case Headed For Grand Jury

FREDERICK (AP) — Chief Circuit Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer Wednesday ordered the Frederick County grand jury recalled June 13 to hear evidence against five men accused of robbing patrons of a private club of $10,300.

The five men, all from out of state, pleaded innocent to the robbery charges at a preliminary hearing April 13. Each was ordered held in $20,000 bond for grand jury action.

The five are Benjamin Greif, 51, of New York City; Johnny Douglas Boyd, 43, and William Williams, 35, both of Newark, N.J.; James Charles Toland, 55, of Washington, and Charles Robert Graves, 35, of Easton Iron, N.J. All but Greif are Negroes.

Four men carrying a sawed-off shotgun and pistols entered the Spartan Club, just south of Frederick on Maryland 355, early April 11. They lined up about 20 customers, took cash from their wallets and put the money in a pillow case.

Some of the patrons were forced to remove their trousers. These were dumped in a pile outside the club before the gunmen fled in a waiting car.

The five accused men were arrested by Montgomery County police at a roadblock near Rockville about an hour after the robbery.

All of the loot was reported to have been recovered.

Bowles Group At Work

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland Democratic officials have been contacted by an organization working on behalf of Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn) for the party's presidential nomination, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The group, calling itself the Chester Bowles for President Committee of Illinois, wrote Secretary of State Thomas B. Finan a request for the names and addresses of Maryland delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

These delegates will be elected Tuesday at the party state convention in Baltimore. Because of the victory in the May 17 Maryland primary of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) the delegates are legally required to support him at the national convention as long as they believe he has a chance to win the nomination.

The letter to Finan, who is also Maryland Democratic chairman, was signed by Sheldon Newberger, identified as executive director of the Bowles group in Illinois. Bowles has been serving as foreign policy adviser to Kennedy in the Massachusetts senator's campaign.

Executive May Face Charges In Lodge Fire

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Talbot County State's Atty. Henry Turner said Wednesday he hasn't made up his mind whether to bring charges against a Delaware businessman whose name was mentioned during an arson trial here.

Turner said he would confer with insurance company lawyers before deciding whether to press legal proceedings against Harrison C. Colket, president of the North American Smelting Co., Wilmington, Del.

Colket's name was mentioned in testimony during the trial of John G. Dolan, 39, caretaker for about four years at Colket's Chesapeake Bay island lodge.

A jury Tuesday found Dolan innocent of a charge of setting fire to the lodge Dec. 29.

During the trial, a statement made by Dolan to State Police Jan. 23 was admitted as evidence by Circuit Judge J. DeWeese Carter. In the statement, Dolan said he set fire to the lodge as part of an agreement with Colket.

Dolan said in the statement that Colket promised to give him $300,000 from fire insurance money if he would set fire to the lodge.

Despite the statement, the jury returned the innocent finding after deliberating two hours. The verdict apparently surprised Turner and other court officials.

Apparent Suicide Follows Letter

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lee Bateman received a special delivery letter from his brother Wednesday morning. It said he had driven his car 8,000 miles "around the country thinking things over."

A short while later, police called Bateman about a dead man found stretched out in the front seat of his car. Bateman identified the body as his 54-year-old brother.

The car was parked on a service station lot. The dead man had a pistol clutched in his right hand and he had been shot in the right side of his head.

The living Bateman said his brother had an incurable disease.

SRC Chairman-Director John B. Funk said the firm had submitted a low bid of $2,699,444.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Solve That Baby Fat Problem

A problem that plagues many new mothers is baby-fat. Not on the baby — on themselves. They may have gained a son or a daughter but they feel they've lost their looks.

One reader has described her anguish after gaining 46 pounds during pregnancy. She jumped from 118 pounds to 164 pounds . . . and has managed to whittle herself down to 149 pounds. This is far more than her height (5' 3") should carry at the age of 20. And it probably contributes to her disproportionate measurements of 40-30-44.

Without knowing more about this young woman's body frame and general health, I cannot make any specific recommendations for her ideal weight and measurements. Generally, her original 118 pounds would seem a good point at which to stop the scale. If her body-type still exaggerates her proportions (and this seems probable), she can do much to simulate the ideal figure with good posture, well-designed foundation garments and clever manipulation of color and styling in her clothes.

My booklets "Do You Measure Up?" and "Figured For You," just 10c each with a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to me c/o this newspaper, would get he off to a good start.

I can specifically recommend, of course, that she see her doctor without delay and get his permission to lose her excess weight. Merely toting that burden around is making her tired and depressed, just at the time she needs her vitality most to care for her new baby.

When her baby is three months old, she must be able to devote at least 20 minutes a day to restorative exercises. One favorite for maintaining good muscle tone, particularly in the important pelvic region, is the twist-over-and-back. She should lie flat in bed or on the floor, a pillow beneath her head, her arms outstretched at shoulder level. She then lifts one leg to a bent-knee position before kicking it up straight in the air and swinging it over to meet her outstretched hand. When she swings this leg back to position, she repeats the routine with the other leg.

To slim legs and strengthen abdominal muscles, she may lie tummy-down across a chair, extend her legs straight back, then swing them up and down scissors-style.

Patience — as well as perseverance — is the cue for this young lady, as it is for all the mothers who share her problem. Remember, it took most of nine months to gain those pounds. It may take equal time, even longer, to reduce and to regenerate the strength and tone of muscles that have been strained, not by childbirth, but by overweight.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've never written a letter to a newspaper or to a magazine in my life, but after reading your column today (about parents being paid back for giving their children a college education) I just had to write to you.

In the past two years we have seen two sons and a daughter get college diplomas. They all worked part-time and we paid the rest.

In the last six years Dad and I have had no vacations. Our car is just about ready for the junkheap. The furniture in our house is falling apart. But who cares? None of this means a thing compared to knowing that our children are given a first class education.

Pay us back? They've paid us back — a thousand times, by being the kind of people we want them to be. We have two other children who will enter college soon. God-willing we'll see them through, too. —

PROUD OF OUR KIDS

DEAR ANN: The letter on whether or not children owe their parents for a college education brought back some painful memories.

Our son always went with the rich kids in school, although we had very little. My husband owned a small tailor shop and I helped him with the sewing at night.

When our son told us he wanted to go to a big eastern school and it would cost us $3,000 a year it sounded like a million. He said he couldnt work his way through because it was a hard school and he needed all his time and energy for studying.

Well, Pa and I scraped together our savings, we made a loan, I took in two roomers, and our son got his college education. I saved in a secret account for our train fare so when he graduated we could see him get his diploma. But we never made that trip. Do you know why? He never invited us.

Pa was heartbroken but he never said anything. Along about August I asked our son why and he said, "You would have felt out of place with all those swells." He married a fancy girl he met in the east and we don't see them very often although they live right in this town. Maybe we raised him wrong, but we did the best we could. I hope he does better with his son than we did with ours. —

UNHAPPYY PARENTS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a professor in a midwestern college and was deeply interested in the column which raised the question of whether children "owe" their parents for sacrifices made to send them to college.

For almost 20 years I've watched students come and go. Do you know who, almost without exception are the outstanding students? Those who are on partial or complete scholarships and must work to stay in school. They seem to have a better comprehension of what a college education means, and are willing to make sacrifices to get it.

Do you know who the poorest students are — the ones who wash out and barely make it by the skin of their teeth? The students whose parents send them with swanky clothes, hi-fi machines, electric typerwriters, automobiles and lots of spending money. These students don't have to do anything but concentrate on their work, but they don't. They are too busy with their hi-fis, automobiles and spending money.

— THE OWL

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Finan Predicts Harmony Among Convention Delegates

Thomas B. Finan, Maryland Democratic chairman, said Tuesday in Baltimore there will be a "deliberate attempt" made to include all party factions on the state delegation to the national convention.

Finan and Carl R. Tuvin, executive secretary of the Maryland Democratic headquarters, Tuesday finished assembling the list of delegates to the May 31 Democratic State Convention.

The official list of the 152 delegates was compiled after the canvass of the May 17 primary election. The state convention will elect the Maryland delegation to the national convention opening July 11 in Los Angeles.

Finan said potential national convention delegates have been suggested by some county party officials and the list will be reviewed by state party leaders before the state convention.

On the Republican side, former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin has confirmed that Vice President Nixon is his choice for the party's Presidential nomination.

McKeldin is expected to make several speeches on Nixon's behalf and will undoubtedly have a strong voice in the Maryland delegation to the Republican National Convention.

He declined to say if he expects to be re-elected state national committeeman at the Republican State Convention in Baltimore June 11.

Attending the state Democratic convention from Allegany County will be Mrs. Ann Everline, Joseph V. Burke, William L. Wilson, F. Patrick Allender, Leslie Clark, Simon F. Reilly and former Judge William C. Walsh. Garrett County delegates are Dr. E. Irvin Baumgartner, Karol Rush, Mrs. Louise Seggie and Mrs. Phyllis Young.

Finan said a resolutions committee will be selected from the 152 delegates. The committee will have at least one member from each county and the six districts in Baltimore, he added, and the group will then consult on the selection of official delegates to the national convention. The committee's recommendations will be submitted for approval by the 152 delegates.

The final selection, Finan continued, will include representation from each party faction and geographical section in Maryland.

The state Democratic chairman said it is evident that the Baltimore convention will be conducted in a spirit of harmony since the major party leaders are united in a desire for a Democratic victory in November.

As state chairman, Finan will call the convention to order before turning over the chair to a temporary chairman. James Lacy, prominent Baltimore businessman and ally of Mayor J. Harold Grady, has been prominently mentioned for this role.

Del. A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto), House majority leader, is reported in line for permanent chairman.

Fort Hill Students Hurt When Car Hits Tree

Three Fort Hill High School students were admitted to Morgan County War Memorial Hospital in Berkeley Springs and three other students were treated and released Tuesday afternoon after the car in which they were riding went over an embankment on West Virginia Route 9 on Cacapon Mountain.

Admitted to the hospital were Darlene Bonner, 14, a freshman, of Valley Road; John Smith, 16, a junior, of Valley Road, and Joseph D. Nikirk Jr., 15, a sophomore, of 515 East Third Street.

The Bonner girl and Smith were kept at the hospital overnight and Nikirk was released later in the afternoon.

Trooper W. A. Wood, of the Berkeley Springs detachment of the West Virginia State Police, investigated the accident which reportedly occurred shortly after 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Trooper Wood said the '52-model convertible was driven by Smith and was headed toward Berkeley Springs on the mountain when he lost control of the vehicle while attempting to negotiate a right hand curve. The car crossed the center line, skidded, came back to the extreme right of the highway and went over an embankment where it rammed into a tree.

The convertible top was down, the trooper stated, and the three occupants in the back seat, the Payne girl, Strawderman and Parsons were thrown from the car. The front seat occupants, Nikirk, Miss Bonner and Smith, remained in the vehicle, Trooper Wood said.

Attaches at the hospital reported that none was seriously injured. Nikirk was treated for a slight concussion; the Bonner girl for facial injuries and Smith for lacerations.

Miss Bonner and Smith were to be transferred to Memorial Hospital here yesterday, attaches said.

Trooper Wood said the auto was a total loss and Smith was fined for failing to keep his vehicle under control.

Class To Meet Today

The Class of 1950 of Allegany High School will meet today at 7:30 p. m. in the high school. Robert Hutchenson, class chairman, said plans will be made for a reunion.

Two Promoted In Seabees

Two members of the Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 5-7 (Seabees) have been advanced in rating, according to Cmdr. Paul M. Arbogast, commanding officer.

Their advancement was based on successfully passing a written examination and completing a series of practical factors in their rating. In addition, each man has served his annual two weeks of active duty for training.

Conway is an employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. Estep is employed by the Board of Education of Mineral County.

NEW YORK (AP)—After eight straight advancing sessions, the stock market so far this week appears to be consolidating its position.

Except for electronics and aircraft issues, the market seems to have lost most of the steam pumped into it by apprehension over what failure of the summit meeting would bring.

However, 'Vall Street experts weren't worried by the interruption of the rally. They feel it will start up again before long.

"It seems to us that a period of consolidation should be witnessed here in order for the list to build a base for resumption of recovery efforts," said Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel 1 Co.

"We believe this will take place and prices will again show a better tone."

There is a possibility that the market has seen its low point, according to Eldon A. Grimm of Walston & Co.

Local Woman Injured In Accident Files Suit

Suit for $15,000 damages was docketed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by a local woman who claims she was injured while a passenger in a car last October 17 on U. S. Route 40 at Flintstone.

Edith Mullaney, Jane Frazier Village, through her attorney, Harold E. Naughton, filed the action against Arthur L. Siebert, city.

The declaration states that the woman was riding in Siebert's car when it ran off the roadway. She charged the vehicle was operated in a careless and reckless manner.

It was stated in the declaration that the plaintiff suffered a fractured arm and ribs and other injuries and was hospitalized for a week. She also states she incurred medical and hospital expenses.

11 Reservists Are Advanced In Navy Rank

Eleven members of Naval Reserve Surface Division 5-9 have successfully completed examinations and have been promoted in rate, according to Cdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer.

Six of the advancements were petty officers. They are L. Edward Alderman, seaman to signalman third class; Robert H. Hill, seaman to boatswain's mate third class; William G. McCall, yeoman third class to yeoman second class; W. L. Smelser, machinist's mate second class to machinist's mate first class, and John S. Turner, yeoman third class to yeoman second class.

Non-rated men advanced were W. L. Mower, seaman recruit to seaman apprentice; J. G. Miller, W. J. Staarman, J. B. Wagner, and J. W. Coburn, all fireman apprentice to fireman.

Advancement in rate is one of the factors considered, Cdr. Calhoun said, in national competition for the Forrestal Trophy which is annually awarded the best large surface division in the nation. The local unit won the award in 1957.

Members of the Cumberland Division will undergo their annual inspection tonight. Capt. Ralph H. Moureou, USN, from Headquarters of the Fifth Naval District, will be inspecting officer.

Cdr. Calhoun stated that the unit will muster at 7 p. m. instead of 7:15 because of the inspection.

Union Men Planning To Attend Meet

Five delegates and the president of Local 1874, TWUA, will leave Friday for Chicago where they will attend the national convention of the Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The convention will open May 30 and continue through June 3.

John G. Thomas, president of Local 1874, has received notice from William Pollock, general president of the TWUA, that he has been selected as a member of the resolutions committee, which will meet Saturday at 1 p. m.

Thomas said the Synthetic Yarn Division of the TWUA, which represents locals in many plants, will convene Sunday at 10:30 a. m. to discuss the convention agenda and matters affecting this phase of the TWUA.

Elected delegates to attend the convention are Charles F. Davis, secretary-treasurer; Roy T. Craze, James S. McGann, trustee; Floyd S. Grady, executive board member, and Francis B. Harvey, warden.

Speakers at the convention will include Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Senators Paul Douglas (Illinois), Hubert Humphrey (Minnesota) and John O. Pastore (Rhode Island), Arthur Goldberg, general counsel of the AFL-CIO; John Greenhalph, secretary of the International Federation of Textile Workers; and David Lewis, chairman of the Canadian Congress of Confederations.

Loans To Pay For Education Show Increase

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 33 per cent increase since 1955 in the cost of a college education has forced many parents to turn to pay-as-you - learn plans to send their children to college.

There are any number of banks and other organizations — even colleges themselves — that offer installment financing for a four-year education.

There also are any number of repayment plans, ranging from periods over two years to 10 years, most of them including insurance on the parent - borrower to permit full repayment of the loan in event of his death. Interest rates vary.

At present, the cost of a four-year education ranges from $8,000 to $12,000 for a resident student and, according to Robert J. Keir, executive vice president of The Tuition Plan, Inc., the costs will continue to rise.

Some educators predict that by 1970 today's figures may be doubled, he said.

Keir's group, a subsidiary of C.I.T. Financial Corp., was founded in 1938 with 28 borrowers. In the last five years alone, he said, The Tuition Plan has financed education costs for more than 100,000 students.

PTA To Honor Faculty June 6

Plans for a faculty dinner were discussed at the last meeting of the Centre Street Parent-Teacher Association and it was announced that the deadline for reservations is Monday, June 6.

The dinner will be held June 8 and those seeking reservations should contact Mrs. Fran Miller, association treasurer.

Officers who were elected and installed at the meeting are Mrs. Ruth Olgebay, president; Mrs. Richard Shober, vice president; Mrs. Lois Geatz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Miller, treasurer.

Installation was conducted by Thomas Wagner, principal, who was presented a life membership to the association.

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, addressed the group and conducted a question-answer period on the Warfield Commission report, dealing with the conversion of State Teachers colleges to University of Maryland branches.

Flutophone selections were presented by pupils in Mrs. Elizabeth Lakin's classroom.

Memorial Service Planned

Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, has completed plans for its annual memorial service, which will be held on Monday afternoon in front of the honor roll at the post home.

Commander William Andrews said the service will get under way at 3 p.m. The "post everlasting" ceremony will be in charge of Commander Andrews, Charles Dodrill, adjutant, Lee Van Meter, sergeant-at-arms, and Robert Mullin, chaplain.

The color guard will present the colors and Taps will be played by a member of the Legion post. After the ceremony all past commanders will be presented with badges and year bars.

The public is invited, especially the families of those whose names are included on the honor roll. All names of post members who have died are on the roll.

New Road Maps Available At SRC Office

The 1960 official highway map of Maryland is available to interested persons at the State Roads Commission district headquarters on Braddock Road.

The colorful map features a number of pictures of Western Maryland points of historical and scenic interest to tourists, as well as general information on towns and cities.

One of the pictures is a view of The Narrows, the historic "Gateway to the West," and one of the major places of interest in this region. Also shown is one of the state's picnic sites on Sideling Hill from where the tourist can get a scenic view of a vast area.

The vacation-land opportunities of Garrett county is portrayed by art work that features the winter sports of skiing and hunting, and the summer playground of Deep Creek Lake.

Each county is pictured with what it is famous for, or points of interest that might appeal to the tourist. The rich historical background of the state is evidenced by drawings of Fort Frederick, built during the French and Indian wars; Antietam, site of the bloodiest battle of the Civil War, and the first monument erected to George Washington.

The map also carries bright pictures of the Great Seal, state flag, bird and flower, as well as the seafood, hunting and farm products for which Maryland is famous.

SRC spokesmen point out that for the first time, the official road guides include a pictorial map of the state, depicting points of interest from Oakland, in westernmost Garrett county, to Crisfield, in the state's most southern county.

William Jabine, 2nd, public relations director for the SRC, has pointed out that the 300,000 maps are larger and easier to read than earlier models.

The mapping project, under the supervision of George Cassell, of the SRC traffic bureau, cost $29,900, Jabine said.

Last year, for a press run of 200,000, the maps cost $17,800 he said.

The increased cost for 1960 reflects both greater distribution and a complete set of new plates used in the printing process, the official explained.

The unit or "per map" price rose from 8.9 cents to 9.9 cents, Jabine said.

Other innovations this year include the absence of "green counties." Counties shown in this color last year now turn up beige for better visibility, Jabine reported.

Designations of state parks also have been changed from solid green to light green swirls which apparently represent tree tops.

"The forests look more like forests now," Jabine said, "more tree-like."

The completely redesigned map, 318 square inches larger than the 1959 edition, also features a new cover and a shorter message from Governor Tawes—36 fewer words.

The Governor, in a message from Government House, said: "Maryland road builders have incorporated every modern concept of safety in newer highways.

"Won't you help by showing an equal interest and drive with care, observing all the rules of the road which were established for your safety?"

Bright and legible, the map was described by Jabine as "very good and cheap advertising for the State." The SRC traffic division responsible for the project is headed by George N. Lewis, Jr.

Deadline May 31 To Get County Trader's Licenses

Clerk of Court Joseph E. Boden has reported that quite a few persons have failed to obtain their trader's licenses.

The deadline for obtaining the permits without payment of a 10 per cent penalty is May 31, Boden said. The Court House will be open today, Friday and Tuesday.

Cost of the licenses is based on the amount of merchandise and ranges from $15 to $501. Billard tables require a $11 each, bowling alleys require $11 per alley, junk dealers, $11 for residents and $101 for non-residents.

Moving picture theaters are licensed on the basis of seating capacity with $51 for 300 seats up to $301 for 1,000 seating capacity. Drive-in theaters pay $101 for not more than 101 autos, $201 for less than 200, $251 for less than 300 cars and $301 for more than 300 autos.

Garages, laundries, and all types of business are licensed.

A Bit Too Much Togetherness?

Vote-conscious politicians with benefit plans for Americans over 65 are not alone in their efforts to harness the increasing numbers of the nation's "senior citizens." They have their counterparts in the merchandising world.

Currently being organized in New York City is a consumer group to be called "Over 65 Inc." The plan is that it will begin operating in the fall.

Designed to exploit the collective buying power of older citizens, who number an estimated 15.4 million now and who are expected to increase to 20 million in a decade, Over 65 Inc. would attract and hold its membership with discounts on all kinds of merchandise needed by over-65 consumers.

Merchants will have to pay a $25 fee to have the attention of the elderly buyers of their area directed to their stores and shops. Each retailer will set the discount his store will offer, but must agree to maintain the percentage at least a year. Merchants reportedly are enthusiastic about the program.

Membership in Over 65 Inc. will cost the qualified person nothing. All he will need is proof of his age and his name will be entered in the organization's directory for circulation among cooperating merchants.

There is something to be said for any program which permits persons on limited incomes to get more for their money. But aren't people over 65 in danger of becoming over-organized as opportunists seek more and more ways to turn their increasing numbers to advantage? Many Americans are the type to become annoyed by repeated efforts to force them into togetherness.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Stevenson Foible

James A. Farley, former Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet, has come through many political ordeals with the reputation of being an unusual politician who is unable to compromise with his moral principles. Although he is responsible for the original campaign to make Franklin D. Roosevelt President, he broke with him over the question of a Third Term, a breach not to Farley's advantage politically but, as it could be said of this man, he saved his soul. Since then, Farley has gone into private business, but his influence in Democratic politics has been continuous.

Adlai Stevenson, the pragmatist, was flipped out of this 1960 campaign by Farley who, when the need arose, came out of his silence and slapped down the impatient, pushing, hopeful candidate for the Presidency. Farley put country above party, as he naturally would be impelled to by his sense of citizen responsibility. He said: ". . . it occurs to me that Mr. Stevenson is attempting to use the incident (the Summit Conference) to 'sledgehammer and crowbar' another disastrous nomination for himself as the Apostle of Appeasement out of the Democratic Party."

What Adlai Stevenson seems to have forgotten is that in 1952 and 1956, he was nominated for defeat. This often occurs in politics when it is realized that a party cannot win, as the Democrats could not win against Eisenhower in those years. Stevenson, who had been an obscure figure, even as Governor of Illinois, immediately became a national personality and gained a personal following among the liberal intellectuals who preferred his literate language despite the fogginess of ideas and the impracticality of his proposals.

In 1960, the Democrats feel that they have a chance to win, no matter whichever of their candidates the Convention nominates, except Stevenson. They therefore do not want to nominate Adlai Stevenson who has been defeated twice and who never developed any excited enthusiasm within his party, although he has done well among the Park Avenue Liberals—a special breed of rich persons, mainly female, who are inclined to go to any extremes to propitiate their consciences for being so rich, mostly by inheritance or alimony.

Such persons are rarely partisans. At this moment, for instance, they are for Adlai Stevenson and Nelson Rockefeller for President. This acrobatic stand is not new for their kind: they were for Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie simultaneously. Generally, they are opposed to John Kennedy because, they say, they know him and adore his wife, a non sequitur but typical of Park Avenue logic. They are opposed to Nixon because, as they say, "I never liked him." They have never heard of Lyndon Johnson and as for Stuart Symington—well, he is supported by Harry Truman whom they also do not like.

When they tell me about the glories of Adlai Stevenson, I become mean and ask each to write a 500-word composition on his perfection. They do much better with Nelson Rockefeller. Of him, they say: "I adore him." "He is divine." Apparently that is an answer to all questions! They also adore Clark Gable, Gloria Vanderbilt, Frank Sinatra, the late Aly Khan, Elsa Maxwell, and the Duke of Windsor. All are divine. Some day, they will come around to adoring Mr. Armstrong-Jones. He also is divine.

I describe Adlai Stevenson's principal support because actually there are no votes in it. To win against a fighting Nixon, the Democrats will need a strong candidate who can hold the Solid South and can win the Eastern and Western states. Both John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson might be able to do this. Possibly Stuart Symington might be able to do that. It is very doubtful if Adlai Stevenson can.

This country respects Dwight D. Eisenhower. Nobody will say that he has been the greatest President since George Washington. On the other hand, he has won respect as a courageous, patriotic gentleman who believes in his country, who seeks for its survival, and whose conduct in office has restored great dignity to it. He sought a non-partisan Presidency; he will leave it as an American rather than as a Republican.

To attack Eisenhower for gain is reprehensible. Political gain is as reprehensible as money gain at such a moment. A really great man does not risk his country for an advantage.

'We're Behind You In This Thing'

Partisanship Over U-2 Will Hurt Democrats

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Many of the Democrats in Congress, as well as the Democratic Advisory Council, are trying to make a campaign issue out of the charge that President Eisenhower gave Soviet Premier Khrushchev the "opportunity" to blow up the "summit" conference. But the issue may boomerang against them.

For, as the "New York Times" pointed out in its editorial on Monday, Mr. Khrushchev at Paris "used the U-2 incident as a pretext" and admitted in his Berlin speech a few days later that "his primary reason was the firm Western stand on Germany and Berlin indicated in what he termed the 'sharply and arrogantly provocative' speeches of Secretary Herter, Under Secretary Dillon and Vice President Nixon."

On the same page appeared also a Paris dispatch from C. L. Sulzberger," the eminent commentator on world affairs, who writes that "Moscow has never objected to unmanned reconnaissance by our Tiros-1 photographic satellite" and that, as General de Gaulle tried to argue with the Soviet Premier, "the new Soviet 'space ship' was crossing France 18 times a day" even while Khrushchev was clamoring in Paris about the U-2 affair. Mr. Sulzberger reveals also that Russia has known for four years about the U-2 flights and that the Soviets "knew at least since June, 1959, that in West Germany we had put together, from U-2 pictures, a topographic map of Russia."

The implication of the Democratic Advisory Council's statement that, if the plane episode hadn't occurred, all would have been sweetness and light at the Paris "summit" conference is hard to believe.

Even more baffling is the reasoning of Adlai Stevenson, who, in his Chicago political speech the other day, said that "when Mr. Khrushchev gave the President an out by suggesting that he was not responsible for ordering the flight, the President proudly asserted that he was responsible."

But the record of what the President actually said does not bear out any charge that Mr. Eisenhower said he was responsible for ordering this particular flight. What the President did say was that he was responsible for the general policy to "gather, in every feasible way, the information required to protect the United States and the free world against surprise attacks." This included the U-2 reconnaissance flights, authorized four years ago.

Little attention, moreover, has been paid to the text of the message sent by the President in the last few days to the heads of governments in various Allied countries. Referring to the plane incident, he wrote:

"I need not assure you that this activity was not intentionally provocative and certainly not aggressive. It constituted one phase of an intelligence system made necessary for defense against surprise attacks on the part of a nation which boasts of its capability 'to bury' us all, and one which stubbornly maintains the most rigid secrecy in all its activities.

"At the least, this incident, while regrettable in the extreme, could not by any stretch of the imagination be of such magnitude as to justify the polemics and the abuse which Mr. Khrushchev saw fit to heap upon the United States. By so distorting and exaggerating this incident, he of course put an end, for the time being, to any hopes of progress."

But notwithstanding the published words of the President of the United States in his message to our Allies, the Democratic Advisory Council said three days later that "the integrity of the word of the United States has been put into doubt," and that "the shortcomings" of the administration "tend to weaken the confidence of our Allies not only in our strength but also in the wisdom and competence of our government."

The Democratic Advisory Council statement has been endorsed by Adlai Stevenson, former President Truman, and Senators Symington and Kennedy. But House Speaker Sam Rayburn and the Democratic majority leader of the Senate, Lyndon Johnson, have risen above partisanship to stand by the President. They concur in the idea of a formal inquiry to get all the facts, but they are not blaming their own government at a critical time in the conduct of our foreign relations.

A full discussion will, of course, inform the American people on matters they may not have noted deeply before. Thus, when Adlai Stevenson says Khrushchev gave Mr. Eisenhower an "out" by affording him a chance to say the flight of Francis Powers was "unauthorized," what would the same Democrats have said about Mr. Eisenhower when a Congressional inquiry subsequently revealed that he had actually given a general authorization for such flights four years earlier? Wouldn't the Democrats have had some basis then for crying out that the President had not told the truth and that "the integrity of the word of the United States has been put into doubt"?

But Mr. Eisenhower preferred to tell the truth to the whole world. For this he is being pilloried, and, instead of rallying behind their government, many of the Democrats, including the Advisory Council, are encouraging Mr. Khrushchev to believe that the United States is divided and that the President, to whom the conduct of foreign relations is specifically delegated by the Constitution, does not speak today for the government of the United States. This is hardly the way to win elections. It could turn out that the abortive attempts to play politics with the "summit" conference fiasco, and to blame Mr. Eisenhower for something Mr. Khrushchev did, will put the Democrats on the defensive when they get on the stump. Patriotic feeling in America runs deeper than political partisanship.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MIXED REACTION — Washington is rightly proud of the growth in popularity of the nation's capital as a springtime tourist Mecca. However, some of the more responsible merchantmen and hotel operators are becoming worried about reactions they are receiving to a type of short-changing that is going on regarding inferior accommodations and meals.

Many tourists, including large numbers of the 500,000 school children who visit the capital each spring, are returning home with tales of misplaced reservations which end with their having to sleep in poor accommodations at excessively high cost, and with the serving of poorly prepared food by over-taxed restaurants.

The Washington Board of Trade has records of crowding students four to a room that normally holds two at most, and charging each occupant full rate.

In one instance, an entire group of more than 60 youngsters arrived in town to find their hotel reservations were non-existent. They were finally put up by the Pullman company at Union Station after hours of fruitless effort to shoehorn them into other hotels.

Nearly half of another group were stricken ill after eating at a high-priced restaurant and were taken to a hospital where their ailment was diagnosed as gastroenteritis, a form of food poisoning.

These were admittedly extreme occurrences, but there are countless similar tales of unkept promises and overcharging. Merchants, hotelmen and cab drivers are being urged not to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

Ginger Jake And The Moroccan Paralysis

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The outbreak of poisoning in Morocco that paralyzed 10,000 inhabitants had its counterpart in this country nearly 30 years ago. It was caused by the same type of poison (tricresylphosphate) but in a different disguise. We refer to the epidemic of jake paralysis that affected more than 10,000 Americans during prohibition.

The Moroccan poisonings were traced to a group of unscrupulous merchants who obtained unwanted stocks of aviation oil and sold it to the people as cooking fat. This special type of oil was made specifically to lubricate airplane motors subjected to great heat and contained orthocresylphosphate. It was put up for sale as the air corps no longer needed it.

The consumers developed varying degrees of paralysis of the legs and hands but there were no fatalities. Improvement was slow and there still is some doubt that all the victims will recover completely.

The American counterpart came in a bootleg Jamaica ginger drink containing 83 per cent alcohol. One shot made you feel good and two produced the cheapest drunk of the era. The trouble with a jake jag was that paralysis set in two weeks later. The Jamaican extract was more than water, alcohol, pepper, and coloring material. It contained tricresylphosphate, called ginger jake.

More than 10,000 cases of poisoning were reported. The sheath of the nerve was injured and many American users suffered wasting of the extremities and became disabled. In mild cases, 15 months elapsed before pain subsided and strength returned; severe paralysis lasted 2 to 2 years.

Many of the African victims are children, which makes their plight more pitiable. On the other hand, the Moroccans fared better because modern physicians have much more to offer than did those of three decades ago.

TOMORROW: Don't fall for food fads.

PROLONGED NURSING

Mrs. C. M. writes: I have a friend who still nurses her 2 year old child four times a day. She says her mother breastfed her until she was 3 and did the same with five other children. Do you think this is harmful?

REPLY

Babies usually are weaned in this country when they are 6 to 18 months old. It should be done gradually, preferably when the youngster is ready for it. Prolonging the process is neither harmful nor advantageous but the sooner the child learns to eat solid foods, the better and more diversified his diet.

NERVE PRESSURE

L. J. writes: Can neuritis of the hands result from arthritis of the back of the neck?

REPLY

Yes, provided the arthritic process irritates or presses on the nerves extending from the neck to the hands.

SLIGHT WEIGHT LOSS

J. F. Q. writes: Should some pathology be suspected if a healthy man in his thirties loses 10 pounds in three years?

REPLY

No. A reduction of 3⅓ pounds annually for three years is nothing to write home about.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

A voluptuous blonde slithered into a public library, conveying the startling information that she had decided to improve her mind. "My boy friend wants I should read books, so I'll read books."

"What would you like to start with?" asked the librarian, suppressing a smile. "Something light or something comparatively heavy?"

"Who cares?" shrugged the blonde, "I've got my car outside."

When conductor Leonard Bernstein took the Philharmonic Orchestra on tour last year, he found this note under his hotel door one night: "I think you should know that the fellow in your band who plays the instrument that pulls in and out only bothered playing during the odd moments you were looking straight at him."

U.S. Military Men Want To Keep Sending U-2 Flights Over Russia

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter on the Paris Summit conference to his daughter, Mrs. Dwight Whitney, in Los Angeles)

Washington, D. C.
May 24, 1960

My Dear Daughter:

I said that I would try to report to you further regarding some of the tragedies of the summit conference. Perhaps you saw that when President Eisenhower stopped in Portugal he gave a hint that he made some mistakes, and I have been hoping he would follow this up by telling about the mistakes. Because only by admitting our mistakes can we pick up the broken fragments of the start we had made toward better understanding and get back on the track toward peace.

The situation today may be similar to that when Russia launched its first sputnik and we realized that we had suffered a very real scientific defeat. At that time Eisenhower wanted to admit frankly and publicly that we had made made serious mistakes, but his White House advisers argued to the contrary. They said this would be disastrous politically, would hurt the party at the next election. So Ike yielded and they covered things up.

I'm afraid the same thing is happening today.

The truth is that there was a lot of fault on our side, and some of the things Khrushchev said were all too accurate, even though he was very disagreeable and ill-tempered about it. One of them was the charge that Eisenhower was under the influence of our military. This was partly right.

Amazing Photos

For instance, our military people were determined to send the U-2 observation flights over Russia regardless of the summit conference. And even today after the U-2 disrupted the conference they would like to have them continued. These planes had penetrated deep inside Russia approximately 100 times during the past four years photographing virtually everything on the ground with fantastic clarity. The photographs pin-pointed all of Russia's missile sites, airfields, atomic installations, and even provided close-ups of the big rocket engines that put Russian missiles into space.

These U-2 flights were able to fly so high—about 80,000 feet—that no Russian planes could reach them. In fact, one of them was sighted by the Russians in April and all sorts of efforts were made to knock it ou of the sky. And although the Russians couldn't reach it, they did know about these flights and were on the alert for the next one in May.

After this one was shot down we at first lied about it. Then we told the truth. Then we lied two more times. Everybody knows about the first lie, but not the other two. It's bad enough to lie when you're a private individual; but when a nation gets caught lying it harms its prestige and place of honor in the world.

We are all proud of the fact that our honor has been very high all around the world far many years. But at Paris I confess that there were times when Americans felt humiliated and ashamed.

Two More Lies

The second lie came when it was announced in Paris that President Eisenhower had ordered no more U-2 flights over Russia and that this order had been given on May 12.

Actually the diplomats knew and the Russians knew that this order had not been given until Sunday, May 15. It was given only after Prime Minister Macmillan of England and President de Gaulle of France had pleaded with Eisenhower on Sunday morning to stop the flights in order to persuade Mr. Khrushchev to come back to the conference table.

Other people knew it besides the diplomats because Secretary Herter in a press conference had strongly indicated that the flights would continue; and because Vice President Nixon in a televised program given in New York and Washington over the weekend said the spy flights were continuing. On Monday, May 16, when Nixon got the word from Paris he quickly reversed himself. In Syracuse, N. Y., he said just the opposite.

On top of this came our final lie. In announcing the end of these spy flights, it was stated in Paris that President Eisenhower had given the grounding order of May 12 to Secretary of Defense Gates and Gen. Nathan Twining of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This was a military order.

Yet earlier the President had been careful to announce that these flights were purely civilian.

"We do not use the Army, Navy, or Air Force for this purpose," the President had announced on May 11, "first to avoid any possibility of the use of force in connection with these activities; and second because our military forces cannot be given altitude under broad directions but must be kept under strict control."

So the announcement in Paris that a military order had been given to stop these flights, showed that we had been lying again.

That's why many Americans in Paris felt humiliated that their country's affairs were so badly handled. That's also why a good frank confession of error as practiced by the Catholic Church might help us to recover some of our lost prestige in the eyes of the world.

And you can tell your small boys what happens to people and to nations when they don't tell the truth.

Much love from
Your father.

On Folk-Dancing

By Joseph Alsop

PARIS

America's friends in France, and throughout the whole Western alliance, have received the news of the impending Congressional investigation of the U-2 case with a groan of resigned horror.

The horror has been tempered, to be sure, by the report that the investigation is to be conducted by Sen. Fulbright. The chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee has a well established reputation for moderation and good sense. He will, it is hoped, avoid the worst excesses of Congressional inquiries into controversial matters in election years. But the question is still being asked, with a kind of damp discouragement:

In happier days, this would not have mattered as much as it matters now. In the past, none of the Western allies doubted the superiority of American power.

In the past, too, there were far fewer doubts about the good judgment of America's leaders. In that period no great harm was done, as a leading French diplomat put it to this reporter, "par les danes folkloriques de votre politique interieure"—by the folk dances of your domestic politics"!

In other words, while there was still general confidence in America's basic wisdom, we could afford to make fools of ourselves from time to time in our own peculiar way. But it cannot be too much emphasized that the remaining Western reserve of confidence in America—at least in Eisenhower's America—has now dropped well past the danger point. Anything which will cause a further drain on the reserve of confidence is genuinely dangerous, both to the world position of the United States and to the unity of the West.

Even after making full allowance for the prudence of Sen. Fulbright, it is hard to see how any investigation of the U-2 case can fail to cause such a drain on the reserve of confidence. The known facts themselves prove, only too clearly, that further inquiry can do no good and may do much harm. These facts fall into two parts.

In part one, there are the facts concerning the U-2 over flights. The overflights were started more than four years ago. No sensible American can fail to admire the courage and good sense of his fellow citizens, as yet unnamed, who originated this project.

For four years and more, these flights continued without incident. Probably from the beginning, and quite certainly for at least two years, the masters of the Kremlin have known that American planes were overflying the Soviet Union at altitudes above the reach of the Soviet air defense system. Their radars told them the news, and so did their spies. At his monstrous Paris press conference, Nikita S. Khrushchev himself quite openly admitted that he knew about the American overflights when he met President Eisenhower at Camp David.

In all this time, the Soviets made no protest against the overflights because they could not do so without an appalling admission of weakness. They could not say, after all:

"We know you're overflying our territory, and we can't stop you. But you must stop anyway!"

After such a long record of success without hazard, the safety of the overflights was obviously taken for granted. This was perhaps an error of judgment on the eve of the summit. But it was not an unnatural error, on the order of not turning of the electricity to prevent short circuits when unusually inflammable materials are temporarily in a house.

The Soviets captured the U-2, in any case, because some sort of quite unforeseeable mechanical failure caused the plane to lose about half its normal operating altitude, and thus to come within reach of the Soviet air defense system. Clearly, any needless airing of names and facts in this first, purely operational part of the U-2 story will be both fruitless and flatly contrary to sound precedent in matters having to do with that unpleasant necessity, espionage.

As for part two of the U-2 story, this is the part which contains the explanation of the American government's reaction to the Soviet announcement that the U-2 and its pilot had been captured. The disclosure of the U-2 projects, the public proof of the overflights, did the U. S. little harm and considerable compensating good abroad. But very great harm was done by the way the American government reacted to this disclosure, with a series of ill-digested and contradictory statements.

It may be historically interesting to find out who prepared what draft of which statement. But public breast-beating about the sudden maladroitness of our own diplomacy at a moment of acute international importance will certainly serve no practical purpose. It will also greatly increase the harm already done.

Just as the executive branch needs to learn that it does not always have to make a statement, the Congress should remember that it does not always have to make an investigation. Such, at any rate, is the prayer of our friends abroad.

Los Angeles Sweeps Three-Game Series With Pirates

Don Drysdale Stops Buccos On Five Hits

Three Home Runs Deal Jim Umbricht His Second Loss

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Don Drysdale, backed by three home runs, set down the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 on five hits to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a clean sweep of a three-game series.

Rocky Nelson, who came into the lineup to replace slumping first baseman Dick Stuart, denied Drysdale a shutout when he led off in the ninth with his first home run of the season.

The Dodgers nailed down the victory with a run in the eighth inning when Charley Neal singled off Paul Giel, stole second and scored on Demeter's double.

In going down to their third straight defeat, the Pirates fanned seven times before Drysdale's assortment of fast balls and curves.

Roberto Clemente, the league's leading hitter, attempted to sustain a ninth-inning threat when he singled following Nelson's homer but Smoky Burgess flied out, Billl Virdon struck out and Mazeroski grounded out.

Bosox Snap Losing Skein

Defeat Athletics In 5 To 3 Contest

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—The Boston Red Sox snapped a ten-game losing streak Wednesday, defeating the Kansas City Athletics, 5-3.

The Red Sox collected 11 hits off three Kansas City pitchers, but Boston Manager Billy Jurges had to use five pitchers to halt a late inning uprising by the Athletics.

Billy Monbouquette was coasting along on a three-hit shutout with a 3-0 lead until Kansas City began to rally. Whitey Herzog led off the seventh inning with a single, Marv Throneberry doubled, and pinch - hitter Dick Williams singled to cut Boston's lead to 3-2 and send Monbouquette to the showers.

Tom Sturdivant came on to pitch to Andy Carey and walked him on five pitches. Then Jurges called for lefthander Ted Bowsfield who forced Jerry Lumpe to ground out and end the rally.

Moore Wins TKO Over Besmanoff

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Ageless Archie Moore, so far overweight the fat hung over his trunks in rolls, fought himself into condition in the ring Wednesday night and stopped Willi Besmanoff with a technical knockout win at 1:32 of the tenth round.

Moore had to get off the canvas to win since the former German heavyweight champion drove him to one knee, with a surprised look on his face, with a solid right hook in the second round.

But Moore, the world champion at 175 pounds, squared back in the fifth round and then got vengeance in the ninth. Early in the fifth Besmanoff slipped to both knees when he missed a punch, but shortly thereafter Moore caught him with a right hook in a flurry and sent him sprawling on the seat of his pants.

Moore entered the ring at 206½ pounds, the second heaviest weight he has ever carried into action in 208 pro fights. Compared to him in appearance Besmanoff, at 198½ pounds, was slim and taut, and 16 years younger at 27.

Francona's Hit Wins In Eleventh

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Tito Francona's 11th - inning single gave the Cleveland Indians a 1-0 victory over the Washington Senators Wednesday night and broke up a brilliant pitching duel between Jim Perry and Bill Fischer.

Perry gave up eight hits in winning his third game against two victories while Fischer allowed only seven in absorbing his first loss.

Jim Piersall led off the last of the 11th with a single and advanced to second on Ken Aspromonte's single. Piersall moved to third on Harvey Kuenn's infield out and came home on Francona's single to center.

The Senators had a chance to win in th 10th when Faye Throneberry walked and Fischer advanced him to second on a pop bunt that went over Vic Power's head at first base. Billy Gardner then singled to right field and Jose Valdivielso, who was running for Throneberry, was thrown out at the plate by Kuenn.

Optimists Hand ODC Third Loss

Howard Reynolds Victor In 12-0 Win

The Cumberland Optimists, behind the three-hit pitching of freshman righthander Howard Reynolds, blanked the Outdoor Club, 12-0, yesterday on the Mason Road diamond to score their third consecutive Hot Stove Baseball League victory. Reynolds fanned nine in going the route for his second win.

The win enabled the Optimists to tie for first place in the circuit with the unbeaten Lions who also have won three straight. The loss was the third in a row for the ODC who have yet to win a game.

Reynolds helped his own cause by banging out a single and a two-run homer which capped a five-run rally for the Optimists in the fifth inning. Ed Martin also smacked a circuit clout with two aboard in the fifth. Dump Wallace had a triple and single and Bill Rawnley banged out a two-bagger and a single for the winners.

Only batter for the ODC to give Reynolds trouble was Merkle who had a triple and a single. The losing pitcher was Denny Smith.

Wellersburg Upends Cresaptown, 13-10

Bobby Stewart was the pitching and hitting star for Wellersburg, relieving Huffman in the first inning after Cresaptown had hit three successive home runs by Ferrone, Burke and Rice. Stewart stopped the Eagles on four hits over the last five innings and struck out eight. He also collected a three-run homer in the third and three singles in four trips to the plate. Bittner had three hits for the victors.

Kirkland Leads Attack In 5-1 Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The league - leading San Francisco Giants made the most of a homer double and single by Willie Kirkland and five-hit pitching by Mike McCormick to defeat Philadelphia, 5-1, Wednesday night for their fifth straight win over the Phillies in a game halted by rain at the end of eight innings.

Willie McCovey hit his 10th homer of the season to open the ninth, but it was washed out when rain halted play as the Phils came to bat in their half. The game was called after a 45-minute delay.

Kirkland homered off loser Robin Roberts (1-5) in the second inning after a single by McCovey and then doubled off rookie Chris Short in the eighth to score Orlando Cepeda with the Giants' fourth run.

Reds Deal Frostburg Fourth Loss

Dorcel Kline Gets Five Bingles For Barrelville Nine

The Centerville Reds dealt Frostburg its fourth consecutive loss in the Pen Mar Baseball League yesterday, beating the Merchants 9-3 at Centerville. The win was the third for Centerville.

Barrelville's Old Exports made it four wins in five games with a 5-2 triumph over Salisbury in a darkness-shortened game at Salisbury while Hyndman's Merchants had an easy time defeating Flintstone on the Pennsylvanians' diamond, 11-3, in other league encounters.

Mel Nee's Centerville nine belted three pitchers for 10 hits including a pair of doubles by Jim Zembower and two singles each by Dave Rose and Mervin Rose.

Homer Rose pitched six innings to gain the verdict over Jim Reed. Pete Deremer finished up for Centerville in a game called in the bottom of the eighth because of darkness.

Top hitters for Frostburg were Bob Keister, Junie Perry and Petkover who each obtained two hits.

At Salisbury the Old Exports broke a 2-2 deadlock in the seventh inning with a pair of runs which gave Barrelville its fourth win while handing Salisbury its third defeat.

Dave Richards poured the third strike by 16 Salisbury batsmen and allowed only six hits in an eight-inning game which was called because of darkness.

Jim Robertson started for Salisbury and was relieved in the fourth by Don Carey who absorbed the loss. Dorcel Kline banged out five consecutive hits in five trips to the plate to spark the 11-hit Barrelville assault. Galen McGregor and Don Glass each had two bingles for the winners.

Glass opened the winning rally in the seventh for Barrelville with a single and went to second on a fielder's choice. He scored on Kline's single and a two-out error plated Kline later in the inning.

Fred Harris had two of Salisbury's six hits.

Flintstone was held to four hits by Jim Leydig and Vohn Lehman with Lehman picking up the win in relief when Hyndman rallied for three runs in the sixth to snap a 3-3 tie.

Ray Morgart had a double and triple, Candy Lowery smacked out three hits and had four runs batted in and Lehman collected a double for Hyndman. Lou Fabbri's homer in the fourth was the big blow for Flintstone. The scores:

Eagles Whip Purple Heart

Rally To Score Shuffle Victory

The Frostburg Eagles rallied in the final three games to defeat Purple Heart and gain the semi-finals of the Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League.

The Eagles, trailing by 31 points after the first three games Monday night, came back last night to win all three games and outpoint the Purple Heart, 88 to 40. The comeback enabled the Frostburg team to win by 17 points, 140-123.

The Cumberland Owls, leading the Hi Dee Bar, 73-60, also played last night, but no report was made on the results.

The Golden Nugget and Ruth's Tavern drew byes into the semi-finals in the six-team playoffs this year.

B. LaPorta was the high scorer for the Eagles last night with 23 points. Virchie McFarland had 12 for the losers.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Welterweight Champion Don Jordan of Los Angeles and challenger Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba have signed a private agreement for a return match in the event Jordan loses in their 15-round title fight Friday night.

The agreement, disclosed Wednesday, may come as a jolt to the National Boxing Assn., which frowns severely on return match clauses.

Work To Curb Heart Attacks At Candlestick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A plan to curb heart attacks at Candlestick Park, home of the San Francisco Giants, was announced by the police department Wednesday.

A new parking facility will be built on Jamestown Avenue so baseball fans with heart or other ailments will have only a 50-foot walk.

The present long, uphill climb to the stadium entrance has been blamed for six fatal heart attacks since the stadium opened.

Buck Lai, Long Island University basketball coach, is the son of Bill (Buck) Lai who once had a baseball tryout with the New York Giants.

MacKay Loses Quarter-Finals

Ousted By Sirola In Paris Tourney

PARIS (UPI) — Barry MacKay, America's lone hope in the men's singles of the French international tennis championships, was ousted in the quarter-finals Wednesday by Orlando Sirola of Italy, 6-3, 15-13, 6-4.

MacKay was top-seeded. Sirola was not seeded.

Luis Ayala of Chile qualified for the semi-finals by beating Manuel Santana of Spain, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2. He joined Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy who qualified Monday.

The semi-finals will pit Robert Haillet of France, who upset Neale Fraser of Australia on Monday, against Pietrangeli and Ayala against Sirola.

Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., is the only American remaining in the tournament, having qualified in the women's singles along with Miss Maria Esther Bueno of Brazil last Monday. They meet in the semi-finals.

Yola Ramirez of Mexico joined them Wednesday by defeating Betty Abbas of France 6-0, 6-4. Sandra Reynolds of South Africa also entered the semi-finals, downing Vera Puzejova of Czechoslovakia, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

MacKay, the United States' key Davis Cup hope, appeared tired and play far below par in losing Wednesday to the tall Sirola.

Named For Derby

LONDON (AP)—Twenty-five final acceptors were named Wednesday for the Epsom Derby, the 1½-mile classic for 3-year olds to be run next Wednesday.

The value of the race to the winner, after entrance and acceptance fees have been deducted, will be $92,663.

58 Pros Qualify For Speedway Festival Open

Verwey Has 68 As Six Break Par

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — With race cars roaring right through the center of the course, some 58 pros Wednesday qualified for the $50,000 Invitational 500 Festival Open, starting Thursday.

They joined 92 exempted pros for one of the strongest play-for-pay fields of the year, the lure being a $9,000 winner's swag, not to mention $4,600 for second, $3,000 for third and $2,600 for fourth.

While those who qualified Wednesday, including Gary Player's handsome young brother-in-law, Bob Verwey of Johannesburg, are not quite as temperamental as their exempted brethren, they underwent some real nerve-twanging.

That's what happened as carburetor tests were held on the speedway track in preparation for Monday's Memorial Day 500-mile race.

The speedway course, a 6,605-yard, par 71 layout, was built 31 years ago to utilize the racing plant's rambling acres. It is perhaps the only golf course in the world which is cut in half by a race track.

Verwey, 19, fired 3-under-par 68 in Wednesday's qualifying round, closely followed by Ed Langert of Minneapolis, former NAIA champ while attending Lamar Tech of Beaumont, Tex. Langert had a 70.

A total of six qualifiers broke par 71. Besides Berway they included five shooters at 70; Langford; Bill Krause, San Mateo, Calif.; Don Street, Muncie, Ind.; J.C. Gossie, Knoxville, Tenn., and amateur Ronnie Atwell of Indianapolis.

All of the year's top money winners are entered, including Arnold Palmer, Dow Finsterwald, Ken Venturi, Jerry Barber, Julius Boros, Jack Fleck, Billy Casper.

Cochran Only U.S. Golfer In British Tourney

Ralph Morrow Loses In Fourth Round

PORTRUSH, Northern Ireland (AP)—Graying Bob Cochran became the only American to make the last 16 in the British Amateur Golf Championship Wednesday when he shrugged off the rain and decisively defeated two men half his age.

The 47-year-old St. Louis businessman—now the oldest player in the field—stroked his way around Portrush with faultless grace in appalling weather conditions.

He scored identical 5 and 4 victories over Brian Pitchford of England and Ian Meneely of Ireland.

An off line drive at the 16th sent Ralph Morrow of Oklahoma City crashing to defeat in the fourth round, 1-up to John McErvel of Northern Ireland.

This was a heartbreaker for the 25-year-old U.S. airman first class. It came after he scored the major upset of the tournament in the morning third round by eliminating Scotland's Reid Jack, 5 and 4.

Six Americans from an original contingent of 26 began play Wednesday morning. Only two of them, Cochran and Morrow, survived to reach the fourth round in the afternoon, and now only Cochran is left.

One of the biggest surprises of the morning came when Tim Holland of Ronkville Center, N.Y., lost at the 19th hole to England's Brian Chapman. Holland had been among the favorites to take the title. He lost out when a short putt stopped on the lip of the cup.

Other Americans eliminated in the third round were:

Donald J. Dawson, Detroit, beaten 2 and 1 by Bill Pierce of England.

Major Hiram Snowden of Savannah, Ga., beaten 5 and 4 by John Duncan of Ireland.

Final '500' Workout Held

Record Pace Seen In Speedway Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-ranking drivers in Monday's 500-mile auto race tuned their engines Wednesday at speeds around 144 miles an hour in the final workout permitted before the Memorial Day grind.

Sensational Jim Hurtubise had to skip the session. Chief mechanic Danny Oakes tore down the car's engine after Hurtubise set a 10-mile qualifying record of 149.056 miles an hour last Sunday.

Rathmann set a record of 140.146 for the first 75 miles last year and Ward's record average for the full distance was 135.857.

Most of the cars this year are equipped with the built-in air jacks to speed up pit stops. Crews practicing Wednesday afternoon were replacing tires in less than 25 seconds.

Davis Is Safe At York, Pa.

YORK, Pa. (UPI)—Dave Davis, star shot-putter from San Fernando Valley College, turned up safe here Wednesday after being "missing" since Saturday.

The 22-year-old, 255-pound athlete, who was last seen in an exhibition at Lincoln, ..eb., said he had been hitch-hiking here to train under Bob Hoffman, a weight-lifting expert, for the coming NCAA track meet.

Hot Stove Games

Today, B'nai B'rith plays the Jaycees at Fort Hill Field and the Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club, both with 2-0 records, do battle at Mason Road Field. "Play Ball" will be called at 5:30 p. m.

Ronnie Evans Blanks Bruce, AHS Wins 7-0

Campers Maintain County Title Hopes

Ronnie Evans pitched and batted the Allegany High Campers to a 7-0 victory over Bruce High's Bulldogs in an Allegany County Baseball League game yesterday at Campobello.

The husky righthander chalked up his third win of the campaign for Coach Chet Payne's Campers, allowing only a first-inning single in blanking the visitors. He struck out eight.

The win enabled the Campers to remain on the heels of the league-leading Fort Hill Sentinels (11-1), trailing the Fort Hillians by 1½ games with a 9-2 mark.

Bob Bishop and Evans clouted home runs to lead the Campers' 11-hit attack with Ronnie's belt coming with the sacks loaded in the fifth inning. Bishop hit a solo blast in the fourth to give Allegany a 2-0 lead.

Evans also had a single while Mike Hadra and Ted Femi also had two hits for the winners. One of Femi's blows was a double. The box:

cars love SHELL

Why do so many of the liveliest cars on the road use a Shell gasoline with TCP? One clue is that Shell is America's largest supplier of commercial aviation fuels (we have been for 10 years). And many of Shell's aviation developments have been carried over into Shell gasolines. TCP* additive is just one of these developments. TCP neutralizes the combustion deposits which make engines run rough. Why not discover how smooth your car can run—how far you can go on a gallon? Your Shell dealer is the man to see.

Senators Sign Valo

Valo, who formerly played with the old Philadelphia Athletics, the Kansas City 'A's and the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be used primarily as a pinch-hitter.

Courtney's Hit Beats Chisox

Baltimore Remains In First, 3 To 2

CHICAGO (UPI) —Clint Courtney's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run Wednesday to give the league leading Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Orioles and the fourth successive loss for the faltering White Sox.

The win went to Chuck Estrada, his third win in four decisions.

Early Wynn went all the way for the second time this season and held the Orioles to seven scattered hits and two runs until the ninth.

Lary Again Beats Yanks

Detroit Is Victor By 9 To 3 Score

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers gave Frank Lary a four-run lead in the first inning Wednesday and the American League's most consistent "Yankee killer" pitched eight hit ball for a 9-3 victory and his 22nd triumph over New York.

The Tigers loaded the bases off starter Ralph Terry in the first on two walks and Neil Chrisley's single. Red Wilson drove in two runs with a double and two more came across on Frank Bolling's single.

Terry—who entered the game with a 2.19 earned run average, the lowest on the Yankee club—was chased in the third when Bolling doubled with the bases loaded for two more tallies. It was Terry's second loss in four decisions.

Two of New York's runs came on home runs by Roger Maris, one in the second and one in the ninth, his 8th and 9th of the season. The other came on singles by Gil McDougald, Bobby Richardson and Tony Kubek in the eighth.

Not Dead But Dying

HOLLYWOOD

I sat in the audience Sunday at NBC's Burbank color studios while the cast of the Dinah Shore Show worked off their dress-rehearsal jitters, kidding with the audience and with each other. The band worked on a lovely waltz bit. The singers fidgeted. The dancers danced a step or two. Dancers have a great advantage in these matters. They can loosen their muscles, while waiting. They don't tighten up like the singers.

The moment of tense expectancy communicates to the studio audience even before a dress rehearsal. Before air, it gets worse, feeding from the actors to the andience and back again, giving them that last shot of adrenalin. It's that little bit that makes the difference between live and film or tape. That's why all—well, almost all—the most memorable things ever done on television have been live, from Sid Caesar to Kefauver to McCarthy to "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

There should be a requiem for live television. As the orchestra struck up the opening of those deathless chords, "Drive Your Chevrolet through the U. S. A.," I felt I was watching the last rites of a dying art. The Dinah Shore show is live. Steve Allen is live. Virtually nothing else is. Except for the Jack Benny and Red Skelton shows and a few daytime programs originating there, CBS's huge Television City — now that "Playhouse 90" is practically dead — is almost deserted. It used to be a hive of great live dramas like "Playhouse 90" and "Climax." Even the soap operas — save for one—come from somewhere else.

Well, live TV is not entirely dead. Down the hall at Burbank, actors were already rehearsing for the opening mystery story which will replace the Dinah Shore Show next Sunday. It'll be live.

On stage, Art Carney was in the first sketch. He was playing a studio sweeper who longs to meet Dinah Shore. Suddenly a locker door stuck. One of those things that strike terror into the hearts of directors. It needn't. "This happened on the Gleason Show, once," said Carney, grinning like an imp. The door came unstuck. The rehearsal went on.

It was Miss Shore's last show of the season and it was a good one. Carney got every bit of fun out of the sweeper bit. He's at his best when the material is human, as this was. Miss Shore skylarked with Carney that was a little over long, and sang a duet, "Hallelujah," with Mahalia Jackson that was truly a rouser. The show ended with one of those NBC finishes — Miss Shore and other members of the cast rushing out to the parking lot to drive a passel of vari-colored Chevrolets off the lot in a scene shot from a helicopter. That NBC parking lot has had more exposure than any other parking lot on television.

I took Sunday night off to see a little review called "Vintage 60," which is a big hit here. It may come to New York, following the trail blazed by The Billy Barnes Revue a season ago. I love the revue form, with its opportunities for saying salty things about our life and civilization, and I deplore the fact that — like live TV — it is almost an extinct art form. The only revue on Broadway in many years has been "La Plume de Ma Tante," a French import, and the Billy Barnes Revue, which came from California, where the salt is a little different from New York salt.

"Vintage 60" is a lot of fun. About half the twenty-six songs and sketches have enough space and variety and originality for Broadway. The other half I think needs work, or ought to be cut entirely. There are, I should say, about seven numbers that make the whole evening worthwhile. One bit was about the Frank Sinatra worship out there and another one about the strong German element among our missile experts. It's a sort of trenchant social observation that is revue at its best. Still another sketch about the indestructible nature of some of our female movie stars is a little special, but it has the same sort of comment, and very funny.

"Vintage 60" also contains two really remarkable performers, Fay deWitt and Barbara Heller, both of whom can do anything from singing to pantomime. Miss Heller does a single — "Angry Young Girl" — which is evocative and original and funny and creative, all at once. It's a great number. Miss DeWitt does many things — a wildly funny bit as a compulsive woman telephone maniac, a touching a very funny single, "Dublin Town," among others. There were many other bright and talented young people in the show, I might add, and I hope they get their show to Broadway. A little pruning might be in order, first.

Gas Hearing Will Be June 22

The Maryland Public Service Commission has informed Mayor J Edwin Keech that a hearing will be held June 22 at 11 a. m. in Baltimore concerning the C&A Gas Company application for an increase in rates.

The hearing will be held in the PSC office, 301 West Preston Street, according to Albert L. Deen, executive secretary.

In March, the city had voiced concern over the proposed increase and accordingly wrote the SRC of its feelings.

QRC Slashes Red Tape

CHICAGO (UPI) — An item in the Defense Department's alphabet directory — — could spell the difference between victor and victim in a dramatic battle of the cold war.

An Air Force procurement official said QRC cuts red tape by providing a type of standing bid by specially qualified private firms.

When a chink in America's electronic armor threatens to leave the nation to sneak attack, QRC contractors are geared to provide quickly a new offensive weapon or counter-measure to an electronics breakthrough by a hostile power.

The QRC concept was pioneered by the Air Force and the Hallicrafters Co. of Chicago, which handles more than 85 per cent of Air Force calls under QRC.

Next to speed, a top consideration is economical development, operation and maintenance of the equipment, a Hallicrafters executive said.

Robert F. Halligan, Hallicrafters executive vice president and general manager, said the QRC contractor "must bear a share of responsibility for winning the economic cold war as well as the military cold war."

To cope with varied, highly specialized demands, the company employs more than 400 men on its engineering staff for electronic military equipment.

The military field, Halligan said, ranges from television, radar and jamming equipment to digital data transmission systems and navigational devices.

In a recent national survey, most Methodists replied that they do not consider Sunday golf-playing as sinful.

Texas has more than 45 thousand miles of state-maintained highways.

An estimated six per cent of all human accidents happen to the eyes.

County Planning Needs Near State Parks Cited

One of the many problems involved in county planning was called to the attention of the Allegany County Planning Commission this week by Joseph Wolney of Bel Air, chairman of the committee on park encroachment of the Maryland Division of the Isaak Walton League of America, Inc.

Mr. Wolney, in a three-page letter, called to the attention of the planning commission here that the Harford County Zoning Board of Appeals had granted a permit to allow the installation of three house trailers at the very edge of the new Susquehanna River State Park. These trailers will be used by weekend and vacation fishermen.

"If, because of present zoning classification, this trend be allowed to continue wherever it may occur by action of any county zoning or appeals board, then we are needlessly wasting some of the taxpayers' money in acquiring land for parks," Mr. Wolney wrote.

"No park can be fully developed to its maximum if park property lines are cluttered with trailers, shopping centers, commercial and industrial enterprises," he added.

The letter goes on to explain that Governor J. Millard Tawes on March 23 signed the Lee and Robinson House Bill 75, which becomes effective on June 1. He says this law goes a long way to help create the "open spaces" as defined. But it will not prevent a situation such as the three trailers. This is because the counties permit it by their present zoning classifications of areas adjacent to park property lines.

The only state park in Allegany County is the Dan's Mountain Recreation Area just east of Lonaconing.

County Commissioner John T. Mason, who is one of the five members of the County Planning Commission, received the Isaak Walton League letter. He will call it to the attention of the other members of the commission at tonight's meeting.

Marine Unit To Prepare For Summer Camp

Members of the local 43d Rifle Company, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, next week will begin preparation for the annual summer training session.

Captain Billy C. Menges, commanding officer of the local unit, said the company is tentatively scheduled to leave for Parris Island, S. C., on July 9 and return July 23.

Capt. Menges said the unit will begin to prepare for the annual training at its next scheduled drill on June 4 and 5.

He added the unit will fly on commercial airlines to Parris Island, rather than travel by train as was previously announced.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Sir Laurence Olivier, whose request for a divorce from Vivien Leigh put his private life in headlines everywhere, comes here in the fall to co-star with Spencer Tracy in "Judgment at Nuremberg" for Stanley Kramer. Coincidentally, Larry and Vivien were married in California, but when he returns this time he will be with the new charmer who has won his heart, Joan Plowright.

We will get a chance to see her as an actress as well as the future Lady Olivier because the play "Rhinoceros" in which they are currently appearing in London will play a local engagement.

It's after this that Olivier reports to Kramer for the war criminal trials picture, first going to Germany for eight weeks of shooting and then returning to Hollywood to complete the film. Larry's role is that of the presiding chief justice.

I don't believe there's any chance of Bob Evans returning to the garment industry in New York because both Darryl Zanuck and 20th Century-Fox have exercised their options on him. He's the only male actor Zanuck has ever signed to a personal contract, and Bob will play the role of Paul Radford in "The Chapman Report," which I regret will be made into a movie.

Bob also will have an important role in Jerry Wald's "Return to Peyton Place." Furthermore, handsome Mr. Evans is practically signed to play John Gilbert in "Laurette," Judy Holliday's Broadway show.

Just happened to meet Don Murray and his business partner Walter Wood when I was walking around the block. Don told me that they leave this week for St. Louis to confer with Father Dismas Clark, the hero of "The Hoodlum Priest" which Don will make in St. Louis.

"We have the financial backing," he said. "We'll release through United Aritsts, and we start shooting right after the Fourth of July. Father Clark is coming out here soon, and I want you to meet him. He took over a deserted school in St. Louis and made it into a home where criminals who have served their full term in prison can stay and be fed and helped to get jobs.

"Not one of these have turned back to their life of crime, although the record used to be 65 per cent of them went back to prison because no one would hire a man with a criminal record," Don said.

The snazzy flowered hat Jane Wyman wore when I saw her having dinner at Chasen's with Freddie Karger, she said had been sent to her by her daughter Maureen from New York.

"I'll be seeing Maureen soon," said Jane, "because I am going on tour with 'Pollyanna,' covering the same cities in the East that we covered when I went out on tour with you."

Janie leaves Thursday for San Francisco to attend the Kiwi Club convention, a get-together of former airline stewardesses who have married. From San Francisco Janie planes East. She will meet Mrs. Dave Chasen in New York and then after she finishes her tour she spends a few weeks with the Sonny Serblens in New Jersey. We won't be seeing Jane until June 19.

As soon as Audrey Hepburn is able to travel after the birth of her baby, she returns to Hollywood to get ready for "Breakfast at Tiffany's," her next picture. Producer Dick Shepherd tells me that he talked long distance with Audrey, and she has agreed to play Holly Golightly in "Tiffany's."

"My partner, Martin Jurow, and I will produce it in Hollywood," Dick told me. Good news to have another movie filmed here. "The plan now is to start "Breakfast at Tiffany's' in September, with Blake Edwards as director," he said. Audrey and Mel are talking about buying a house here.

Japanese legend says the art of flower arranging began in a remote time when priests gathered storm-strewn blossoms and placed them before Buddhist shrines. As the art grew in popularity, even the war-like Samurai took it up for relaxation.

Tito Gets Greetings

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev sent birthday greetings to Yugoslavian President Tito Wednesday, according to a Moscow radio broadcast monitored here.

The gesture came only one day after Moscow Radio broadcast a bitter attack on Yugoslavia, criticizing Tito for taking a lenient view of the U.S. spy plane incident.

Suggests Seeking Plan

BOSTON (UPI)—Dr. James R. Killian Jr., former scientific adviser to President Eisenhower, said Tuesday the United States should continue to seek a disarmament plan to avert world catastrophe.

He warned, though, that America's military and economic strength were "still the basic requirement to deter war" while seeking ways to disarm.

Reds Hit De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — The French Communist Party Wednesday appeared to be waging a new offensive against President Charles de Gaulle for his support of President Eisenhower in the U-2 plane incident.

In a return to their toughest cold war tactics, the Communists hit at de Gaulle with their bitterest attack since his return to power.

Kim Leaves Hospital

She entered the hospital May 11 for treatment of the virus ailment and has been ordered by her physician to remain in bed for an indefinite period.

Portugal is the world's leading cork producer.

Opening lead: King of ♠

Holding up with an ace at a no trump contract is an essential part of any player's dummy technique. However, there is such a thing as ducking too often. Observe today's hand where declarer got caught up in the rhythm.

West opened the king of spades, which declarer ducked. When East played the deuce, West knew it was not safe to continue the suit; so he was called upon to shift. Fortunately for his side, West was led by a hunch to choose the club suit. To some, a heart shift would have appeared more inviting, however. West led the seven of clubs and declarer again ducked. East won with the queen and returned the six of spades, and declarer had to play the jack which went to West's queen. West saw that it was time to abandon his own suit and continued with a club. This promoted a second club trick for East which, together with the two spades and the ace of hearts, sent the contract down to defeat.

In the choice of his ducking plays, South, to be sure, had been made victim of the whipsaw. It is true that, had he taken the first trick, he would have ridden to safety. But such play would have proved fatal if East had held only two spades, for the defense would then have cashed the ace of hearts and four spade tricks.

But when West shifted to the club, declarer's contract would have been secure had he employed the energy to reach across the table for the ace of clubs. Nine tricks would then become available to him by the simple expedient of driving out the ace of hearts. Five diamonds, two hearts, and two aces add up to nine, and the defense can do no better than cash the spade trick already in, the ace of hearts, and two clubs.

County Gets Water Complaints

A petition was received Tuesday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from a group of residents on Cash Valley Road concerning water drainage onto their property.

It was stated that the culvert which carries off the water from ditches along the road is too small to handle the flow in time of heavy rainfall such as the downpour last Sunday.

The matter was referred to Harry Skelly, roads supervisor.

Officers for the next school term will be installed. They are Mrs. Henry Pittman, president; and Francis Smith, treasurer. Outgoing officers are Mrs. Sarah Berry, president, and David Smith, treasurer.

McKeldin's In Nixon's Corner

McKeldin, expected to make several speeches on Nixon's behalf, Tuesday described the Vice President as a "young and intelligent man" who is "infinitely more liberal than he's getting credit for."

"He has eight years' experience in the White House and has President Eisenhower's blessing," said McKeldin, confirming that Nixon is his choice for the GOP presidential nomination.

McKeldin is expected to have a strong voice in the Maryland delegation to the Republican National Convention.

McKeldin expressed considerable admiration for Gov. Rockefeller of New York but said he is convinced Rockefeller was sincere when he declared himself out of the running.

State Arborists Hold Meeting Near Baltimore

The Maryland Arborist Association held a quarterly meeting Friday night at the Heritage House on Route 40 near Baltimore, according to Urner Wigfield, city, secretary.

Henry J. Carroll, Baltimore, state president, presided at the dinner and meeting, which was attended by 40 members of the recently organized association and some of their key employes.

Members of the Department of State Forests and Parks, headed by David Prince, and from the Department of Entomology of the University of Maryland, including Dr. George S. Langford and Dr. L. D. Weaver, attended.

Dr. Langford outlined plans the Southern Shade Tree Conference has for a meeting in Baltimore in February 1961 and asked the cooperation of the association.

Dr. Weaver showed a movie and discussed diseases of hemlock trees and other evergreen shrubbery, including methods of prevention and treatment of disease.

Plans were made to hold the next meeting at Williamsport August 12, when association members will be guests of the Braden J. Warrenfeltz tree expert organization.

The Maryland Arborist Association was formed last July 20 with the objective of improving the practice of tree preservation and care in Maryland.

Market Closes Irregular; Steels Under Pressure

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market was a mixed affair Wednesday—with pivotal steel, oil and motor shares under pressure and electronics, some aircrafts and scattered specials scoring widely.

Industrial stocks see-sawed narrowly all day, advancing only briefly at mid-session and then settling back to close with a modest loss.

Trading increased to 3,440,000 shares from 3,240,000 shares the day before. Of the 1,224 issues that crossed the tape, 544 declined, 44 to new lows, and 450 advanced, with 65 to new highs. It was the third consecutive session that the highs outnumbered the lows.

Steel executives attending the annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute were in agreement that an upturn in the operating rate isn't likely before the third quarter when the steel mills begin receiving auto industry orders for the 1961 model year.

Steel issues reacted with losses of around a point in U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Republic. In the autos, Ford fell more than a point, Chrysler ¾ and American Motors ⅜. General Motors tacked on a small fraction.

Airline Service May Resume

CAB Bureau Urges Five-Year 'Use-It-Or-Lose-It' Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Air Operations Wednesday took the first step toward possible resumption of airline service to Cumberland, Md.

The bureau tentatively recommended that Allegheny Airlines again be authorized to serve Cumberland for five years despite the city's inability to generate at least five passengers for each flight.

Bureau Counsel Monte Lazarus told a CAB hearing that unusual circumstances warranted resumption of the service. He said Allegheny was flying less than two flights daily into Cumberland at the time it abandoned the stop in February, 1959.

He said other circumstances would be brought out in testimony at a CAB investigation of temporary air service it authorized Allegheny to perform in eight Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware areas.

Allegheny Objects

Allegheny immediately expressed strong opposition to resuming the Cumberland service.

Allegheny is now serving only two of the eight areas for which temporary service certificates were granted in 1955 — Hazleton, Pa., and Wilmington, Del.

Lazarus recommended that the airline serve those two cities indefinitely but he opposed authorizing resumption of service to Easton-Cambridge, Md. unless unusual circumstances are disclosed during the current hearings.

Lost $26,000 In 1958

Albert W. Gotch of Rockville, Md., a consultant to Allegheny, said the airline lost $26,000 on its Cumberland operations in 1958. He said that deficit would climb to $28,000 if Allegheny were forced to serve Cumberland again.

Gotch said Cumberland supplied only about two passengers per day to the Allegheny system during the last five years the airline operated there.

He said Allegheny flights went 57 miles out of their way to serve Cumberland and in so doing substantially downgraded the quality of service to other points on that route.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall (R-Md) charged Allegheny with failing to provide adequate service when it operated in Cumberland.

"Allegheny made no effort to cater to the public during the years it operated in Cumberland," Beall declared. "Their cancellation of flights was one reason I stopped using Allegheny."

He said train service between Cumberland and Washington, although not as quick and as comfortable, was much more reliable than the airline.

Heskett Cites Overflights

Charles Z. Heskett, former city solicitor of Cumberland and former chairman of the Maryland Aviation Commission, said he finally went back to driving his car and riding the train because Allegheny failed on too many occasions to stop and pick up passengers as scheduled at Cumberland.

This occurred, he said, despite excellent flying weather.

Heskett said the real reason for overflying Cumberland was Allegheny's attempt to cut its running time and compete with Capital Airlines between Pittsburgh and Washington.

William C. Holbrook of Cumberland, chief pilot for the Kelly Springfield Tire Co., said he has never been forced to land at an alternate airport because of wind or air turbulence since he began using Cumberland airport eight years ago.

He said he has rarely observed any two-engine airplanes, except those owned by Allegheny, bypass Cumberland because of bad weather.

Lost Industry

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, said the city recently failed to attract a new industry to locate within its boundaries because it lacked air service.

The Cumberland service, if authorized, would be on a use it or lose it basis.

Capt. Harvey M. Thompson, director of flight operations for Allegheny, said the Cumberland airport is the least desirable from a pilot's standpoint of any field Allegheny serves.

It is encircled by high mountains, Thompson said, and when winds exceed 10 knots (about 12 miles an hour) it is frequently necessary to bypass Cumberland.

SHIRLEY CAPEL

Salvation Army To Commission Local Girl

Miss Shirley Capel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Capel, RFD 5, Triple Lakes, will be commissioned a lieutenant on Memorial Day at the Salvation Army School For Officers Training at Atlanta, Ga., according to Captain Fred Orentor.

After her commissioning Monday, Lt. Capel will be sent to an assignment somewhere within the 15-state southern territory.

While in training, Miss Capel was a member of the Songsters and Band. Her studies included the Bible, church history, social work, first aid, bookkeeping, Salvation Army doctrine, public speaking, public relations and lectures on various subjects.

Miss Capel was graduated from Allegany High School in 1958.

Md. Education Board To Meet In Frostburg

The Maryland State Board of Education will meet June 6 at Frostburg State Teachers College, R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college, announced last night.

During the twofold meeting at Frostburg next month, the board members will meet with public school superintendents from throughout Maryland.

Teacher education and the revival of college football at Frostburg will be discussed at the June meeting.

Football was started at the former Frostburg Normal School in 1902, but in later years was dropped as a competitive sport.

William H. "Uncle Bill' Lewis of Frostburg was center on the 1903 team which went undefeated. That year 20 young men were enrolled at the college, 15 of whom played on the football team.

The players had no helmets or padding and the only protection was nose guards they wore. Today there are 400 young men who are among more than 800 students enrolled at the college.

State Troopers Are Promoted

Tfc. Blair J. Buckle, Grantsville, has been promoted to the rank of corporal.

Two troopers were advanced to trooper first class. They are Willis E. Foreman, 1018 Lexington Avenue, and Bernard J. Chabot, of Eckhart.

Trooper Carlton Lewis, local resident now working out of Waterloo, has been promoted to trooper first class.

Sgt. Culp Retires

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The retirement of Sgt. R. C. Culp, Buckhannon, from the State Police was announced Wednesday by Supt. Hazen H. Fair.

Culp, 46, presently is stationed at Martinsburg. His retirement is effective June 12.

RC Official Speaker At Chapter Meet

United Nations Team Experiences Cited

Richard E. Tomlin, assistant director of disaster services for the 16 states comprising the Eastern area of the American National Red Cross, was guest speaker last night during the annual dinner meeting of the Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross at the Cumberland Country Club.

Mr. Tomlin was delayed in arriving here yesterday afternoon since he was at the Chilean Embassy in Washington D. C. working out details for relief measures for millions of homeless in southern Chile in the wake of earthquakes and tidal waves which left a death toll of 2,000 in that country in recent days.

During his talk last night he touched on international aspects of the Red Cross and related personal experiences in Korea, when he was a member of the United Nations Joint Red Cross team.

He spoke in connection with Red Cross activities in behalf of Americans who were and still are prisoners in Red China.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards to volunteer workers in the county chapter who have worked in various activities during the past year.

C. M. Sanner, chairman of the board of directors, presided at the meeting, at which time there was an election of members of the Board for a three-year term.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the chapter's memorial committee, gave a report on the Jane Legge Memorial. A brief memorial service honored three persons active in Red Cross work who died in the past year.

They are Mrs. Legge, executive secretary for three years; Mrs. J. C. Cobey, former Frostburg branch chairman, and Mrs. Arthur Hoffa, branch chairman at Barton.

Invocation was by Rev. Levi Zeigler, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Westernport, who also gave benediction. Ralph Webster gave the secretary's report and Robert Little Elbert the treasurer's report. He also gave the report of the nominating committee.

Mrs. Robert Gerson, chairman of volunteers, presented service awards and Karl Perry paid tribute to first aid activities, a phase of the Red Cross work for the past half century.

Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive chairman of the county chapter, said the program committee included Mrs. William Ryan, chairman, Mrs. C. A. List, Mrs. Kathleen Todd and Rev. Mr. Zeigler.

Two Towns Grow, Four Smaller

Two Allegany County incorporated towns have grown in population since 1950, while four others have declined, according to preliminary figures from the 1960 Decennial Census.

Westernport increased from 3,431 in 1950 to 3,561 this year, and Barton is up from 695 to 823.

Frostburg dropped from 6,876 to 6,710, Midland from 889 to 732, Lonaconing from 2,289 to 2,052, and Luke from 820 to 585.

George R. Hughes, district census supervisor, announced the new figures yesterday, emphasizing that they are preliminary only.

"Final figures will not be available for some months," he said.

"In the meantime, a detailed and thorough verification process will be undertaken by the Bureau of the Census. While no major change is anticipated, verification will result in some adjustment," he pointed out.

Census figures for Cumberland, announced only last week, show a 10-year decline from 37,679 in 1950 to 33,260 this year.

House Is Damaged By Smoke

Two local fire companies were called out last night when a basement fire caused considerable smoke damage to a two-story frame dwelling at 138 Reynolds Street.

The firemen are investigating the cause of the fire, which originated near the furnace.

Firemen from East Side station got an initial call at 6:41 p. m. and four minutes later they called Central station for assistance.

The smoke was so dense in the house that the firemen had to don masks to enter the dwelling. The East Side pumper pulled up alongside the house and used water from the truck.

Central laid about 500 feet of hose from a hydrant on Reynolds Street but did not charge the line. The home was locked up at the time and no one was home.

Firemen entered the building through a rear window and doused the flames.

Thruway Unit To Be Dedicated Without Tawes

Gov. J. Millard Tawes, who planned to attend the dedication tomorrow morning of the first phase of the Cumberland Thruway in South End will be unable to be here due to illness and a pending intestinal operation on June 8.

He will be represented by Thomas B. Finan, secretary of state. Also scheduled to take part in the dedication are John B. Funk, chairman of the State Roads Commission; John J. McMullen, member of the SRC; Mayor J. Edwin Keech, other city officials and county officials.

The ceremony will be held at 11 a. m. according to John D. Bushby, District Six engineer for the SRC, who said the section of Thruway will be open for the busy traffic this weekend.

The governor was scheduled to be operated on this week but it was postponed due to a cold.

State To Train Teachers For High Schools

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Board of Education Wednesday approved a curriculum plan for state teachers colleges which will qualify graduates to teach in high schools.

Previously, the colleges have concentrated on elementary school teacher preparation. They left to the universities and liberal arts colleges the task of training teachers for the upper grades.

The board, with President Jerome Framptom Jr. presiding, took the action at its regular meeting in the State Office Building.

"Actually, teachers colleges have been preparing many students for senior high school teaching but it hasn't been official," said Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College.

Rivals Warfield Report

The board's move obviously takes wind out of the sails of the Warfield Commission, which suggested a few weeks ago that the University of Maryland take over three teachers colleges and emphasize more liberal arts programs. The commission also suggested three other liberal arts colleges should be established in an ambitious expansion program designed to meet heavy future enrollment.

Gov. Tawes, who named the commission under Edwin Warfield III of Howard County, approved the broad outline of the report, and the University Board of Regents endorsed it.

But officials of state teacher colleges firmly rejected the proposal and Framptom, as president of the Board of Trustees of the State Teachers Colleges, blasted it as unworkable and harmful to the future teacher program.

Dr. Thoms G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, also was strongly opposed to the Warfield report on that point.

Curriculum Outlined

As okayed by the board, the proposed degree requirements call for 61 semester hours in certain basic fields.

These include 14 in English, 18 in mathematics and natural science. Other required courses include art and music, physical education, health education, psychology and philosophy.

A student aiming at a teaching career would take 30 hours in professional education courses and 37 in a special field.

That would make a total of 128 semester hours needed for graduation.

Donald Propst Is Winner Of City Marbles Tourney

Fourteen-year-old Donald Propst of 102 Altamont Terrace yesterday afternoon knuckled down and shot his way to the city marbles championship in a tournament held at Gephart School playground.

The eighth grader from Fort Hill High School won three straight games in the semi-finals of the tournament, sponsored by the Cumberland Lions Club in cooperation with the Cumberland Recreation Department.

Runner-up in the contest was George Showalter of Centre Street School. Other league winners were Robert Powell of Allegany High School and Frank Watson of St. Mary's School.

Rev. Ralph E. Burnette, chairman of the youth committee of the Lions Club, was on hand to present awards to the four top finalists.

He gave credentials to young Propst which entitled him to an all-expense trip to Wildwood-by-the-Sea, N. J., where he will compete in the national finals beginning June 19.

Young Propst is a member of Boy Scout Troop 7 and in 1956 was marbles champion at East Side School where he was active in playground projects. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Counihan.

In the semi-finals Propst, representing League III, won three straight games from Showalter, who represented League II.

When Showalter played against Powell of League I he won two out of three games. Propst won two straight over Watson who represented League IV.

About 200 parents and teachers and youngsters looked on as the young mibsters shot their way through the tournament.

C. Eugene Mason, recreation director, and Mrs. Eva M. Hogan, assistant rec director, assisted in the city finals yesterday.

Ridgeley High Plans Exercises

"Your Future Is What You Make It" will be the subject of the address to the 44 senior of Ridgeley High School by Dr. Leonard M. Davis, assistant professor of speech at West Virginia University, tonight at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Two student speakers also will be heard. Thomas Benson will deliver the valedictory address and Barbara Johnson the salutatory address.

Diplomas will be presented by Charles E. Shepherd, a member of the Mineral County Board of Education. Awards will be presented by M. M. Heiskell, school principal.

Firemen To Collect Coin Containers

Coin containers distributed earlier this year by the Ridgeley Volunteer Fire Company, will be collected by volunteers beginning at 11 a. m. Saturday.

Fire Chief Leo Rice said about eight volunteers will fan out through Ridgeley and Carpenters Addition to collect the containers. The proceeds are used for purchasing new equipment for the company.

C&P Rate Hike Unjustified, Says Counsel

Cites 52 Per Cent Rise Since 1945

By JOHN A. LUNDQUIST

BALTIMORE (AP) — People's counsel for the Public Service Commission tried to show Wednesday that rate hikes granted during the past 15 years don't justify a further 10 per cent increase in telephone bills.

Flat rates for a private home phone have gone up 52 per cent to $7.60 since 1945 and party line, limited-call phones are up 34 per cent to $4.60, Rudolf A. Carrico pointed out.

Carrico questioned Griffin Morrel, vice president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in cross-examination of the utility's pending rate increase request before the PSC. The hearing was the first after several weeks' suspension, and two other company representatives testified before the next session was set for Thursday.

Does He "Suffer" Or Not?

Pointing out the wide difference in percentage stepups of the rates, Carrico asked, "Doesn't it follow that the person who tries to economize by subscribing to a cheaper service has suffered the greater increase?"

"I don't think he is suffering when he can make 45 calls a month for only $4.60," replied Morrel.

People's counsel also noted that a credit rating service had given the C&P a triple-A on its bond credit, the highest awarded. He said that showed the firm, Moody's, thought very highly of the utility's earnings capacity.

But Morrel said that wasn't a proper comparison.

"You're talking about profit on the one hand and interest on debentures on the other," he told Carrico.

Where Profits Go

"A substantial portion of your profits go to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.," Carrico said.

"Yes," replied Morrel, "but 9 million dollars comes back to the state of Maryland in the form of dividends to stockholders. There are 32,000 of them here."

Carrico said the utility's total employes had dropped from 11,317 in 1957 to 10,417 in 1959, or about 8 per cent. Yet, he added, the number of phones in service in the state was up 11 per cent to 1,200,733. Why fewer employes when the total of phones went up? Carrico asked.

"If we had to increase the number of employes every time we got an increase the rates would be awful, awful high," said Morrel.

The company has based its request for a 13½ million dollar increase (more than half of which would be in taxes), on higher cost of labor and materials and need for expanding capital improvements.

Gifts To Charity

In another jibe, Carrico wanted to know if a C&P customer wasn't in effect paying the costs of any charitable organizations the company contributed to.

"The rate payer pays all the proper expenses of the company," Morrel acknowledged, adding, "That's true in any business. We make contributions for good will and that's a very proper expense."

Also testifying Wednesday on cross-examination were E. K. Patten, general staff supervisor, and W. N. Rosser, staff engineer. The testimony was largely on technical matters.

At the beginning of the hearings, Baltimore attorney Hyman Pressman withdrew as a protestant against the C&P proposal. He especially had attacked the company's policy of charging monthly rates for service and equipment which allegedly had long been paid for. His own extension phone at home was an example, Pressman had declared.

But Wednesday he said he was withdrawing his motion. He said he realized if the PSC agreed with him, it could mean a shift in rates "from people who could better afford to pay to those who could less afford to pay."

Man Paroled In Jobless Fraud

A Frostburg man yesterday was found guilty of making false statements to obtain unemployment benefits and was given a 30-day suspended sentence in the County Jail.

The man, Paul H. Bittinger, of 233 Welsh Hill, Frostburg, was given a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court before Magistrate Paul W. Barnett and was found guilty of falsely obtaining $[illegible] in unemployment benefits.

Magistrate Barnett gave Bittinger a 30-day suspended sentence and placed him on probation for two years. Bittinger also was ordered to make restitution.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald W. Mason presented the case for the state and Bittinger was represented by Edward J. Ryan, local attorney.

Small Nations Take Spotlight In Spy Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union, faced with certain defeat, Wednesday delayed a showdown in the U.N. Security Council over condemnation of the United States for spy plane flights.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said he wanted more time for a summing-up speech on his demand that the Council brand the United States an aggressor. The move made a vote impossible before Thursday.

Only the Soviet Union and Communist Poland were counted as yes votes. Seven others were opposed. Tunisia and Ceylon, the two neutral nations on the Council, were expected to abstain.

There was speculation that Gromyko wanted to study President Eisenhower's report to the nation Wednesday night on the Paris summit conference before making a final speech.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had hoped for a vote Wednesday. But Gromyko held the key to the timing, since the Council was debating his resolution against the United States.

Lodge was set to reply to Gromyko before a Council vote.

Smaller Nations Air Views

The smaller nations — Tunisia, Ecuador and Ceylon — took over the spotlight in Wednesday's debate. Those three, along with Argentina, are sponsoring a resolution urging the Big Four to resume negotiations on major East-West issues with the help of the United Nations.

Tunisia's Mongi Slim made no direct mention of the resolution expected to be introduced after disposal of the Soviet complaint.

But he pleaded for resumption of big-power negotiations in order to head off a full-scale return of the cold war.

He said the incident of the American U2 spy plane flight over the Soviet Union May 1 should not be classified as an aggressive action "since the essential elements which characterize aggression are missing from it."

For this reason, he added, he could not vote for the Soviet resolution.

Correa Speaks For Ecuador

Ambassador Jose A. Correa of Ecuador called upon the Soviet Union not to press its resolution to a vote.

Referring indirectly to the four-nation resolution, Correa expressed hope the Soviet Union would "deecide to cooperate by a conciliatory action that will open a new role for collective security."

He said the international situation was such that a mistake could touch off a terrible war.

He said Ecuador objected to the Soviet resolution because it calls for condemnation of the United States without taking in the whole picture of espionage, and that it is based on the premise that the United States has aggressive intentions.

Rockefeller Would Run If Draft Choice

But N. Y. Governor Says Chances Look Slim At Moment

The New York State Republican organization, however rallied behind the governor and agreed its 96-vote delegation would go to the GOP National Convention uncommitted to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon is the party's only declared candidate and, by an unofficial count, now has more than enough delegate votes to win the nomination.

May Attend Convention

In Washington, Nixon's press secretary said the vice president would have no direct comment on Rockefeller's statement. But the press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, added: "The vice president has always made it clear that he would welcome any competition for the nomination."

The strategy of Rockefeller and New York Republicans is keyed to the possibility, however remote, that something will happen between now and the July convention in Chicago to cause the party to shift from Nixon to Rockefeller.

Rockefeller reopened the door for his leading the New York delegation to the convention. He had said he would not attend, because he wanted to avoid any attempts to draft him as the vice-presidential candidate.

Rockefeller said he would go to Chicago at the head of the delegation if he could get firm guarantees from Republican national leaders that no attempt would be made to draft him for the second spot on the GOP ticket.

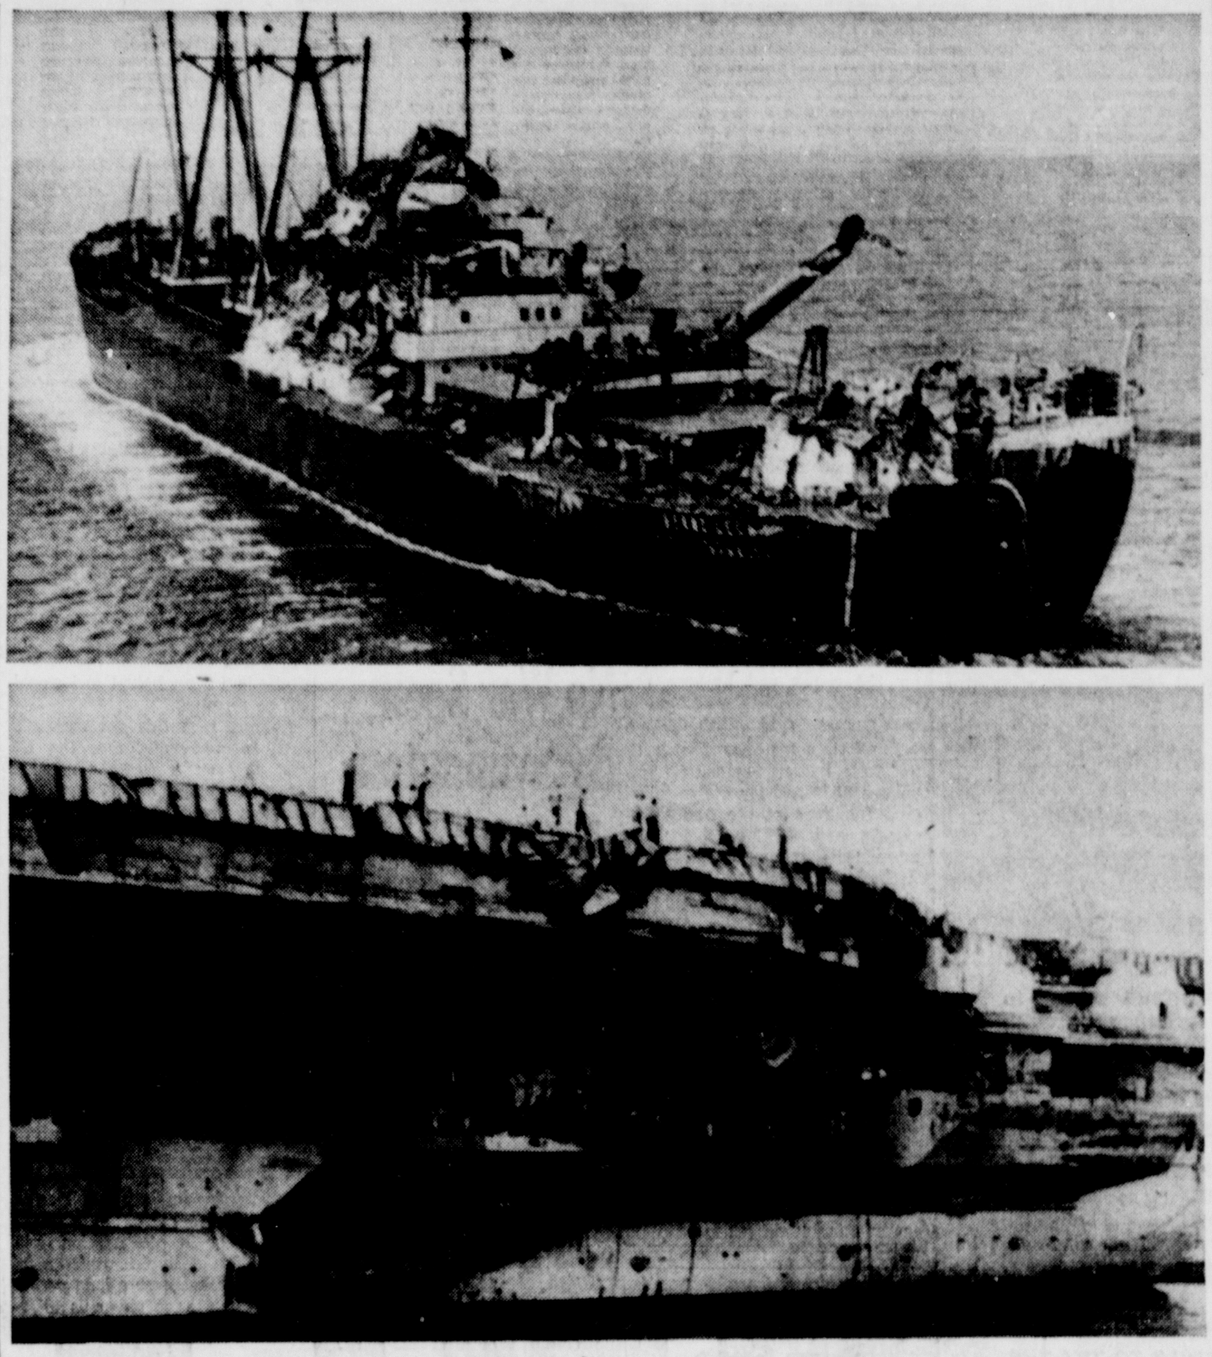
Huddle Cited By State GOP

The governor explained his position at a meeting of the executive committee of the state Republican organization, and then at a meetin of GOP county chairmen.

The meeting had been called in an attempt to clarify the GOP political situation in New York. Some of the state's county chairmen had protested against leaders' demands that they remain neutral in a one-man race.

Asked what he had said at the closed-door meeting, Rockefeller told a news conference he had informed the GOP leaders that, "If there were a draft for the presidency, that, in all candor, I would accept."

But he added that the nomination of Nixon "obviously is to be expected" in the light of delegate pledges elsewhere to the vice president.



German Ship, U.S. Carrier Damaged In Collision

The German freighter Bernd Leonhardt (top) steams slowly up Chesapeake Bay toward Baltimore bearing the scars of her collision early yesterday with the aircraft carrier Saratoga (bottom) off Cape Henry, Va. The 10,800-ton German vessel lost most of its superstructure and mast and had about half of its port side dented in when she tangled with the 60,000-ton carrier. The Saratoga's left side was damaged extensively. There were no injuries reported on either vessel. (Story at bottom of page) (AP Photofax)

Eisenhower Defends Spy Flight Timing

U.S. Must Continue Negotiations With Soviet, Nation Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower declared Wednesday America must continue "businesslike dealings with the Soviet leaders" despite the blowup of the Paris summit conference.

"I think," Eisenhower told the nation, "we must not write the record all in red ink. There are several things to be written in black."

In a prepared radio-TV report to the nation on the summit collapse last week, the President conceded that Soviet action leading to that collapse "has turned the clock back in some measure."

But he added that it should be noted that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "did not go beyond invective—a timeworn Soviet device to achieve an immediate objective."

In his address, Eisenhower sketched the course he feels the United States and its allies must follow.

Several hours ahead of Eisenhower's report, it was announced he will brief key congressional Democrats and Republicans at breakfast Thursday on the factors that led to the collapse of the summit talks before they really got off the ground.

Flight Timing Defended

Eisenhower strongly defended the spy plane flights which Khrushchev has made a hot U. S.-Soviet issue.

And he struck back at Democratic critics and others who have said such a reconnaissance mission on the eve of the summit talks was a blunder.

Alluding to that, Eisenhower said: "As to the timing, the question was really whether to halt the program and thus forego the gathering of important information that was essential and that was likely to be unavailable at an early date. The program went forward.

"The plain truth is this: When a nation needs intelligence activity, there is no time when vigilance can be relaxed."

One passage of Eisenhower's speech was viewed as a possible hint he might consider new talks with Khrushchev—even though the Soviet leader has thrown harsh words in his direction.

"Fellow Americans," Eisenhower recalled, "long ago I pledged to you that I would journey anywhere to promote the cause of peace. I remain pledged to pursue a peace of dignity, of friendship, of honor, of justice."

After declaring "we must keep up our strength, and hold it steady for the long pull," Eisenhower asserted: "We must continue businesslike dealings with the Soviet leaders on outstanding issues, and improve the contacts between our own and the Soviet peoples, making clear that the path of reason and common sense is still open if the Soviets will but use it."

Although this was billed as a report to the American people, it was meant for the ears of Russians, too. The White House had made a special plea that the Soviets not jam rebroadcasts of Eisenhower's words in Russian and other languages. The rebroadcasts are set for Thursday.

Eisenhower dealt at some length with the American spy plane episode on which Khrushchev seized to bring the summit meeting to collapse.

Plane Returns From Behind Iron Curtain

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI) — Nine Americans, including one woman, who had been held for five days by the Soviets in Communist East Germany flew to freedom here Wednesday to their U.S. Air Force C-47 transport. The pilot was promptly grounded for violating flying directions.

The plane, held by Soviet troops since it was forced to land by Russian fighters last Friday after straying across the Iron Curtain, landed here at 9:42 p.m. (4:42 p.m. e.d.t.). Its occupants were tired but happy to be on free soil.

In Washington, Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, promptly grounded the pilot, Capt. James P. Lundy, for having "clearly violated pertinent flying directions" in his flight from Copenhagen to Hamburg.

The C-47 flew here from a muddy corn field at Grevesmuehlen, East Germany, where fog, high winds and heavy rain squalls had frustrated take-off efforts most of the day.

A little more than an hour before the take-off, U.S. authorities had requested permission for five of the Americans — including the woman passenger be brought back by automobile if the bad weather continued to block the flight to the west.

The Soviet surprised U.S. officials by clearing the diplomatic path for the release of the plane and the occupants in record time.

The East German Communist news service ADN reported that before leaving, the crew of five and four passengers "expressed thanks for the good treatment they received."

The Air Force said that the returning Americans would not hold a news conference Wednesday night because of the lateness of their arrival. A spokesman said a press conference would be held Thursday.

House Group Votes Excise Tax Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday approved another year's extension of the relatively high Korean wartime taxes on such things as liquor, cigarets, auto parts, telephone service and travel.

The committee also went along with President Eisenhower's request that the national debt ceiling be set at 293 billion dollars temporarily for the year beginning June 30.

The ceiling approved is two billion dollars under the present temporary ceiling of 295 billion. Without congressional action, the current temporary ceiling would drop back to the permanent ceiling of 285 billion.

Congress has been voting a temporary ceiling higher than the permanent limit for several years with enough room to give the Treasury about a three-billion-dollar working margin. The lowering of the interim ceiling is based on an anticipated budget surplus in current and next fiscal years.

The extension of the excise and corporate tax rates is necessary, administration witnesses told the committee, or the Treasury will lose about four billion dollars a year in revenues. Without congressional action, the rates would drop back to the pre-Korean War levels on July 1.

The House which usually follows the committee's recommendations, is expected to vote on them next week.

Stricken Chile Hit By New Disasters

2,000 Dead, Missing; 2 Million Homeless

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Heavy quakes, tidal waves, volcanic violence and avalanches struck new blows of death and devastation Wednesday in this land of the trembling earth.

Smoke and ash from quake-born volcanoes spread over much of desperately stricken Chile.

More than 2,000 persons were dead or missing in the disaster that began Saturday. The toll was expected to rise sharply when reports arrive from areas still isolated by communications breakdowns.

The official death toll climbed to 1,206. The number of missing was put at 812 and the injured at 2,000.

There were perhaps two million Chileans homeless.

The Interior Ministry during the day said property damage will run into many hundreds of millions of dollars and will take years to repair.

Wednesday night Finance Minister Roberto Vergara told a news conference damage already amounted to at least 300 million dollars and foreign help will be needed to rebuild Chile.

Three new tremors were reported Wednesday by the government seismology department.

Official spokesmen said 100 persons died in an avalanche that crushed the little town of Osorno. The fate of many other small towns in the provinces of Chiloe, Cautin, Valdivia and Llanquihue was unknown.

Low-lying clouds and bad weather in many southern towns impeded rescue operations.

An 8 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew was imposed in Valdivia Province as a step to prevent looting.

Survivors flown to Santigo from some devastated areas told of heaving streets and crumbling buildings that buried victims under tons of debris.

"The whole word seemed to be shaking and quivering," said one.

Associated Press correspondent Thomas J Stone, aboard a U. S. Air Force C54 flying relief supplies to southern Chile, witnessed the eruption of one snow-capped volcano. He reported it resembled an atomic explosion with smoke billowing thousands of feet into the air

Early morning rumblings of the earth caused fear among thousands of homeless sleeping outdoors—and other thousands who had roofs over their heads.

A heavy rain was falling when the first of the convulsions spread across the southern provinces of Valdivia, Osorno and Llanquihue at 1:37 a. m. In the city of Valdivia, a previously damaged high steel tower fell. Most of the city's people were in the nearby hills.

Rocket, Flare Firings To Test Spy Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The world's first experimental spy satellite—America's Midas II —spun in its near-circular orbit Wednesday, scanning the United States for signs of a rocket or flare firing.

The Air Force plans several firings to learn if the satellite's infrared sensors will detect them. The first tests could come in a day or two.

The sensors are the key to Midas' ability to spot an enemy missile attack. They are designed to pick up the infrared light radiated by a rocket flame the instant it is launched.

If it were an enemy missile, radios in the satellite would relay the information to this nation, which then would have about 30 minutes to activate defense and retaliatory measures.

The first flare—more brilliant than most missile exhausts—is expected to be ignited at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., within a few days, when Midas passes overhead. The Air Force said rocket launchings at Cape Canaveral and Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., will be timed whenever possible to coincide with a Midas flight.

The satellite does not travel over the Soviet Union.

U.N. Assembly To Get Ike's Open Skies Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said Wednesday night President Eisenhower's new, broadened open skies plan would not be submitted to the U. N. Security Council.

Lodge told reporters in answer to a question that the plan would be proposed for debate in the 82-nation General Assembly session opening Sept. 20.

"If we put it into the Security Council," he said, "the Russians would only veto it. We want it to get calm, careful consideration."

The plan would have the U. N. set up aerial surveillance against surprise attack in all countries accepting such inspection.

Kennedy Reportedly Asks Liberal Support

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) conferrred with a top Liberal party leader Wednesday and reportedly appealed for Liberal support in his presidential bid.

The Liberal party, which gave Adlai E. Stevenson more than 400,000 of his New York votes in 1952, frequently is the balance of power in state elections. It almost always endorses Democrats but has supported Republicans locally and occasionally for major offices.

Alex Rose, vice chairman of the Liberal party, said he met with Kennedy for about an hour Wednesday and that Kennedy made a personal appeal for support from Rose and his party.

Living Costs Hit Peak As Food Prices Spurt

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spurt in food prices sent the nation's living costs to another record high in April.

The Labor Department said Wednesday its index rose four-tenths of one per cent, the biggest monthly increase since last June. The index moved up to its highest point ever at 126.2 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

With April prices nearly two per cent above the year-ago level, officials said they expect gradual rises all summer in response to new seasonal food price increases.

Arnold Chase, Labor Department price chief, said some April living cost increase had been expected but not so much as did occur. He said it was brought on by poor spring growing conditions.

This helped boost fruit and vegetable costs. Also, pork and eggs, two customary table items that have been relatively cheap for some time, are moving up again.

Eggs increased by 13 per cent in one month. Pork registered its sharpest April rise in four years.

Chase said he wanted to emphasize, however, that he doesn't expect a big upward summer price trend of the type experienced in April—only a modest gradual one. He said the 1½ per cent increase in April food prices represented the largest monthly rise since March 1958.

Figuring the consumer dollar at full value a decade ago, it is now worth less than 80 cents.

The buying power of factory workers, the department said, is about 2½ per cent less than a year ago.

Khrushchev Delays His Summit Report

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev's personal report to the Soviet people on the Paris summit conference has been delayed until Saturday, diplomats reported.

Khrushchev usually reports on his tours abroad as soon as he arrives home, but he departed from that custom when he returned last Saturday.

Diplomats said they have been informed the report will be made at a Communist party conference for workers in the Kremlin Parliament Hall. Wide circulation of the speech through Soviet press, radio and television is expected.

No one on either ship was hurt, but the left sides of both vessels were damaged extensively in the sideswiping crash, which occurred 60 miles southeast of Cape Henry one minute after midnight.

The German ship, escorted by a destroyer, came into Chesapeake Bay and headed for Baltimore her original destination, to discharge her ore cargo. The Saratoga, which was en route from Norfolk to Mayport, Fla., returned to Hampton Roads for a damage survey.

Naval spokesmen at Norfolk said there was no immediate explanation of the cause of the collision.

Capt. Alan F. Fleming, the Saratoga's skipper, told newsmen on arrival in port "if we had hit just a few seconds earlier our bow would have knifed right through the middle" of the ore ship. The Saratoga was in a hard right turn when the ships collided.

Fleming said the collision developed "over a period of minutes."

The Saratoga's angled flight deck smashed into the other ship's bridge. The bridge and the living quarters on the left side were destroyed. A mast was knocked overboard, leaving the ship without radio communications.

The catwalk on the Saratoga's left side was crumpled like an accordion, a lifeboat was smashed, and two gun tubs were damaged. Fire, caused by the rupturing of fuel lines, broke out but was extinguished in less than five minutes.

Aboard the Saratoga were 2,400 men and 160 officers; aboard the German ship a crew of 35. The 60,000-ton Saratoga is 1,040 feet long; the 10,800-ton Bernd Leonhardt is 485 feet long.

Hawaii Alert Is Called Off

HONOLULU (UPI) — A new tidal wave alert in Hawaii touched off a mid-day scramble to high ground by thousands of tourists and islanders Wednesday but the alert was called off when hours passed with only minor fluctuations in the sea level.

Marine M.Sgt. John L. Pracanica, 33, died of a heart attack after taking his wife and three children from their low-lying quarters to the hilltop area of Kaneohe Marine air station.

The 1 p.m. (7 p.m. e.d.t.) alert caused fears of a repetition of Monday's series of huge waves that killed 45 persons in the Hilo area, left 17 missing and caused damage estimated at more than 50 million dollars.

The alert was called off at 3:29 p.m. (9:29 p.m. e.d.t.).

At 2:40 p.m. there was a one-foot rise in the sea at Haleiwa, on the northern tip of Oahu, the island on which Honolulu is located. There was a rise and fall of about a foot at Hilo, on the "big island" of Hawaii.

Justice Dept. Will Investigate W.Va. Vote-Buying Complaint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department announced Wednesday it will investigate charges that votes were bought with both money and whisky in a West Virginia county during that state's recent presidential primary.

A spokesman said the department would act on a complaint made by Clyde Freeman, mayor of Chapmanville, W.Va. He said the inquiry would be limited to Logan County, where Chapmanville is located.

Freeman complained of various voting irregularities, including the purchase of votes, the spokesman said.

In the West Virginia primary, held May 10, Sen. John F. Kennedy (Mass.) scored an upset victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.). Following his defeat, Humphrey withdrew as a declared candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Some West Virginia newspapers have charged that pro-Kennedy forces bought votes in the primary, and that Kennedy funds were involved in the Logan County voting.

The Justice Department said it would made a "preliminary investigation" of Freeman's complaint. A spokesman said the department also was willing to hear a delegation of Logan County citizens who have petitioned Attorney General William F. Rogers for help in policing elections.

Rep. John M. Slack (D—W.Va.) has asked for an appointment with Justice Department officials on behalf of the group, which claimed that cash and liquor were used to sway voters in the county.

It was considered unlikely that the group would meet with Rogers himself. In fact, the department told Slack it felt the complaints could best be submitted in writing rather than through a meeting with government officials.

The federal voting statutes do not apply to primary elections. But informed sources said the Justice Department could take action under a civil rights statute making it a crime for two or more people to conspire to deprive a citizen of his constitutional rights.

This statute carries a maximum penalty of $5,000 in fines, 10 years in prison or both.

Turk Deputies Protest "Gag"; Battle Erupts

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—In a riotous session, Premier Adnan Menderes steam-rollered a three-week recess through Parliament Wednesday. Opposition deputies said they were being gagged. Fist fights broke out.

"You are voting to close the only place where the nation's voice can still be heard," shouted opposition Deputy Emin Soysal. "Let Menderes proclaim himself a dictator if he has the courage."

A chair flew through the air from the Democratic side, narrowly missing the almost bald head of Gulek. Then several Democrats raced toward him.

Opposition Republicans joined in and fists flew for 10 furious minutes until order was restored by the speaker calling a 90-minute recess.

At least seven Republicans and an equal number of Democrats required first aid after the melee.

Menderes will use part of his time between now and the reconvening of Parliament in a tour of Turkey's rural provinces, where his appeal is particularly strong, beginning Thursday.

"Pork Barrel" Bill Approved By House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House passed and sent to the Senate Wednesday public works bill carrying construction funds for 388 rivers and harbors and reclamation projects estimated to cost eventually 15 billion dollars.

The bill, sometimes known as a "pork barrel" measure, provides $891,198,100 for the so-called civil functions of the Army Engineers and $277,362,705 for the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation.

A total of $960,027,180 would go into actual construction of water resources projects scattered throughout the country. The bill gets its nickname from the fact that congressmen sometimes trade support for pet measures.

The bill, covering spending in the 12 months starting July 1, also carries $2,659,060,000 to run the Atomic Energy Commission, and provides funds for the Bonneville Power Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the southeastern and southwestern power administrations.

No War Seen By Symington

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said Wednesday he believes the Soviet Union does not intend to start a war but poses a threat of "potential economic aggression."

Symington, who has been endorsed by former President Harry S. Truman for the Democratic presidential nomination, made the statement in a speech to the Advertising Club of Baltimore.

"These people have no intention of starting, in my opinion, any kind of war, much less a nuclear war,' he said.

Symington suggested the Soviet plan is "to get strong and stay strong" so that U. S. S. R. representatives can bargain from a position of strength at such conferences as the abortive summit meeting last week.

The Missouri senator described the collapse of that session as "unfortunate." He pointedly refrained from criticizing the Republican Administration generally or President Eisenhower individually in connection with the summit meeting.

Symington spoke to 505 persons attending a luncheon honoring the memory of Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland from 1920-1935. A former Baltimorean, Symington comes from a family long prominent in Maryland politics. His father was named to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City by Ritchie.

Speeding Wasn't Woman's Fault

Eisenhower

"does still remain," the President said.

He recalled his "open skies" proposal of five years ago for reciprocal aerial inspection of ground installations. He said the offer still is open, and repeated that the United States intends to submit such a proposal at the appropriate time to the United Nations, with a recommendation that the U.N. itself conduct such aerial reconnaissance.

Should the U.N. accept this proposal, the President went on, he is prepared to propose additionally that the United States supply part of the aircraft and equipment required.

On that point, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen such aircraft would include the swift, high flying U2—the type of plane which touched off the furor when the Russians shot one of them down over Soviet territory on May 1.

But he pointed out once again that he had notified Khrushchev in Paris that flights over Soviet territory had been halted and would not be resumed.

Dealing with this government's first announcement that the U2 was only on a weather mission and apparently had strayed by accident into Soviet airspace, Eisenhower also defended that statement which has stirred great controversy.

"As to our government's initial statement about this flight," Eisenhower said, "this was issued to protect the pilot, his mission and our intelligence processes, at a time when the true facts were still undetermined.

"Our first information about the failure of this mission did not disclose whether the pilot was still alive, was trying to escape, was avoiding interrogation, or whether both plane and pilot had been destroyed.

"Protection of our intelligence system and the pilot, and concealment of the plane's mission, still seemed imperative. It must be remembered that over a long period these flights have given us information of the greatest importance.

"Their success has been nothing short of remarkable."

When it developede that the Soviets had shot down the plane, captured its pilot and claimed a spy mission confession had been obtained from him, "the factual details were set forth," Eisenhower said.

As for why he decided to halt the U2 flights, Eisenhower said: "Clearly their usefulness was impaired. Moreover, continuing this particular activity in these new circumstances could not but complicate the relations of certain of our allies with the Soviets.

"Furthermore, new techniques, other than aircraft, are constantly being developed."

Jobless Truck Driver Held In Fatal Shooting

CLARKSBURG, Md. (AP)—A 42-year-old unemployed truck driver was held on a murder charge Wednesday after the fatal shooting of Frederick A. Blowers in his apartment here.

Montgomery County police identified the man as George Edward Cook of Frederick, who formerly worked at a Bethesda, Md., manufacturing firm with both the victim and his wife.

Officers said Cook, picked up at his Frederick home, was ordered held on the murder charge without bond pending a preliminary hearing.

Det. Sgt. Frank Griggs said Cook was arrested on information furnished by the victim's wife, Kathleen.

Officers said she told them she and her husband had gone to bed about last midnight and a few minutes later were aroused by a knock on the door. Her husband admitted the visitor, Mrs. Blowers told police, then she heard talking in the hallway, a shot and someone running down the stairs.

Peiping Charges U.S. 'Aggravates Tension'

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China accused the United States Wednesday night of "aggravating tension" in the Formosa Strait area amid mounting indications that the Chinese Reds might be stirring up a new crisis in southeast Asia.

The Communist New China News Agency charged the United States is stepping up "war activities" in the Formosa area in a dispatch broadcast just a day after Red Chinese artillery shelled the Matsu offshore islands for the first time in three months.

At the same time, the Chinese Communists charged that a U.S. warship and a U.S. military plane had violated Chinese waters and air space Tuesday and Wednesday. The Peiping foreign office issued its 99th "serious warning" against such action.

Kishi Foes Join Forces, Call Tokyo Demonstration

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's enemies joined forces in a snowballing campaign to force him out of office, defeat the U.S.-Japan security treaty and block President Eisenhower's visit here next month.

The Socialist party and the Sohyo Labor Federation, leaders of the campaign against the pro-Western Kishi, called for 150,000 demonstrators to mass around the Diet building Thursday.

Thursday is the last legal day of Parliament as far as the Socialists and other opposition parties are concerned. They do not recognize a 50-day extension rammed through the House of Representatives last Wednesday as part of Kishi's drive to win approval of the treaty. The pact allows U.S. troops to be stationed in Japan for at least another 10 years. The Socialists not only oppose the treaty but want Japan to become neutral in the cold war.

Kishi's Liberal-Democratic party leaders called in police to stop fighting in Parliament corridors last week. The Socialists boycotted the session, and the Liberal-Democratic majority promptly ratified the treaty.

Their 288-179 majority in the lower house shows they represent public opinion, they said.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The spending ways of America's 19 million teen - agers bolster the nation's economy by 10 billion dollars a year.

And by 1970, teenologists estimate, the bobby - soxers will be making cash registers jingle-jangle to the tune of $17,500,000,000 a year.

Allowances — a fixed-item in the typical family's budget—contribute mightily to the affluent status of the nation's 'teens. But millions of boys and girls fatten their financial status watching babies, cutting lawns and performing other odd jobs.

While the 'teens are the mainstay of the record industry, they contribute more than token support to many other industries in the economy.

A survey taken by the 'Teen National Consumer Board found that 50 per cent of all teen-agers have typewriters bought exclusively for their own use; 63 per cent own musical instruments; 89 per cent, wrist watches.

Where cars are concerned, one recent survey of boys in a typical high school showed that 26 per cent owned their own cars. For girls, the car ownership was found to be 17 per cent.

But the direct spending by 'teens doesn't tell the whole story about the bobby-soxer influence on the nation's economy.

It's estimated that teeen - age preferences strongly influence family purchases of everything from toothpaste and other toiletries to cars, car accessories and hi-fi sets.

The girl teen-agers are a force to face when time comes to select new furniture, carpets, curtains and appliances. She expects to entertain her friends and she wants her home to "keep up with the Jones girl's home."

Forand's proposal to incorporate a program for medical care for the aged under Social Security started a national controversy.

B17, Legendary Bomber Of World War II, Gone From Skies It Once Ruled

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unnoticed but not unlamented, the gallant B17 has disappeared from the skies it once ruled.

The Air Force has destroyed the last B17 carried on its books as a missile-target aircraft, the Coast Guard has given up the B17's it used as air - sea rescue planes, and about all that remains is a flock of legends and memories.

One of them is being used as a flying aquarium. A couple still are flying as crop-dusters. But as an active aircraft, the B17 has gone into retirement.

Dubbed the "Flying Fortress" when Boeing brought out the first model in 1935, the B17 was undoubtedly the most famous warplane ever built. At the time, it was widely criticized as too big a plane for pilots to handle. By the end of World War II, however, Boeing and two other licensed manufacturers had turned out 12,731 of the four-engined giants, and they carried the brunt of the air war against Nazi Germany.

B17's dropped 640,036 tons of bombs on European targets—about 75 per cent of the bomb tonnage unloaded by all U.S. aircraft. In compiling this record, the B17 also managed to build a host of legends about its fantastic durability.

It was a noisy and drafty plane. Pilots claimed it was like taking off in a perforated box car. But there never was an airplane built that could absorb punishment like the B17. They used to limp home on two engines, with tails half shot away and wings literally flapping.

One of the favorite B17 stories concerned the ship that developed engine trouble over Italy. The crew bailed out leaving behind a couple of small dogs carried as mascots.

The B17 droned along on two engines, finally wound up over Turkey, ran out of gas and glided to a perfect landing. When Turkish troops inspected the plane, all they found were the two dogs. To this day, some of those soldiers probably are convinced the U.S. trained canines to fly bombers.

The most famous B17 was "Alexander the Swoose" which set a wartime record by averaging 150 combat hours a month. Originally, it was just an ordinary run-of-the - mill B17 which was parked on Clark Field in the Philippines Dec. 8, 1941.

Attacking Japanese planes made a mess out of that particular bomber. They tore holes in the shining aluminum, turned the four engines into junk and did a haircut on its two miles of wiring. When they finished, the $200,000 B17 was worth about $200 in a junk yard. That's where it would have ended except that the U.S. needed planes too badly.

Mechanics installed undamaged engines from hopelessly wrecked planes. They patched up the wiring and grafted parts from other aircraft beyond repair. That's where this B17 got its name—"Alexander the Swoose," after the Walt Disney character that was half swan and half goose. The crew painted a funny-looking bird on "Alexander's" nose, with the body and wings of a goose and the head and neck of a swan. Underneath they lettered the words, "It Flies?"

"Alexander" flew Missions over the Philippines and Dutch East Indies. In one year, the hybrid bomber flew enough missions to equal 15 flights around the world. "Alexander" became famous after some one wrote a book about it and an Air Corps general pulled "Alexander" out of combat duty and made it his personal plane for a while.

"Alexander" eventually was reduced to ferrying personnel and mail. V-J Day found it in a grave-yard for surplus warplanes too weary and battered for active duty. But Air Force officials who remembered the veteran saved "Alexander" from the junk yard and marked it for perpetual display in the Smithsonian Air Museum.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet handling of the latest American plane incident raises an important question: Has the need disappeared, for the time being, to insist upon the fiction that Red East Germany is independent?

The Soviets have reverted to treating the East German regime the way a colonial power might handle military occupation of a conquered province.

In the case of the latest incident the Soviets found it unnecssary to insist upon East German sovereignty. This hints that the procedure is not important right now. The whole case reflected little Moscow faith in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's prediction of another summit conference in six or eight months.

Moscow's attitude was far different when the Soviets several years ago began a campaign to force a summit conference. Then the Soviets, in a situation similar to the case of the U.S. Air Force C47 transport downed over East Germany, insisted that the East German regime was sovereign and had full jurisdiction.

The object was to force the United States to deal directly with the East German regime. This would imply East German sovereignty in advance of a summit meeting, in which East Germany's recognition would be a key question.

The last major plane incident in East Germany was strikingly similar to the case of the U. S. Air Force C47 downed by Soviet units last Friday.

It was on June 7, 1958, that a U.S. Air Force helicopter with nine aboard, lost in a storm, strayed over the frontier of Communist territory and was forced down.

Then the East Germans made the protests of air space violation. The U.S. personnel was in the hands of East German authorities.

The Soviets turned their backs on all American demands, insisting it was purely a matter of East German jurisdiction. The East German regime demanded direct talks with the United States, which would indicate a degree of recognition.

The nine Americans were held 42 days before the American Red Cross obtained their release. The Soviets all along refused to take any responsibility.

That was when the Soviets were insisting on direct talks between West Germany and Communist East Germany. It also was a moment when Soviet propaganda was carefully building its case for a summit conference.

This time, the Soviets made no pretenses. The strayed C47 was in Soviet hands and they never bothered to say otherwise. The only excuse they gave for applying Soviet jurisdiction was that the East German Communist regime was a member of the Warsaw Alliance of Communist nations.

There seemed little doubt that the Soviet handling of the affair is a sharp slap for East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht and his party.

Hungary Blasts U.S.

VIENNA (UPI) — Communist Hungary Wednesday condemned the launching of the American Midas spy-in-the-sky satellite as an "obvious provocation."

"At a time when the American delegate tries to refute the justified accusations by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the U.N. Security Council, the launching of this 'spy satellite' shows that spying indeed has become an integral part of the American foreign policy," Radio Budapest said.

MPA Official Reported In Conflict Of Interest

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Evening Sun said Wednesday that a Maryland Port Authority board director has business connections with a firm doing about two million dollars worth of construction work for the port authority.

The newspaper said Chairman John L. Kronau of the authority's board of commissioners is listed on a report with the State Department of Taxation and Assessments as a member of the board of directors of the Empire Construction Co.

Kronau was not available for comment.

Last month the company was awarded a $1,908,666 contract by the Port Authority for extensive construction work at the agency's new Dundalk Marine Terminal.

Last October the same company received a $148,795 contract for bulkhead repairs and other improvements at the same terminal.

The Evening Sun called attention to the legislative act creating the authority which prohibits any authority member, agent or employe from entering directly or indirectly into any contract with the agency.

Violation of the code carries a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than a year, or both.

Attorney General C. Ferdinand Sybert said he would assign a member of his staff to "study the situation" immediately.

Joseph L. Stanton, executive director of the Port Authority, said "this is the first I've heard of this and I really haven't given the matter any thought" when asked about Kronau's connections with the construction firm.

Stanton said "I wouldn't think this would have anything to do with that" when the subject of conflict of interest on the chairman's part was raised.

Kronau, 53, was appointed chairman of the Port Authority by former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin in September, 1958, for a six-year term.

Executive May Face Charges In Lodge Fire

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Talbot County State's Atty. Henry Turner said Wednesday he hasn't made up his mind whether to bring charges against a Delaware businessman whose name was mentioned during an arson trial here.

Turner said he would confer with insurance company lawyers before deciding whether to press legal proceedings against Harrison C. Colket, president of the North American Smelting Co., Wilmington, Del.

Colket's name was mentioned in testimony during the trial of John G. Dolan, 39, caretaker for about four years at Colket's Chesapeake Bay island lodge.

A jury Tuesday found Dolan innocent of a charge of setting fire to the lodge Dec. 29.

During the trial, a statement made by Dolan to State Police Jan. 23 was admitted as evidence by Circuit Judge J. DeWeese Carter. In the statement, Dolan said he set fire to the lodge as part of an agreement with Colket.

Dolan said in the statement that Colket promised to give him $300,000 from fire insurance money if he would set fire to the lodge.

Despite the statement, the jury returned the innocent finding after deliberating two hours. The verdict apparently surprised Turner and other court officials.

Club Robbery Case Headed For Grand Jury

FREDERICK (AP) — Chief Circuit Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer Wednesday ordered the Frederick County grand jury recalled June 13 to hear evidence against five men accused of robbing patrons of a private club of $10,300.

The five men, all from out of state, pleaded innocent to the robbery charges at a preliminary hearing April 13. Each was ordered held in $20,600 bond for grand jury action.

The five are Benjamin Greif, 51, of New York City; Johnny Douglas Boyd, 43, and William Williams, 35, both of Newark, N.J.; James Charles Toland, 55, of Washington, and Charles Robert Graves, 35, of Easton Iron, N.J. All but Greif are Negroes.

Four men carrying a sawed-off shotgun and pistols entered the Spartan Club, just south of Frederick on Maryland 355, early April 11. They lined up about 20 customers, took cash from their wallets and put the money in a pillow case.

Some of the patrons were forced to remove their trousers. These were dumped in a pile outside the club before the gunmen fled in a waiting car.

The five accused men were arrested by Montgomery County police at a roadblock near Rockville about an hour after the robbery.

All of the loot was reported to have been recovered.

Apparent Suicide Follows Letter

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lee Bateman received a special delivery letter from his brother Wednesday morning. It said he had driven his car 8,000 miles "around the country thinking things over."

A short while later, police called Bateman about a dead man found stretched out in the front seat of his car. Bateman identified the body as his 54-year-old brother.

The car was parked on a service station lot. The dead man had a pistol clutched in his right hand and he had been shot in the right side of his head.

The living Bateman said his brother had an incurable disease.

Contract Awarded

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Roads Commission said Wednesday the Wright Contracting Co. of Odenton had been awarded a contract to build sections of the Capitol Beltway and the George Washington Memorial Highway in the Washington, D.C. area.

SRC Chairman-Director John B. Funk said the firm had submitted a low bid of $2,699,444.

The Capitol Beltway improvement will extend from east of the Indian Head Highway to the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Bridge. The George Washington Memorial Highway project will extend from the District line to the Capital Beltway.

Bowles Group At Work

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland Democratic officials have been contacted by an organization working on behalf of Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn) for the party's presidential nomination, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The group, calling itself the Chester Bowles for President Committee of Illinois, wrote Secretary of State Thomas B. Finan a request for the names and addresses of Maryland delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

These delegates will be elected Tuesday at the party state convention in Baltimore. Because of the victory in the May 17 Maryland primary of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) the delegates are legally required to support him at the national convention as long as they believe he has a chance to win the nomination.

The letter to Finan, who is also Maryland Democratic chairman, was signed by Sheldon Newberger, identified as executive director of the Bowles group in Illinois. Bowles has been serving as foreign policy adviser to Kennedy in the Massachusetts senator's campaign.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Solve That Baby Fat Problem

A problem that plagues many new mothers is baby-fat. Not on the baby — on themselves. They may have gained a son or a daughter but they feel they've lost their looks.

One reader has described her anguish after gaining 46 pounds during pregnancy. She jumped from 118 pounds to 164 pounds . . . and has managed to whittle herself down to 149 pounds. This is far more than her height (5' 3") should carry at the age of 20. And it probably contributes to her disproportionate measurements of 40-30-44.

Without knowing more about this young woman's body frame and general health, I cannot make any specific recommendations for her ideal weight and measurements. Generally, her original 118 pounds would seem a good point at which to stop the scale. If her body-type still exaggerates her proportions (and this seems probable), she can do much to simulate the ideal figure with good posture, well-designed foundation garments and clever manipulation of color and styling in her clothes.

My booklets "Do You Measure Up?" and "Figured For You," just 10c each with a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to me c/o this newspaper, would get he off to a good start.

I can specifically recommend, of course, that she see her doctor without delay and get his permission to lose her excess weight. Merely toting that burden around is making her tired and depressed, just at the time she needs her vitality most to care for her new baby.

When her baby is three months old, she must be able to devote at least 20 minutes a day to restorative exercises. One favorite for maintaining good muscle tone, particularly in the important pelvic region, is the twist-over-and-back. She should lie flat in bed or on the floor, a pillow beneath her head, her arms outstretched at shoulder level. She then lifts one leg to a bent-knee position before kicking it up straight in the air and swinging it over to meet her outstretched hand. When she swings this leg back to position, she repeats the routine with the other leg.

To slim legs and strengthen abdominal muscles, she may lie tummy-down across a chair, extend her legs straight back, then swing them up and down scissors-style.

Patience — as well as perseverance — is the cue for this young lady, as it is for all the mothers who share her problem. Remember, it took most of nine months to gain those pounds. It may take equal time, even longer, to reduce and to regenerate the strength and tone of muscles that have been strained, not by childbirth, but by overweight.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've never written a letter to a newspaper or to a magazine in my life, but after reading your column today (about parents being paid back for giving their children a college education) I just had to write to you.

In the past two years we have seen two sons and a daughter get college diplomas. They all worked part-time and we paid the rest.

In the last six years Dad and I have had no vacations. Our car is just about ready for the junkheap. The furniture in our house is falling apart. But who cares? None of this means a thing compared to knowing that our children are given a first class education.

Pay us back? They've paid us back — a thousand times, by being the kind of people we want them to be. We have two other children who will enter college soon. God-willing we'll see them through, too. —

PROUD OF OUR KIDS

DEAR ANN: The letter on whether or not children owe their parents for a college education brought back some painful memories.

Our son always went with the rich kids in school, although we had very little. My husband owned a small tailor shop and I helped him with the sewing at night.

When our son told us he wanted to go to a big eastern school and it would cost us $3,000 a year it sounded like a million. He said he couldnt work his way through because it was a hard school and he needed all his time and energy for studying.

Well, Pa and I scraped together our savings, we made a loan, I took in two roomers, and our son got his college education. I saved in a secret account for our train fare so when he graduated we could see him get his diploma. But we never made that trip. Do you know why? He never invited us.

Pa was heartbroken but he never said anything. Along about August I asked our son why and he said, "You would have felt out of place with all those swells."

He married a fancy girl he met in the east and we don't see them very often although they live right in this town. Maybe we raised him wrong, but we did the best we could. I hope he does better with his son than we did with ours. —

UNHAPPYY PARENTS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a professor in a midwestern college and was deeply interested in the column which raised the question of whether children "owe" their parents for sacrifices made to send them to college.

For almost 20 years I've watched students come and go. Do you know who, almost without exception are the outstanding students? Those who are on partial or complete scholarships and must work to stay in school. They seem to have a better comprehension of what a college education means, and are willing to make sacrifices to get it.

Do you know who the poorest students are — the ones who wash out and barely make it by the skin of their teeth? The students whose parents send them with swanky clothes, hi-fi machines, electric typerwriters, automobiles and lots of spending money. These students don't have to do anything but concentrate on their work, but they don't. They are too busy with their hi-fis, automobiles and spending money.

— THE OWL

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Finan Predicts Harmony Among Convention Delegates

Thomas B. Finan, Maryland Democratic chairman, said Tuesday in Baltimore there will be a "deliberate attempt" made to include all party factions on the state delegation to the national convention.

Finan and Carl R. Tuvin, executive secretary of the Maryland Democratic headquarters, Tuesday finished assembling the list of delegates to the May 31 Democratic State Convention.

The official list of the 152 delegates was compiled after the canvass of the May 17 primary election. The state convention will elect the Maryland delegation to the national convention opening July 11 in Los Angeles.

Finan said potential national convention delegates have been suggested by some county party officials and the list will be reviewed by state party leaders before the state convention.

On the Republican side, former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin has confirmed that Vice President Nixon is his choice for the party's Presidential nomination.

McKeldin is expected to make several speeches on Nixon's behalf and will undoubtedly have a strong voice in the Maryland delegation to the Republican National Convention.

He declined to say if he expects to be re-elected state national committeeman at the Republican State Convention in Baltimore June 11.

Attending the state Democratic convention from Allegany County will be Mrs. Ann Everline, Joseph V. Burke, William L. Wilson, F. Patrick Allender, Leslie Clark, Simon F. Reilly and former Judge William C. Walsh. Garrett County delegates are Dr. E. Irvin Baumgartner, Karol Rush, Mrs. Louise Seggie and Mrs. Phyllis Young.

Finan said a resolutions committee will be selected from the 152 delegates. The committee will have at least one member from each county and the six districts in Baltimore, he added, and the group will then consult on the selection of official delegates to the national convention. The committee's recommendations will be submitted for approval by the 152 delegates.

The final selection, Finan continued, will include representation from each party faction and geographical section in Maryland.

The state Democratic chairman said it is evident that the Baltimore convention will be conducted in a spirit of harmony since the major party leaders are united in a desire for a Democratic victory in November.

As state chairman, Finan will call the convention to order before turning over the chair to a temporary chairman. James Lacy, prominent Baltimore businessman and ally of Mayor J. Harold Grady, has been prominently mentioned for this role.

Del. A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto), House majority leader, is reported in line for permanent chairman.

Fort Hill Students Hurt When Car Hits Tree

Three Fort Hill High School students were admitted to Morgan County War Memorial Hospital in Berkeley Springs and three other students were treated and released Tuesday afternoon after the car in which they were riding went over an embankment on West Virginia Route 9 on Cacapon Mountain.

Admitted to the hospital were Darlene Bonner, 14, a freshman, of Valley Road; John Smith, 16, a junior, of Valley Road, and Joseph D. Nikirk Jr., 15, a sophomore, of 515 East Third Street.

The Bonner girl and Smith were kept at the hospital overnight and Nikirk was released later in the afternoon.

Trooper W. A. Wood, of the Berkeley Springs detachment of the West Virginia State Police, investigated the accident which reportedly occurred shortly after 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Trooper Wood said the '52-model convertible was driven by Smith and was headed toward Berkeley Springs on the mountain when he lost control of the vehicle while attempting to negotiate a right hand curve. The car crossed the center line, skidded, came back to the extreme right of the highway and went over an embankment where it rammed into a tree.

The convertible top was down, the trooper stated, and the three occupants in the back seat, the Payne girl, Strawderman and Parsons were thrown from the car. The front seat occupants, Nikirk, Miss Bonner and Smith, remained in the vehicle, Trooper Wood said.

Attaches at the hospital reported that none was seriously injured. Nikirk was treated for a slight concussion; the Bonner girl for facial injuries and Smith for lacerations.

Miss Bonner and Smith were to be transferred to Memorial Hospital here yesterday, attaches said.

Trooper Wood said the auto was a total loss and Smith was fined for failing to keep his vehicle under control.

Two Promoted In Seabees

Two members of the Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 5-7 (Seabees) have been advanced in rating, according to Cmdr. Paul M. Arbogast, commanding officer.

Their advancement was based on successfully passing a written examination and completing a series of practical factors in their rating. In addition, each man has served his annual two weeks of active duty for training.

Conway is an employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. Estep is employed by the Board of Education of Mineral County.

NEW YORK (AP)—After eight straight advancing sessions, the stock market so far this week appears to be consolidating its position.

Except for electronics and aircraft issues, the market seems to have lost most of the steam pumped into it by apprehension over what failure of the summit meeting would bring.

However, 'Vall Street experts weren't worried by the interruption of the rally. They feel it will start up again before long.

"It seems to us that a period of consolidation should be witnessed here in order for the list to build a base for resumption of recovery efforts," said Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel 1 Co.

"We believe this will take place and prices will again show a better tone."

There is a possibility that the market has seen its low point, according to Eldon A. Grimm of Walston & Co.

Local Woman Injured In Accident Files Suit

Suit for $15,000 damages was docketed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by a local woman who claims she was injured while a passenger in a car last October 17 on U. S. Route 40 at Flintstone.

Edith Mullaney, Jane Frazier Village, through her attorney, Harold E. Naughton, filed the action against Arthur L. Siebert, city.

The declaration states that the woman was riding in Siebert's car when it ran off the roadway. She charged the vehicle was operated in a careless and reckless manner.

It was stated in the declaration that the plaintiff suffered a fractured arm and ribs and other injuries and was hospitalized for a week. She also states she incurred medical and hospital expenses.

11 Reservists Are Advanced In Navy Rank

Eleven members of Naval Reserve Surface Division 5-9 have successfully completed examinations and have been promoted in rate, according to Cdr. Gerard P. Calhoun, commanding officer.

Six of the advancements were petty officers. They are L. Edward Alderman, seaman to signalman third class; Robert H. Hill, seaman to boatswain's mate third class; William G. McCall, yeoman third class to yeoman second class; W. L. Smelser, machinist's mate second class to machinist's mate first class, and John S. Turner, yeoman third class to yeoman second class.

Non-rated men advanced were W. L. Mower, seaman recruit to seaman apprentice; J. G. Miller, W. J. Staarman, J. B. Wagner, and J. W. Coburn, all fireman apprentice to fireman.

Advancement in rate is one of the factors considered, Cdr. Calhoun said, in national competition for the Forrestal Trophy which is annually awarded the best large surface division in the nation. The local unit won the award in 1957.

Members of the Cumberland Division will undergo their annual inspection tonight. Capt. Ralph H. Moureou, USN, from Headquarters of the Fifth Naval District, will be inspecting officer.

Cdr. Calhoun stated that the unit will muster at 7 p. m. instead of 7:15 because of the inspection.

Union Men Planning To Attend Meet

Five delegates and the president of Local 1874, TWUA, will leave Friday for Chicago where they will attend the national convention of the Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The convention will open May 30 and continue through June 3.

John G. Thomas, president of Local 1874, has received notice from William Pollock, general president of the TWUA, that he has been selected as a member of the resolutions committee, which will meet Saturday at 1 p. m.

Thomas said the Synthetic Yarn Division of the TWUA, which represents locals in many plants, will convene Sunday at 10:30 a. m. to discuss the convention agenda and matters affecting this phase of the TWUA.

Elected delegates to attend the convention are Charles F. Davis, secretary-treasurer; Roy T. Craze, James S. McGann, trustee; Floyd S. Grady, executive board member, and Francis B. Harvey, warden.

Speakers at the convention will include Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Senators Paul Douglas (Illinois), Hubert Humphrey (Minnesota) and John O. Pastore (Rhode Island), Arthur Goldberg, general counsel of the AFL-CIO; John Greenhalph, secretary of the International Federation of Textile Workers; and David Lewis, chairman of the Canadian Congress of Confederations.

Loans To Pay For Education Show Increase

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 33 per cent increase since 1955 in the cost of a college education has forced many parents to turn to pay-as-you-learn plans to send their children to college.

There are any number of banks and other organizations — even colleges themselves — that offer installment financing for a four-year education.

There also are any number of repayment plans, ranging from periods over two years to 10 years, most of them including insurance on the parent-borrower to permit full repayment of the loan in event of his death. Interest rates vary.

At present, the cost of a four-year education ranges from $8,000 to $12,000 for a resident student and, according to Robert J. Keir, executive vice president of The Tuition Plan, Inc., the costs will continue to rise.

Some educators predict that by 1970 today's figures may be doubled, he said.

Keir's group, a subsidiary of C.I.T. Financial Corp., was founded in 1938 with 28 borrowers. In the last five years alone, he said, The Tuition Plan has financed education costs for more than 100,000 students.

PTA To Honor Faculty June 6

Plans for a faculty dinner were discussed at the last meeting of the Centre Street Parent-Teacher Association and it was announced that the deadline for reservations is Monday, June 6.

The dinner will be held June 8 and those seeking reservations should contact Mrs. Fran Miller, association treasurer.

Officers who were elected and installed at the meeting are Mrs. Ruth Olgebay, president; Mrs. Richard Shober, vice president; Mrs. Lois Geatz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Miller, treasurer.

Installation was conducted by Thomas Wagner, principal, who was presented a life membership to the association.

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, addressed the group and conducted a question-answer period on the Warfield Commission report, dealing with the conversion of State Teachers colleges to University of Maryland branches.

Flutophone selections were presented by pupils in Mrs. Elizabeth Lakin's classroom.

Memorial Service Planned

Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, has completed plans for its annual memorial service, which will be held on Monday afternoon in front of the honor roll at the post home.

Commander William Andrews said the service will get under way at 3 p.m. The "post everlasting" ceremony will be in charge of Commander Andrews, Charles Dodrill, adjutant, Lee Van Meter, sergeant-at-arms, and Robert Mullin, chaplain.

The color guard will present the colors and Taps will be played by a member of the Legion post. After the ceremony all past commanders will be presented with badges and year bars.

The public is invited, especially the families of those whose names are included on the honor roll. All names of post members who have died are on the roll.

New Road Maps Available At SRC Office

The colorful map features a number of pictures of Western Maryland points of historical and scenic interest to tourists, as well as general information on towns and cities.

One of the pictures is a view of The Narrows, the historic "Gateway to the West," and one of the major places of interest in this region. Also shown is one of the state's picnic sites on Sideling Hill from where the tourist can get a scenic view of a vast area.

The vacation-land opportunities of Garrett county is portrayed by art work that features the winter sports of skiing and hunting, and the summer playground of Deep Creek Lake.

Each county is pictured with what it is famous for, or points of interest that might appeal to the tourist. The rich historical background of the state is evidenced by drawings of Fort Frederick, built during the French and Indian wars; Antietam, site of the bloodiest battle of the Civil War, and the first monument erected to George Washington.

The map also carries bright pictures of the Great Seal, state flag, bird and flower, as well as the seafood, hunting and farm products for which Maryland is famous.

SRC spokesmen point out that for the first time, the official road guides include a pictorial map of the state, depicting points of interest from Oakland, in westernmost Garrett county, to Crisfield, in the state's most southern county.

William Jabine, 2nd, public relations director for the SRC, has pointed out that the 300,000 maps are larger and easier to read than earlier models.

The mapping project, under the supervision of George Cassell, of the SRC traffic bureau, cost $29,900, Jabine said.

Last year, for a press run of 200,000, the maps cost $17,800 he said.

The increased cost for 1960 reflects both greater distribution and a complete set of new plates used in the printing process, the official explained.

The unit or "per map" price rose from 8.9 cents to 9.9 cents, Jabine said.

Other innovations this year include the absence of "green counties." Counties shown in this color last year now turn up beige for better visibility, Jabine reported.

Designations of state parks also have been changed from solid green to light green swirls which apparently represent tree tops.

"The forests look more like forests now," Jabine said, "more tree-like."

The completely redesigned map, 318 square inches larger than the 1959 edition, also features a new cover and a shorter message from Governor Tawes—36 fewer words.

The Governor, in a message from Government House, said: "Maryland road builders have incorporated every modern concept of safety in newer highways.

"Won't you help by showing an equal interest and drive with care, observing all the rules of the road which were established for your safety?"

Bright and legible, the map was described by Jabine as "very good and cheap advertising for the State." The SRC traffic division responsible for the project is headed by George N. Lewis, Jr.

Deadline May 31 To Get County Trader's Licenses

Clerk of Court Joseph E. Boden has reported that quite a few persons have failed to obtain their trader's licenses.

The deadline for obtaining the permits without payment of a 10 per cent penalty is May 31, Boden said. The Court House will be open today, Friday and Tuesday.

Cost of the licenses is based on the amount of merchandise and ranges from $15 to $501. Billiard tables require a $11 each, bowling alleys require $11 per alley, junk dealers, $11 for residents and $101 for non-residents.

Moving picture theaters are licensed on the basis of seating capacity with $51 for 300 seats up to $301 for 1,000 seating capacity. Drive-in theaters pay $101 for not more than 101 autos, $201 for less than 200, $251 for less than 300 cars and $301 for more than 300 autos.

Garages, laundries, and all types of business are licensed.

A Bit Too Much Togetherness?

Vote-conscious politicians with benefit plans for Americans over 65 are not alone in their efforts to harness the increasing numbers of the nation's "senior citizens." They have their counterparts in the merchandising world.

Currently being organized in New York City is a consumer group to be called "Over 65 Inc." The plan is that it will begin operating in the fall.

Designed to exploit the collective buying power of older citizens, who number an estimated 15.4 million now and who are expected to increase to 20 million in a decade, Over 65 Inc. would attract and hold its membership with discounts on all kinds of merchandise needed by over-65 consumers.

Merchants will have to pay a $25 fee to have the attention of the elderly buyers of their area directed to their stores and shops. Each retailer will set the discount his store will offer, but must agree to maintain the percentage at least a year. Merchants reportedly are enthusiastic about the program.

Membership in Over 65 Inc. will cost the qualified person nothing. All he will need is proof of his age and his name will be entered in the organization's directory for circulation among cooperating merchants.

There is something to be said for any program which permits persons on limited incomes to get more for their money. But aren't people over 65 in danger of becoming over-organized as opportunists seek more and more ways to turn their increasing numbers to advantage? Many Americans are the type to become annoyed by repeated efforts to force them into togetherness.

U.S. Military Men Want To Keep Sending U-2 Flights Over Russia

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter on the Paris Summit conference to his daughter, Mrs. Dwight Whitney, in Los Angeles)

Washington, D. C.
May 24, 1960

My Dear Daughter:

I said that I would try to report to you further regarding some of the tragedies of the summit conference. Perhaps you saw that when President Eisenhower stopped in Portugal he gave a hint that he made some mistakes, and I have been hoping he would follow this up by telling about the mistakes. Because only by admitting our mistakes can we pick up the broken fragments of the start we had made toward better understanding and get back on the track toward peace.

The situation today may be similar to that when Russia launched its first sputnik and we realized that we had suffered a very real scientific defeat. At that time Eisenhower wanted to admit frankly and publicly that we had made made serious mistakes, but his White House advisers argued to the contrary. They said this would be disastrous politically, would hurt the party at the next election. So Ike yielded and they covered things up.

I'm afraid the same thing is happening today.

The truth is that there was a lot of fault on our side, and some of the things Khrushchev said were all too accurate, even though he was very disagreeable and ill-tempered about it. One of them was the charge that Eisenhower was under the influence of our military. This was partly right.

Amazing Photos

For instance, our military people were determined to send the U-2 observation flights over Russia regardless of the summit conference. And even today after the U-2 disrupted the conference they would like to have them continued. These planes had penetrated deep inside Russia approximately 100 times during the past four years photographing virtually everything on the ground with fantastic clarity. The photographs pin-pointed all of Russia's missile sites, airfields, atomic installations, and even provided close-ups of the big rocket engines that put Russian missiles into space.

These U-2 flights were able to fly so high—about 80,000 feet—that no Russian planes could reach them. In fact, one of them was sighted by the Russians in April and all sorts of efforts were made to knock it ou of the sky. And although the Russians couldn't reach it, they did know about these flights and were on the alert for the next one in May.

After this one was shot down we at first lied about it. Then we told the truth. Then we lied two more times. Everybody knows about the first lie, but not the other two. It's bad enough to lie when you're a private individual; but when a nation gets caught lying it harms its prestige and place of honor in the world.

We are all proud of the fact that our honor has been very high all around the world far many years. But at Paris I confess that there were times when Americans felt humiliated and ashamed.

Two More Lies

The second lie came when it was announced in Paris that President Eisenhower had ordered no more U-2 flights over Russia and that this order had been given on May 12.

Actually the diplomats knew and the Russians knew that this order had not been given until Sunday, May 15. It was given only after Prime Minister Macmillan of England and President de Gaulle of France had pleaded with Eisenhower on Sunday morning to stop the flights in order to persuade Mr. Khrushchev to come back to the conference table.

Other people knew it besides the diplomats because Secretary Herter in a press conference had strongly indicated that the flights would continue; and because Vice President Nixon in a televised program given in New York and Washington over the weekend said the spy flights were continuing. On Monday, May 16, when Nixon got the word from Paris he quickly reversed himself. In Syracuse, N. Y., he said just the opposite.

On top of this came our final lie. In announcing the end of these spy flights, it was stated in Paris that President Eisenhower had given the grounding order of May 12 to Secretary of Defense Gates and Gen. Nathan Twining of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This was a military order.

Yet earlier the President had been careful to announce that these flights were purely civilian.

"We do not use the Army, Navy, or Air Force for this purpose," the President had announced on May 11, "first to avoid any possibility of the use of force in connection with these activities; and second because our military forces cannot be given altitude under broad directions but must be kept under strict control."

So the announcement in Paris tha' a military order had been given to stop these flights, showed that we had been lying again.

That's why many Americans in Paris felt humiliated that their country's affairs were so badly handled. That's also why a good frank confession of error as practiced by the Catholic Church might help us to recover some of our lost prestige in the eyes of the world.

And you can tell your small boys what happens to people and to nations when they don't tell the truth.

Much love from
Your father.

Partisanship Over U-2 Will Hurt Democrats

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Many of the Democrats in Congress, as well as the Democratic Advisory Council, are trying to make a campaign issue out of the charge that President Eisenhower gave Soviet Premier Khrushchev the "opportunity" to blow up the "summit" conference. But the issue may boomerang against them.

For, as the "New York Times" pointed out in its editorial on Monday, Mr. Khrushchev at Paris "used the U-2 incident as a pretext" and admitted in his Berlin speech a few days later that "his primary reason was the firm Western stand on Germany and Berlin indicated in what he termed the 'sharply and arrogantly provocative' speeches of Secretary Herter, Under Secretary Dillon and Vice President Nixon."

On the same page appeared also a Paris dispatch from C. L. Sulzberger," the eminent commentator on world affairs, who writes that "Moscow has never objected to unmanned reconnaissance by our Tiros-1 photographic satellite" and that, as General de Gaulle tried to argue with the Soviet Premier, "the new Soviet 'space ship' was crossing France 18 times a day" even while Khrushchev was clamoring in Paris about the U-2 affair. Mr. Sulzberger reveals also that Russia has known for four years about the U-2 flights and that the Soviets "knew at least since June, 1959, that in West Germany we had put together, from U-2 pictures, a topographic map of Russia."

The implication of the Democratic Advisory Council's statement that, if the plane episode hadn't occurred, all would have been sweetness and light at the Paris "summit" conference is hard to believe.

Even more baffling is the reasoning of Adlai Stevenson, who, in his Chicago political speech the other day, said that "when Mr. Khrushchev gave the President an out by suggesting that he was not responsible for ordering the flight, the President proudly asserted that he was responsible."

But the record of what the President actually said does not bear out any charge that Mr. Eisenhower said he was responsible for ordering this particular flight. What the President did say was that he was responsible for the general policy to "gather, in every feasible way, the information required to protect the United States and the free world against surprise attacks." This included the U-2 reconnaissance flights, authorized four years ago.

Little attention, moreover, has been paid to the text of the message sent by the President in the last few days to the heads of governments in various Allied countries. Referring to the plane incident, he wrote:

"I need not assure you that this activity was not intentionally provocative and certainly not aggressive. It constituted one phase of an intelligence system made necessary for defense against surprise attacks on the part of a nation which boasts of its capability 'to bury' us all, and one which stubbornly maintains the most rigid secrecy in all its activities.

"At the least, this incident, while regrettable in the extreme, could not by any stretch of the imagination be of such magnitude as to justify the polemics and the abuse which Mr. Khrushchev saw fit to heap upon the United States. By so distorting and exaggerating this incident, he of course put an end, for the time being, to any hopes of progress."

But notwithstanding the published words of the President of the United States in his message to our Allies, the Democratic Advisory Council said three days later that "the integrity of the word of the United States has been put into doubt," and that "the shortcomings" of the administration "tend to weaken the confidence of our Allies not only in our strength but also in the wisdom and competence of our government."

The Democratic Advisory Council statement has been endorsed by Adlai Stevenson, former President Truman, and Senators Symington and Kennedy. But House Speaker Sam Rayburn and the Democratic majority leader of the Senate, Lyndon Johnson, have risen above partisanship to stand by the President. They concur in the idea of a formal inquiry to get all the facts, but they are not blaming their own government at a critical time in the conduct of our foreign relations.

A full discussion will, of course, inform the American people on matters they may not have noted deeply before. Thus, when Adlai Stevenson says Khrushchev gave Mr. Eisenhower an "out" by affording him a chance to say the flight of Francis Powers was "unauthorized," what would the same Democrats have said about Mr. Eisenhower when a Congressional inquiry subsequently revealed that he had actually given a general authorization for such flights four years earlier? Wouldn't the Democrats have had some basis then for crying out that the President had not told the truth and that "the integrity of the word of the United States has been put into doubt"?

But Mr. Eisenhower preferred to tell the truth to the whole world. For this he is being pilloried, and, instead of rallying behind their government, many of the Democrats, including the Advisory Council, are encouraging Mr. Khrushchev to believe that the United States is divided and that the President, to whom the conduct of foreign relations is specifically delegated by the Constitution, does not speak today for the government of the United States. This is hardly the way to win elections. It could turn out that the abortive attempts to play politics with the "summit" conference fiasco, and to blame Mr. Eisenhower for something Mr. Khrushchev did, will put the Democrats on the defensive when they get on the stump. Patriotic feeling in America runs deeper than political partisanship.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Stevenson Foible

James A. Farley, former Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet, has come through many political ordeals with the reputation of being an unusual politician who is unable to compromise with his moral principles. Although he is responsible for the original campaign to make Franklin D. Roosevelt President, he broke with him over the question of a Third Term, a breach not to Farley's advantage politically but, as it could be said of this man, he saved his soul. Since then, Farley has gone into private business, but his influence in Democratic politics has been continuous.

Adlai Stevenson, the pragmatist, was flipped out of this 1960 campaign by Farley who, when the need arose, came out of his silence and slapped down the impatient, pushing, hopeful candidate for the Presidency. Farley put country above party, as he naturally would be impelled to by his sense of citizen responsibility. He said: ". . . it occurs to me that Mr. Stevenson is attempting to use the incident (the Summit Conference) to 'sledgehammer and crowbar' another disastrous nomination for himself as the Apostle of Appeasement out of the Democratic Party."

What Adlai Stevenson seems to have forgotten is that in 1952 and 1956, he was nominated for defeat. This often occurs in politics when it is realized that a party cannot win, as the Democrats could not win against Eisenhower in those years. Stevenson, who had been an obscure figure, even as Governor of Illinois, immediately became a national personality and gained a personal following among the liberal intellectuals who preferred his literate language despite the fogginess of ideas and the impracticality of his proposals.

In 1960, the Democrats feel that they have a chance to win, no matter whichever of their candidates the Convention nominates, except Stevenson. They therefore do not want to nominate Adlai Stevenson who has been defeated twice and who never developed any excited enthusiasm within his party, although he has done well among the Park Avenue Liberals—a special breed of rich persons, mainly female, who are inclined to go to any extremes to propitiate their consciences for being so rich, mostly by inheritance or alimony.

Such persons are rarely partisans. At this moment, for instance, they are for Adlai Stevenson and Nelson Rockefeller for President. This acrobatic stand is not new for their kind: they were for Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie simultaneously. Generally, they are opposed to John Kennedy because, they say, they know him and adore his wife, a non sequitur but typical of Park Avenue logic. They are opposed to Nixon because, as they say, "I never liked him." They have never heard of Lyndon Johnson and as for Stuart Symington—well, he is supported by Harry Truman whom they also do not like.

When they tell me about the glories of Adlai Stevenson, I become mean and ask each to write a 500-word composition on his perfection. They do much better with Nelson Rockefeller. Of him, they say: "I adore him." "He is divine." Apparently that is an answer to all questions! They also adore Clark Gable, Gloria Vanderbilt, Frank Sinatra, the late Aly Khan, Elsa Maxwell, and the Duke of Windsor. All are divine. Some day, they will come around to adoring Mr. Armstrong-Jones. He also is divine.

I describe Adlai Stevenson's principal support because actually there are no votes in it. To win against a fighting Nixon, the Democrats will need a strong candidate who can hold the Solid South and can win the Eastern and Western states. Both John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson might be able to do this. Possibly Stuart Symington might be able to do that. It is very doubtful if Adlai Stevenson can.

This country respects Dwight D. Eisenhower. Nobody will say that he has been the greatest President since George Washington. On the other hand, he has won respect as a courageous, patriotic gentleman who believes in his country, who seeks for its survival, and whose conduct in office has restored great dignity to it. He sought a non-partisan Presidency; he will leave it as an American rather than as a Republican.

To attack Eisenhower for gain is reprehensible. Political gain is as reprehensible as money gain at such a moment. A really great man does not risk his country for an advantage.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MIXED REACTION — Washington is rightly proud of the growth in popularity of the nation's capital as a springtime tourist Mecca. However, some of the more responsible merchantmen and hotel operators are becoming worried about reactions they are receiving to a type of short-changing that is going on regarding inferior accommodations and meals.

Many tourists, including large numbers of the 500,000 school children who visit the capital each spring, are returning home with tales of misplaced reservations which end with their having to sleep in poor accommodations at excessively high cost, and with the serving of poorly prepared food by over-taxed restaurants.

The Washington Board of Trade has records of crowding students four to a room that normally holds two at most, and charging each occupant full rate.

In one instance, an entire group of more than 60 youngsters arrived in town to find their hotel reservations were non-existent. They were finally put up by the Pullman company at Union Station after hours of fruitless effort to shoehorn them into other hotels.

Nearly half of another group were stricken ill after eating at a high-priced restaurant and were taken to a hospital where their ailment was diagnosed as gastroenteritis, a form of food poisoning.

These were admittedly extreme occurrences, but there are countless similar tales of unkept promises and overcharging. Merchants, hotelmen and cab drivers are being urged not to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

On Folk-Dancing

By Joseph Alsop

PARIS

America's friends in France, and throughout the whole Western alliance, have received the news of the impending Congressional investigation of the U-2 case with a groan of resigned horror.

The horror has been tempered, to be sure, by the report that the investigation is to be conducted by Sen. Fulbright. The chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee has a well established reputation for moderation and good sense. He will, it is hoped, avoid the worst excesses of Congressional inquiries into controversial matters in election years. But the question is still being asked, with a kind of damp discouragement:

In happier days, this would not have mattered as much as it matters now. In the past, none of the Western allies doubted the superiority of American power.

In the past, too, there were far fewer doubts about the good judgment of America's leaders. In that period no great harm was done, as a leading French diplomat put it to this reporter, "par les danes folkloriques de votre politique interieure"—by the folk dances of your domestic politics"!

In other words, while there was still general confidence in America's basic wisdom, we could afford to make fools of ourselves from time to time in our own peculiar way. But it cannot be too much emphasized that the remaining Western reserve of confidence in America—at least in Eisenhower's America—has now dropped well past the danger point. Anything which will cause a further drain on the reserve of confidence is genuinely dangerous, both to the world position of the United States and to the unity of the West.

Even after making full allowance for the prudence of Sen. Fulbright, it is hard to see how any investigation of the U-2 case can fail to cause such a drain on the reserve of confidence. The known facts themselves prove, only too clearly, that further inquiry can do no good and may do much harm. These facts fall into two parts.

In part one, there are the facts concerning the U-2 over flights. The overflights were started more than four years ago. No sensible American can fail to admire the courage and good sense of his fellow citizens, as yet unnamed, who originated this project.

For four years and more, these flights continued without incident. Probably from the beginning, and quite certainly for at least two years, the masters of the Kremlin have known that American planes were overflying the Soviet Union at altitudes above the reach of the Soviet air defense system. Their radars told them the news, and so did their spies. At his monstrous Paris press conference, Nikita S. Khrushchev himself quite openly admitted that he knew about the American overflights when he met President Eisenhower at Camp David.

In all this time, the Soviets made no protest against the overflights because they could not do so without an appalling admission of weakness. They could not say, after all:

"We know you're overflying our territory, and we can't stop you. But you must stop anyway!"

After such a long record of success without hazard, the safety of the overflights was obviously taken for granted. This was perhaps an error of judgment on the eve of the summit. But it was not an unnatural error, on the order of not turning of the electricity to prevent short circuits when unusually inflammable materials are temporarily in a house.

The Soviets captured the U-2, in any case, because some sort of quite unforeseeable mechanical failure caused the plane to lose about half its normal operating altitude, and thus to come within reach of the Soviet air defense system. Clearly, any needless airing of names and facts in this first, purely operational part of the U-2 story will be both fruitless and flatly contrary to sound precedent in matters having to do with that unpleasant necessity, espionage.

As for part two of the U-2 story, this is the part which contains the explanation of the American government's reaction to the Soviet announcement that the U-2 and its pilot had been captured. The disclosure of the U-2 projects, the public proof of the overflights, did the U. S. little harm and considerable compensating good abroad. But very great harm was done by the way the American government reacted to this disclosure, with a series of ill-digested and contradictory statements.

It may be historically interesting to find out who prepared what draft of which statement. But public breast-beating about the sudden maladroitness of our own diplomacy at a moment of acute international importance will certainly serve no practical purpose. It will also greatly increase the harm already done.

Just as the executive branch needs to learn that it does not always have to make a statement, the Congress should remember that it does not always have to make an investigation. Such, at any rate, is the prayer of our friends abroad.

Ginger Jake And The Moroccan Paralysis

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The outbreak of poisoning in Morocco that paralyzed 10,000 inhabitants had its counterpart in this country nearly 30 years ago. It was caused by the same type of poison (tricresylphosphate) but in a different disguise. We refer to the epidemic of jake paralysis that affected more than 10,000 Americans during prohibition.

The Moroccan poisonings were traced to a group of unscrupulous merchants who obtained unwanted stocks of aviation oil and sold it to the people as cooking fat. This special type of oil was made specifically to lubricate airplane motors subjected to great heat and contained orthocresylphosphate. It was put up for sale as the air corps no longer needed it.

The consumers developed varying degrees of paralysis of the legs and hands but there were no fatalities. Improvement was slow and there still is some doubt that all the victims will recover completely.

The American counterpart came in a bootleg Jamaica ginger drink containing 83 per cent alcohol. One shot made you feel good and two produced the cheapest drunk of the era. The trouble with a jake jag was that paralysis set in two weeks later. The Jamaican extract was more than water, alcohol, pepper, and coloring material. It contained tricresylphosphate, called ginger jake.

More than 10,000 cases of poisoning were reported. The sheath of the nerve was injured and many American users suffered wasting of the extremities and became disabled. In mild cases, 15 months elapsed before pain subsided and strength returned; severe paralysis lasted 2 to 2 years.

Many of the African victims are children, which makes their plight more pitiable. On the other hand, the Moroccans fared better because modern physicians have much more to offer than did those of three decades ago.

TOMORROW: Don't fall for food fads.

PROLONGED NURSING

Mrs. C. M. writes: I have a friend who still nurses her 2 year old child four times a day. She says her mother breastfed her until she was 3 and did the same with five other children. Do you think this is harmful?

REPLY

Babies usually are weaned in this country when they are 6 to 18 months old. It should be done gradually, preferably when the youngster is ready for it. Prolonging the process is neither harmful nor advantageous but the sooner the child learns to eat solid foods, the better and more diversified his diet.

NERVE PRESSURE

L. J. writes: Can neuritis of the hands result from arthritis of the back of the neck?

REPLY

Yes, provided the arthritic process irritates or presses on the nerves extending from the neck to the hands.

SLIGHT WEIGHT LOSS

J. F. Q. writes: Should some pathology be suspected if a healthy man in his thirties loses 10 pounds in three years?

REPLY

No. A reduction of 3⅓ pounds annually for three years is nothing to write home about.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Persons replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

A voluptuous blonde slithered into a public library, conveying the startling information that she had decided to improve her mind. "My boy friend wants I should read books, so I'll read books."

"What would you like to start with?" asked the librarian, suppressing a smile. "Something light or something comparatively heavy?"

"Who cares?" shrugged the blonde, "I've got my car outside."

When conductor Leonard Bernstein took the Philharmonic Orchestra on tour last year, he found this note under his hotel door one night: "I think you should know that the fellow in your band who plays the instrument that pulls in and out only bothered playing during the odd moments you were looking straight at him."

Los Angeles Sweeps Three-Game Series With Pirates

Don Drysdale Stops Buccos On Five Hits

Three Home Runs Deal Jim Umbricht His Second Loss

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Don Drysdale, backed by three home runs, set down the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 on five hits to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a clean sweep of a three-game series.

Rocky Nelson, who came into the lineup to replace slumping first baseman Dick Stuart, denied Drysdale a shutout when he led off in the ninth with his first home run of the season.

The Dodgers nailed down the victory with a run in the eighth inning when Charley Neal singled off Paul Giel, stole second and scored on Demeter's double.

In going down to their third straight defeat, the Pirates fanned seven times before Drysdale's assortment of fast balls and curves.

Roberto Clemente, the league's leading hitter, attempted to sustain a ninth-inning threat when he singled following Nelson's homer but Smoky Burgess flied out, Billl Virdon struck out and Mazeroski grounded out.

Optimists Hand ODC Third Loss

Howard Reynolds Victor In 12-0 Win

The Cumberland Optimists, behind the three-hit pitching of freshman righthander Howard Reynolds, blanked the Outdoor Club, 12-0, yesterday on the Mason Road diamond to score their third consecutive Hot Stove Baseball League victory. Reynolds fanned nine in going the route for his second win.

The win enabled the Optimists to tie for first place in the circuit with the unbeaten Lions who also have won three straight. The loss was the third in a row for the ODC who have yet to win a game.

Reynolds helped his own cause by banging out a single and a two-run homer which capped a five-run rally for the Optimists in the fifth inning. Ed Martin also smacked a circuit clout with two aboard in the fifth. Dump Wallace had a triple and single and Bill Rawnley banged out a two-bagger and a single for the winners.

Only batter for the ODC to give Reynolds trouble was Merkle who had a triple and a single. The losing pitcher was Denny Smith.

Kirkland homered off loser Robin Roberts (1-5) in the second inning after a single by McCovey and then doubled off rookie Chris Short in the eighth to score Orlando Cepeda with the Giants' fourth run.

Bosox Snap Losing Skein

Defeat Athletics In 5 To 3 Contest

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—The Boston Red Sox snapped a ten-game losing streak Wednesday, defeating the Kansas City Athletics, 5-3.

The Red Sox collected 11 hits off three Kansas City pitchers, but Boston Manager Billy Jurges had to use five pitchers to halt a late inning uprising by the Athletics.

Billy Monbouquette was coasting along on a three-hit shutout with a 3-0 lead until Kansas City began to rally. Whitey Herzog led off the seventh inning with a single, Marv Throneberry doubled, and pinch - hitter Dick Williams singled to cut Boston's lead to 3-2 and send Monbouquette to the showers.

Tom Sturdivant came on to pitch to Andy Carey and walked him on five pitches. Then Jurges called for lefthander Ted Bowsfield who forced Jerry Lumpe to ground out and end the rally.

Moore Wins TKO Over Besmanoff

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Ageless Archie Moore, so far overweight the fat hung over his trunks in rolls, fought himself into condition in the ring Wednesday night and stopped Willi Besmanoff with a technical knockout win at 1:32 of the tenth round.

But Moore, the world champion at 175 pounds, squared back in the fifth round and then got vengeance in the ninth. Early in the fifth Besmanoff slipped to both knees when he missed a punch, but shortly thereafter Moore caught him with a right hook in a flurry and sent him sprawling on the seat of his pants.

Moore entered the ring at 206½ pounds, the second heaviest weight he has ever carried into action in 208 pro fights. Compared to him in appearance Besmanoff, at 198½ pounds, was slim and taut, and 16 years younger at 27.

Francona's Hit Wins In Eleventh

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Tito Francona's 11th - inning single gave the Cleveland Indians a 1-0 victory over the Washington Senators Wednesday night and broke up a brilliant pitching duel between Jim Perry and Bill Fischer.

Perry gave up eight hits in winning his third game against two victories while Fischer allowed only seven in absorbing his first loss.

Jim Piersall led off the last of the 11th with a single and advanced to second on Ken Aspromonte's single. Piersall moved to third on Harvey Kuenn's infield out and came home on Francona's single to center.

The Senators had a chance to win in th 10th when Faye Throneberry walked and Fischer advanced him to second on a pop bunt that went over Vic Power's head at first base. Billy Gardner then singled to right field and Jose Valdivielso, who was running for Throneberry, was thrown out at the plate by Kuenn.

Dorcel Kline Gets Five Bingles For Barrelville Nine

The Centerville Reds dealt Frostburg its fourth consecutive loss in the Pen Mar Baseball League yesterday, beating the Merchants 9-3 at Centerville. The win was the third for Centerville.

Barrelville's Old Exports made it four wins in five games with a 5-2 triumph over Salisbury in a darkness-shortened game at Salisbury while Hyndman's Merchants had an easy time defeating Flintstone on the Pennsylvanians' diamond, 11-3, in other league encounters.

Mel Nee's Centerville nine belted three pitchers for 10 hits including a pair of doubles by Jim Zembower and two singles each by Dave Rose and Mervin Rose.

Homer Rose pitched six innings to gain the verdict over Jim Reed. Pete Deremer finished up for Centerville in a game called in the bottom of the eighth because of darkness.

Dave Richards poured the third strike by 16 Salisbury batsmen and allowed only six hits in an eight-inning game which was called because of darkness.

Jim Robertson started for Salisbury and was relieved in the fourth by Don Carey who absorbed the loss. Dorcel Kline banged out five consecutive hits in five trips to the plate to spark the 11-hit Barrelville assault. Galen McGregor and Don Glass each had two bingles for the winners.

Glass opened the winning rally in the seventh for Barrelville with a single and went to second on a fielder's choice. He scored on Kline's single and a two-out error plated Kline later in the inning.

Fred Harris had two of Salisbury's six hits.

Flintstone was held to four hits by Jim Leydig and Vohn Lehman with Lehman picking up the win in relief when Hyndman rallied for three runs in the sixth to snap a 3-3 tie.

MacKay Loses Quarter-Finals

Ousted By Sirola In Paris Tourney

PARIS (UPI) — Barry MacKay, America's lone hope in the men's singles of the French international tennis championships, was ousted in the quarter-finals Wednesday by Orlando Sirola of Italy, 6-3, 15-13, 6-4.

Luis Ayala of Chile qualified for the semi-finals by beating Manuel Santana of Spain, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2. He joined Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy who qualified Monday.

The semi-finals will pit Robert Haillet of France, who upset Neale Fraser of Australia on Monday, against Pietrangeli and Ayala against Sirola.

Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., is the only American remaining in the tournament, having qualified in the women's singles along with Miss Maria Esther Bueno of Brazil last Monday. They meet in the semi-finals.

Yola Ramirez of Mexico joined them Wednesday by defeating Betty Abbas of France 6-0, 6-4. Sandra Reynolds of South Africa also entered the semi-finals, downing Vera Puzejova of Czechoslovakia, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

MacKay, the United States' key Davis Cup hope, appeared tired and play far below par in losing Wednesday to the tall Sirola.

Named For Derby

LONDON (AP)—Twenty-five final acceptors were named Wednesday for the Epsom Derby, the 1½-mile classic for 3-year olds to be run next Wednesday.

The value of the race to the winner, after entrance and acceptance fees have been deducted, will be $92,663.

58 Pros Qualify For Speedway Festival Open

Verwey Has 68 As Six Break Par

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — With race cars roaring right through the center of the course, some 58 pros Wednesday qualified for the $50,000 Invitational 500 Festival Open, starting Thursday.

They joined 92 exempted pros for one of the strongest play-for-pay fields of the year, the lure being a $9,000 winner's swag, not to mention $4,600 for second, $3,000 for third and $2,600 for fourth.

While those who qualified Wednesday, including Gary Player's handsome young brother-in-law, Bob Verwey of Johannesburg, are not quite as temperamental as their exempted brethren, they underwent some real nerve-twanging.

The speedway course, a 6,605-yard, par 71 layout, was built 31 years ago to utilize the racing plant's rambling acres. It is perhaps the only golf course in the world which is cut in half by a race track.

Verwey, 19, fired 3-under-par 68 in Wednesday's qualifying round, closely followed by Ed Langert of Minneapolis, former NAIA champ while attending Lamar Tech of Beaumont, Tex. Langert had a 70.

A total of six qualifiers broke par 71. Besides Berway they included five shooters at 70; Langford; Bill Krause, San Mateo, Calif.; Don Street, Muncie, Ind.; J.C. Gossie, Knoxville, Tenn., and amateur Ronnie Atwell of Indianapolis.

Ralph Morrow Loses In Fourth Round

PORTRUSH, Northern Ireland (AP)—Graying Bob Cochran became the only American to make the last 16 in the British Amateur Golf Championship Wednesday when he shrugged off the rain and decisively defeated two men half his age.

The 47-year-old St. Louis businessman—now the oldest player in the field—stroked his way around Portrush with faultless grace in appalling weather conditions.

He scored identical 5 and 4 victories over Brian Pitchford of England and Ian Meneely of Ireland.

An off line drive at the 16th sent Ralph Morrow of Oklahoma City crashing to defeat in the fourth round, 1-up to John McErvel of Northern Ireland.

This was a heartbreaker for the 25-year-old U.S. airman first class. It came after he scored the major upset of the tournament in the morning third round by eliminating Scotland's Reid Jack, 5 and 4.

Six Americans from an original contingent of 26 began play Wednesday morning. Only two of them, Cochran and Morrow, survived to reach the fourth round in the afternoon, and now only Cochran is left.

One of the biggest surprises of the morning came when Tim Holland of Ronkville Center, N.Y., lost at the 19th hole to England's Brian Chapman. Holland had been among the favorites to take the title. He lost out when a short putt stopped on the lip of the cup.

Other Americans eliminated in the third round were:

Donald J. Dawson, Detroit, beaten 2 and 1 by Bill Pierce of England.

Major Hiram Snowden of Savannah, Ga., beaten 5 and 4 by John Duncan of Ireland.

Final '500' Workout Held

Record Pace Seen In Speedway Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Top-ranking drivers in Monday's 500-mile auto race tuned their engines Wednesday at speeds around 144 miles an hour in the final workout permitted before the Memorial Day grind.

Sensational Jim Hurtubise had to skip the session. Chief mechanic Danny Oakes tore down the car's engine after Hurtubise set a 10-mile qualifying record of 149.056 miles an hour last Sunday.

Rathmann set a record of 140.146 for the first 75 miles last year and Ward's record average for the full distance was 135.857.

Most of the cars this year are equipped with the built-in air jacks to speed up pit stops. Crews practicing Wednesday afternoon were replacing tires in less than 25 seconds.

Davis Is Safe At York, Pa.

The 22-year-old, 255-pound athlete, who was last seen in an exhibition at Lincoln, Neb., said he had been hitch-hiking here to train under Bob Hoffman, a weight-lifting expert, for the coming NCAA track meet.

Hot Stove Games

Today, B'nai B'rith plays the Jaycees at Fort Hill Field and the Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club, both with 2-0 records, do battle at Mason Road Field. "Play Ball" will be called at 5:30 p. m.

Ronnie Evans Blanks Bruce, AHS Wins 7-0

Campers Maintain County Title Hopes

Ronnie Evans pitched and batted the Allegany High Campers to a 7-0 victory over Bruce High's Bulldogs in an Allegany County Baseball League game yesterday at Campobello.

The husky righthander chalked up his third win of the campaign for Coach Chet Payne's Campers, allowing only a first-inning single in blanking the visitors. He struck out eight.

The win enabled the Campers to remain on the heels of the league-leading Fort Hill Sentinels (11-1), trailing the Fort Hillians by 1½ games with a 9-2 mark.

Bob Bishop and Evans clouted home runs to lead the Campers' 11-hit attack with Ronnie's belt coming with the sacks loaded in the fifth inning. Bishop hit a solo blast in the fourth to give Allegany a 2-0 lead.

Evans also had a single while Mike Hadra and Ted Femi also had two hits for the winners. One of Femi's blows was a double. The box:

Signs To Play

HURON, S. D. (UPI) — Paul Popovich, slugging second baseman from West Virginia University, has signed a contract to play with the Huron Jims in the semi-pro Basin League this summer, Jims officials announced Wednesday.

Dodger relief pitcher Clem Labine scored his only 10-inning big league victory by shutting out the Giants in the second National League playoff game in the Polo Grounds in 1951.

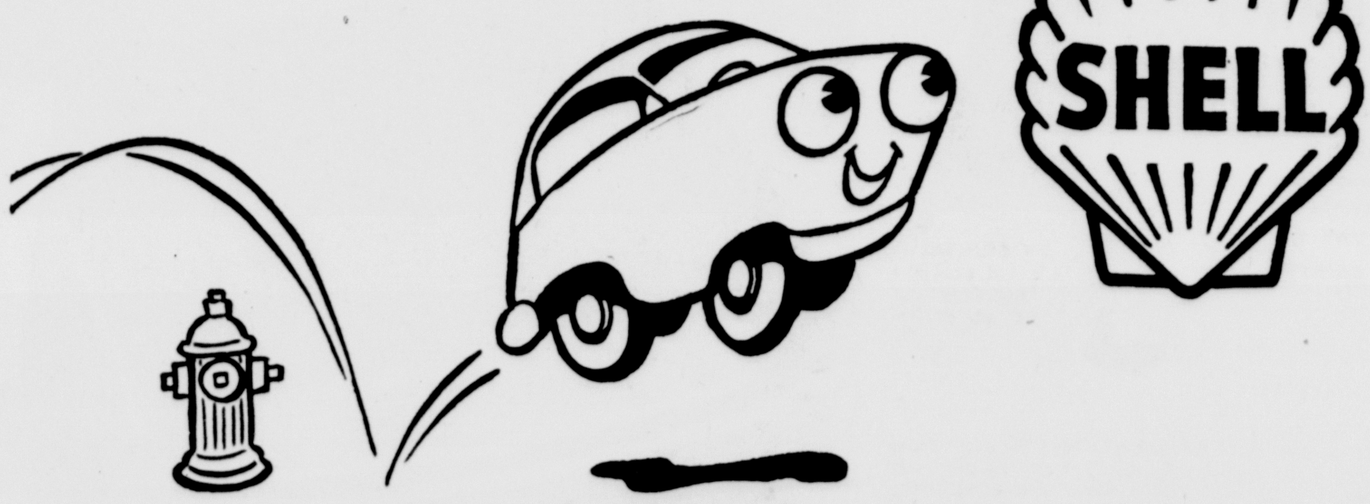
cars love SHELL



Why do so many of the liveliest cars on the road use a Shell gasoline with TCP? One clue is that Shell is America's largest supplier of commercial aviation fuels (we have been for 10 years). And many of Shell's aviation developments have been carried over into Shell gasolines. TCP* additive is just one of these developments. TCP neutralizes the combustion deposits which make engines run rough. Why not discover how smooth your car can run – how far you can go on a gallon? Your Shell dealer is the man to see.

Bruce Girls Win Class B Jr. Sports Day

Mt. Savage Second In 4-School Meet

FROSTBURG — Bruce Junior High School of Westernport won the second annual Class B Junior High Girls Sports Day here Tuesday afternoon by winning the seventh grade track meet, adding team points with third places in both eighth and ninth grade meets, and scoring first or tying for first in the seventh, eighth and ninth grade volleyball tournaments.

Over 240 girls participated in the event, the final activity for the spring physical education program.

Mt. Savage finished a strong second by winning the ninth grade track meet, finishing second in seventh grade and tying for first in ninth grade volleyball.

Senators Sign Valo

Valo, who formerly played with the old Philadelphia Athletics, the Kansas City 'A's and the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be used primarily as a pinch-hitter.

Courtney's Hit Beats Chisox

Baltimore Remains In First, 3 To 2

CHICAGO (UPI) —Clint Courtney's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run Wednesday to give the league leading Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Orioles and the fourth successive loss for the faltering White Sox.

The win went to Chuck Estrada, his third win in four decisions.

Early Wynn went all the way for the second time this season and held the Orioles to seven scattered hits and two runs until the ninth.

Lary Again Beats Yanks

Detroit Is Victor By 9 To 3 Score

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers gave Frank Lary a four-run lead in the first inning Wednesday and the American League's most consistent "Yankee killer" pitched eight hit ball for a 9-3 victory and his 22nd triumph over New York.

The Tigers loaded the bases off starter Ralph Terry in the first on two walks and Neil Chrisley's single. Red Wilson drove in two runs with a double and two more came across on Frank Bolling's single.

Terry—who entered the game with a 2.19 earned run average, the lowest on the Yankee club—was chased in the third when Bolling doubled with the bases loaded for two more tallies. It was Terry's second loss in four decisions.

Two of New York's runs came on home runs by Roger Maris, one in the second and one in the ninth, his 8th and 9th of the season. The other came on singles by Gil McDougald, Bobby Richardson and Tony Kubek in the eighth.

Not Dead But Dying

HOLLYWOOD

I sat in the audience Sunday at NBC's Burbank color studios while the cast of the Dinah Shore Show worked off their dress-rehearsal jitters, kidding with the audience and with each other. The band worked on a lovely waltz bit. The singers fidgeted. The dancers danced a step or two. Dancers have a great advantage in these matters. They can loosen their muscles, while waiting. They don't tighten up like the singers.

The moment of tense expectancy communicates to the studio audience even before a dress rehearsal. Before air, it gets worse, feeding from the actors to the andience and back again, giving them that last shot of adrenalin. It's that little bit that makes the difference between live and film or tape. That's why all—well, almost all—the most memorable things ever done on television have been live, from Sid Caesar to Kefauver to McCarthy to "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

There should be a requiem for live television. As the orchestra struck up the opening of those deathless chords, "Drive Your Chevrolet through the U. S. A.," I felt I was watching the last rites of a dying art. The Dinah Shore show is live. Steve Allen is live. Virtually nothing else is. Except for the Jack Benny and Red Skelton shows and a few daytime programs originating there, CBS's huge Television City — now that "Playhouse 90" is practically dead — is almost deserted. It used to be a hive of great live dramas like "Playhouse 90" and "Climax." Even the soap operas — save for one—come from somewhere else.

Well, live TV is not entirely dead. Down the hall at Burbank, actors were already rehearsing for the opening mystery story which will replace the Dinah Shore Show next Sunday. It'll be live.

On stage, Art Carney was in the first sketch. He was playing a studio sweeper who longs to meet Dinah Shore. Suddenly a locker door stuck. One of those things that strike terror into the hearts of directors. It needn't. "This happened on the Gleason Show, once," said Carney, grinning like an imp. The door came unstuck. The rehearsal went on.

It was Miss Shore's last show of the season and it was a good one. Carney got every bit of fun out of the sweeper bit. He's at his best when the material is human, as this was. Miss Shore skylarked with Carney that was a little over long, and sang a duet, "Hallelujah," with Mahalia Jackson that was truly a rouser. The show ended with one of those NBC finishes — Miss Shore and other members of the cast rushing out to the parking lot to drive a passel of vari-colored Chevrolets off the lot in a scene shot from a helicopter. That NBC parking lot has had more exposure than any other parking lot on television.

I took Sunday night off to see a little review called "Vintage 60," which is a big hit here. It may come to New York, following the trail blazed by The Billy Barnes Revue a season ago. I love the revue form, with its opportunities for saying salty things about our life and civilization, and I deplore the fact that — like live TV — it is almost an extinct art form. The only revue on Broadway in many years has been "La Plume de Ma Tante," a French import, and the Billy Barnes Revue, which came from California, where the salt is a little different from New York salt.

"Vintage 60" is a lot of fun. About half the twenty-six songs and sketches have enough space and variety and originality for Broadway. The other half I think needs work, or ought to be cut entirely. There are, I should say, about seven numbers that make the whole evening worthwhile. One bit was about the Frank Sinatra worship out there and another one about the strong German element among our missile experts. It's a sort of trenchant social observation that is revue at its best. Still another sketch about the indestructible nature of some of our female movie stars is a little special, but it has the same sort of comment, and very funny.

"Vintage 60" also contains two really remarkable performers, Fay deWitt and Barbara Heller, both of whom can do anything from singing to pantomime. Miss Heller does a single — "Angry Young Girl" — which is evocative and original and funny and creative, all at once. It's a great number. Miss DeWitt does many things — a wildly funny bit as a compulsive woman telephone maniac, a touching a very funny single, "Dublin Town," among others. There were many other bright and talented young people in the show, I might add, and I hope they get their show to Broadway. A little pruning might be in order, first.

Gas Hearing Will Be June 22

The Maryland Public Service Commission has informed Mayor J. Edwin Keech that a hearing will be held June 22 at 11 a. m. in Baltimore concerning the C&A Gas Company application for an increase in rates.

The hearing will be held in the PSC office, 301 West Preston Street, according to Albert L. Deen, executive secretary.

In March, the city had voiced concern over the proposed increase and accordingly wrote the SRC of its feelings.

QRC Slashes Red Tape

CHICAGO (UPI) — An item in the Defense Department's alphabet directory — — could spell the difference between victor and victim in a dramatic battle of the cold war.

An Air Force procurement official said QRC cuts red tape by providing a type of standing bid by specially qualified private firms.

When a chink in America's electronic armor threatens to leave the nation to sneak attack, QRC contractors are geared to provide quickly a new offensive weapon or counter-measure to an electronics breakthrough by a hostile power.

The QRC concept was pioneered by the Air Force and the Hallicrafters Co. of Chicago, which handles more than 85 per cent of Air Force calls under QRC.

Next to speed, a top consideration is economical development, operation and maintenance of the equipment, a Hallicrafters executive said.

Robert F. Halligan, Hallicrafters executive vice president and general manager, said the QRC contractor "must bear a share of responsibility for winning the economic cold war as well as the military cold war."

To cope with varied, highly specialized demands, the company employs more than 400 men on its engineering staff for electronic military equipment.

The military field, Halligan said, ranges from television, radar and jamming equipment to digital data transmission systems and navigational devices.

In a recent national survey, most Methodists replied that they do not consider Sunday golf-playing as sinful.

Texas has more than 45 thousand miles of state-maintained highways.

An estimated six per cent of all human accidents happen to the eyes.

County Planning Needs Near State Parks Cited

One of the many problems involved in county planning was called to the attention of the Allegany County Planning Commission this week by Joseph Wolney of Bel Air, chairman of the committee on park encroachment of the Maryland Division of the Isaak Walton League of America, Inc.

Mr. Wolney, in a three-page letter, called to the attention of the planning commission here that the Harford County Zoning Board of Appeals had granted a permit to allow the installation of three house trailers at the very edge of the new Susquehanna River State Park. These trailers will be used by weekend and vacation fishermen.

"If, because of present zoning classification, this trend be allowed to continue wherever it may occur by action of any county zoning or appeals board, then we are needlessly wasting some of the taxpayers' money in acquiring land for parks," Mr. Wolney wrote.

"No park can be fully developed to its maximum if park property lines are cluttered with trailers, shopping centers, commercial and industrial enterprises," he added.

The letter goes on to explain that Governor J. Millard Tawes on March 23 signed the Lee and Robinson House Bill 75, which becomes effective on June 1. He says this law goes a long way to help create the "open spaces" as defined. But it will not prevent a situation such as the three trailers. This is because the counties permit it by their present zoning classifications of areas adjacent to park property lines.

The only state park in Allegany County is the Dan's Mountain Recreation Area just east of Lonaconing.

County Commissioner John T. Mason, who is one of the five members of the County Planning Commission, received the Isaak Walton League letter. He will call it to the attention of the other members of the commission at tonight's meeting.

Marine Unit To Prepare For Summer Camp

Members of the local 43d Rifle Company, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, next week will begin preparation for the annual summer training session.

Captain Billy C. Menges, commanding officer of the local unit, said the company is tentatively scheduled to leave for Parris Island, S. C., on July 9 and return July 23.

Capt. Menges said the unit will begin to prepare for the annual training at its next scheduled drill on June 4 and 5.

He added the unit will fly on commercial airlines to Parris Island, rather than travel by train as was previously announced.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Sir Laurence Olivier, whose request for a divorce from Vivien Leigh put his private life in headlines everywhere, comes here in the fall to co-star with Spencer Tracy in "Judgment at Nuremberg" for Stanley Kramer. Coincidentally, Larry and Vivien were married in California, but when he returns this time he will be with the new charmer who has won his heart, Joan Plowright.

We will get a chance to see her as an actress as well as the future Lady Olivier because the play "Rhinoceros" in which they are currently appearing in London will play a local engagement.

It's after this that Olivier reports to Kramer for the war criminal trials picture, first going to Germany for eight weeks of shooting and then returning to Hollywood to complete the film. Larry's role is that of the presiding chief justice.

I don't believe there's any chance of Bob Evans returning to the garment industry in New York because both Darryl Zanuck and 20th Century-Fox have exercised their options on him. He's the only male actor Zanuck has ever signed to a personal contract, and Bob will play the role of Paul Radford in "The Chapman Report," which I regret will be made into a movie.

Bob also will have an important role in Jerry Wald's "Return to Peyton Place." Furthermore, handsome Mr. Evans is practically signed to play John Gilbert in "Laurette," Judy Holliday's Broadway show.

Just happened to meet Don Murray and his business partner Walter Wood when I was walking around the block. Don told me that they leave this week for St. Louis to confer with Father Dismas Clark, the hero of "The Hoodlum Priest" which Don will make in St. Louis.

"We have the financial backing," he said. "We'll release through United Aritsts, and we start shooting right after the Fourth of July. Father Clark is coming out here soon, and I want you to meet him. He took over a deserted school in St. Louis and made it into a home where criminals who have served their full term in prison can stay and be fed and helped to get jobs.

"Not one of these have turned back to their life of crime, although the record used to be 65 per cent of them went back to prison because no one would hire a man with a criminal record," Don said.

The snazzy flowered hat Jane Wyman wore when I saw her having dinner at Chasen's with Freddie Karger, she said had been sent to her by her daughter Maureen from New York.

"I'll be seeing Maureen soon," said Jane, "because I am going on tour with 'Pollyanna,' covering the same cities in the East that we covered when I went out on tour with you."

Janie leaves Thursday for San Francisco to attend the Kiwi Club convention, a get-together of former airline stewardesses who have married. From San Francisco Janie planes East. She will meet Mrs. Dave Chasen in New York and then after she finishes her tour she spends a few weeks with the Sonny Serblens in New Jersey. We won't be seeing Jane until June 19.

As soon as Audrey Hepburn is able to travel after the birth of her baby, she returns to Hollywood to get ready for "Breakfast at Tiffany's," her next picture. Producer Dick Shepherd tells me that he talked long distance with Audrey, and she has agreed to play Holly Golightly in "Tiffany's."

"My partner, Martin Jurow, and I will produce it in Hollywood," Dick told me. Good news to have another movie filmed here. "The plan now is to start "Breakfast at Tiffany's' in September, with Blake Edwards as director," he said. Audrey and Mel are talking about buying a house here.

Japanese legend says the art of flower arranging began in a remote time when priests gathered storm-strewn blossoms and placed them before Buddhist shrines. As the art grew in popularity, even the war-like Samurai took it up for relaxation.

Tito Gets Greetings

Suggests Seeking Plan

BOSTON (UPI)—Dr. James R. Killian Jr., former scientific adviser to President Eisenhower, said Tuesday the United States should continue to seek a disarmament plan to avert world catastrophe.

He warned, though, that America's military and economic strength were "still the basic requirement to deter war" while seeking ways to disarm.

Reds Hit De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — The French Communist Party Wednesday appeared to be waging a new offensive against President Charles de Gaulle for his support of President Eisenhower in the U-2 plane incident.

Kim Leaves Hospital

She entered the hospital May 11 for treatment of the virus ailment and has been ordered by her physician to remain in bed for an indefinite period.

Portugal is the world's leading cork producer.

Opening lead: King of ♠

Holding up with an ace at a no trump contract is an essential part of any player's dummy technique. However, there is such a thing as ducking too often. Observe today's hand where declarer got caught up in the rhythm.

West opened the king of spades, which declarer ducked. When East played the deuce, West knew it was not safe to continue the suit; so he was called upon to shift. Fortunately for his side, West was led by a hunch to choose the club suit. To some, a heart shift would have appeared more inviting, however, West led the seven of clubs and declarer again ducked. East won with the queen and returned the six of spades, and declarer had to play the jack which went to West's queen. West saw that it was time to abandon his own suit and continued with a club. This promoted a second club trick for East which, together with the two spades and the ace of hearts, sent the contract down to defeat.

In the choice of his ducking plays, South, to be sure, had been made victim of the whipsaw. It is true that, had he taken the first trick, he would have ridden to safety. But such play would have proved fatal if East had held only two spades, for the defense would then have cashed the ace of hearts and four spade tricks.

But when West shifted to the club, declarer's contract would have been secure had he employed the energy to reach across the table for the ace of clubs. Nine tricks would then become available to him by the simple expedient of driving out the ace of hearts. Five diamonds, two hearts, and two aces add up to nine, and the defense can do no better than cash the spade trick already in, the ace of hearts, and two clubs.

County Gets Water Complaints

A petition was received Tuesday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from a group of residents on Cash Valley Road concerning water drainage onto their property.

It was stated that the culvert which carries off the water from ditches along the road is too small to handle the flow in time of heavy rainfall such as the downpour last Sunday.

The matter was referred to Harry Skelly, roads supervisor.

John Humbird PTA Installs Today

The final meeting of the school year will be held today at 7:30 p. m. by the John Humbird School PTA.

Officers for the next school term will be installed. They are Mrs. Henry Pittman, president; and Francis Smith, treasurer. Outgoing officers are Mrs. Sarah Berry, president, and David Smith, treasurer.

Following a brief meeting a country style party will be held with round and square dancing to music by the Happy Hoedowners. Refreshments will be served.

McKeldin's In Nixon's Corner

McKeldin, expected to make several speeches on Nixon's behalf, Tuesday described the Vice President as a "young and intelligent man" who is "infinitely more liberal than he's getting credit for."

"He has eight years' experience in the White House and has President Eisenhower's blessing," said McKeldin, confirming that Nixon is his choice for the GOP presidential nomination.

McKeldin is expected to have a strong voice in the Maryland delegation to the Republican National Convention.

McKeldin expressed considerable admiration for Gov. Rockefeller of New York but said he is convinced Rockefeller was sincere when he declared himself out of the running.

Market Closes Irregular; Steels Under Pressure

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market was a mixed affair Wednesday—with pivotal steel, oil and motor shares under pressure and electronics, some aircrafts and scattered specials scoring widely.

Industrial stocks see-sawed narrowly all day, advancing only briefly at mid-session and then settling back to close with a modest loss.

Trading increased to 3,440,000 shares from 3,240,000 shares the day before. Of the 1,224 issues that crossed the tape, 544 declined, 44 to new lows, and 450 advanced, with 65 to new highs. It was the third consecutive session that the highs outnumbered the lows.

Steel executives attending the annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute were in agreement that an upturn in the operating rate isn't likely before the third quarter when the steel mills begin receiving auto industry orders for the 1961 model year.

Steel issues reacted with losses of around a point in U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Republic. In the autos, Ford fell more than a point, Chrysler ¾ and American Motors ⅜. General Motors tacked on a small fraction.

Airline Service May Resume

CAB Bureau Urges Five-Year 'Use-It-Or-Lose-It' Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Air Operations Wednesday took the first step toward possible resumption of airline service to Cumberland, Md.

The bureau tentatively recommended that Allegheny Airlines again be authorized to serve Cumberland for five years despite the city's inability to generate at least five passengers for each flight.

Bureau Counsel Monte Lazarus told a CAB hearing that unusual circumstances warranted resumption of the service. He said Allegheny was flying less than two flights daily into Cumberland at the time it abandoned the stop in February, 1959.

He said other circumstances would be brought out in testimony at a CAB investigation of temporary air service it authorized Allegheny to perform in eight Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware areas.

Allegheny Objects

Allegheny immediately expressed strong opposition to resuming the Cumberland service.

Allegheny is now serving only two of the eight areas for which temporary service certificates were granted in 1955 — Hazleton, Pa., and Wilmington, Del.

Lazarus recommended that the airline serve those two cities indefinitely but he opposed authorizing resumption of service to Easton-Cambridge, Md. unless unusual circumstances are disclosed during the current hearings.

Lost $26,000 In 1958

Albert W. Gotch of Rockville, Md., a consultant to Allegheny, said the airline lost $26,000 on its Cumberland operations in 1958. He said that deficit would climb to $28,000 if Allegheny were forced to serve Cumberland again.

Gotch said Cumberland supplied only about two passengers per day to the Allegheny system during the last five years the airline operated there.

He said Allegheny flights went 57 miles out of their way to serve Cumberland and in so doing substantially downgraded the quality of service to other points on that route.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall (R-Md) charged Allegheny with failing to provide adequate service when it operated in Cumberland.

"Allegheny made no effort to cater to the public during the years it operated in Cumberland," Beall declared. "Their cancellation of flights was one reason I stopped using Allegheny."

He said train service between Cumberland and Washington, although not as quick and as comfortable, was much more reliable than the airline.

Heskett Cites Overflights

Charles Z. Heskett, former city solicitor of Cumberland and former chairman of the Maryland Aviation Commission, said he finally went back to driving his car and riding the train because Allegheny failed on too many occasions to stop and pick up passengers as scheduled at Cumberland.

This occurred, he said, despite excellent flying weather.

Heskett said the real reason for overflying Cumberland was Allegheny's attempt to cut its running time and compete with Capital Airlines between Pittsburgh and Washington.

William C. Holbrook of Cumberland, chief pilot for the Kelly Springfield Tire Co., said he has never been forced to land at an alternate airport because of wind or air turbulence since he began using Cumberland airport eight years ago.

He said he has rarely observed any two-engine airplanes, except those owned by Allegheny, bypass Cumberland because of bad weather.

Lost Industry

Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, said the city recently failed to attract a new industry to locate within its boundaries because it lacked air service.

The Cumberland service, if authorized, would be on a use it or lose it basis.

Capt. Harvey M. Thompson, director of flight operations for Allegheny, said the Cumberland airport is the least desirable from a pilot's standpoint of any field Allegheny serves.

It is encircled by high mountains, Thompson said, and when winds exceed 10 knots (about 12 miles an hour) it is frequently necessary to bypass Cumberland.

SHIRLEY CAPEL

Salvation Army To Commission Local Girl

Miss Shirley Capel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Capel, RFD 5, Triple Lakes, will be commissioned a lieutenant on Memorial Day at the Salvation Army School For Officers Training at Atlanta, Ga., according to Captain Fred Orentor.

Md. Education Board To Meet In Frostburg

The Maryland State Board of Education will meet June 6 at Frostburg State Teachers College, R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college, announced last night.

During the twofold meeting at Frostburg next month, the board members will meet with public school superintendents from throughout Maryland.

Teacher education and the revival of college football at Frostburg will be discussed at the June meeting.

Football was started at the former Frostburg Normal School in 1902, but in later years was dropped as a competitive sport.

William H. "Uncle Bill' Lewis of Frostburg was center on the 1903 team which went undefeated. That year 20 young men were enrolled at the college, 15 of whom played on the football team.

The players had no helmets or padding and the only protection was nose guards they wore. Today there are 400 young men who are among more than 800 students enrolled at the college.

RC Official Speaker At Chapter Meet

United Nations Team Experiences Cited

Richard E. Tomlin, assistant director of disaster services for the 16 states comprising the Eastern area of the American National Red Cross, was guest speaker last night during the annual dinner meeting of the Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross at the Cumberland Country Club.

Mr. Tomlin was delayed in arriving here yesterday afternoon since he was at the Chilean Embassy in Washington D. C. working out details for relief measures for millions of homeless in southern Chile in the wake of earthquakes and tidal waves which left a death toll of 2,000 in that country in recent days.

During his talk last night he touched on international aspects of the Red Cross and related personal experiences in Korea, when he was a member of the United Nations Joint Red Cross team.

He spoke in connection with Red Cross activities in behalf of Americans who were and still are prisoners in Red China.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards to volunteer workers in the county chapter who have worked in various activities during the past year.

C. M. Sanner, chairman of the board of directors, presided at the meeting, at which time there was an election of members of the Board for a three-year term.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the chapter's memorial committee, gave a report on the Jane Legge Memorial. A brief memorial service honored three persons active in Red Cross work who died in the past year.

They are Mrs. Legge, executive secretary for three years; Mrs. J. C. Cobey, former Frostburg branch chairman, and Mrs. Arthur Hoffa, branch chairman at Barton.

Invocation was by Rev. Levi Zeigler, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in Westernport, who also gave benediction. Ralph Webster gave the secretary's report and Robert Little Elbert the treasurer's report. He also gave the report of the nominating committee.

Mrs. Robert Gerson, chairman of volunteers, presented service awards and Karl Perry paid tribute to first aid activities, a phase of the Red Cross work for the past half century.

Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive chairman of the county chapter, said the program committee included Mrs. William Ryan, chairman, Mrs. C. A. List, Mrs. Kathleen Todd and Rev. Mr. Zeigler.

Two Towns Grow, Four Smaller

Two Allegany County incorporated towns have grown in population since 1950, while four others have declined, according to preliminary figures from the 1960 Decennial Census.

Westernport increased from 3,431 in 1950 to 3,561 this year, and Barton is up from 695 to 823.

Frostburg dropped from 6,876 to 6,710, Midland from 889 to 732, Lonaconing from 2,289 to 2,052, and Luke from 820 to 585.

George R. Hughes, district census supervisor, announced the new figures yesterday, emphasizing that they are preliminary only.

"Final figures will not be available for some months," he said.

"In the meantime, a detailed and thorough verification process will be undertaken by the Bureau of the Census. While no major change is anticipated, verification will result in some adjustment," he pointed out.

Census figures for Cumberland, announced only last week, show a 10-year decline from 37,679 in 1950 to 33,260 this year.

House Is Damaged By Smoke

Two local fire companies were called out last night when a basement fire caused considerable smoke damage to a two-story frame dwelling at 138 Reynolds Street.

The firemen are investigating the cause of the fire, which originated near the furnace.

Firemen from East Side station got an initial call at 6:41 p. m. and four minutes later they called Central station for assistance.

The smoke was so dense in the house that the firemen had to don masks to enter the dwelling. The East Side pumper pulled up alongside the house and used water from the truck.

Central laid about 500 feet of hose from a hydrant on Reynolds Street but did not charge the line. The home was locked up at the time and no one was home.

Firemen entered the building through a rear window and doused the flames.

Thick smoke seeped up through the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gordon, firemen said. Firemen from Central station were out over an hour.

The ceremony will be held at 11 a. m. according to John D. Bushby, District Six engineer for the SRC, who said the section of Thruway will be open for the busy traffic this weekend.

The governor was scheduled to be operated on this week but it was postponed due to a cold.

State To Train Teachers For High Schools

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Board of Education Wednesday approved a curriculum plan for state teachers colleges which will qualify graduates to teach in high schools.

Previously, the colleges have concentrated on elementary school teacher preparation. They left to the universities and liberal arts colleges the task of training teachers for the upper grades.

The board, with President Jerome Framptom Jr. presiding, took the action at its regular meeting in the State Office Building.

"Actually, teachers colleges have been preparing many students for senior high school teaching but it hasn't been official," said Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College.

Rivals Warfield Report

The board's move obviously takes wind out of the sails of the Warfield Commission, which suggested a few weeks ago that the University of Maryland take over three teachers colleges and emphasize more liberal arts programs. The commission also suggested three other liberal arts colleges should be established in an ambitious expansion program designed to meet heavy future enrollment.

Gov. Tawes, who named the commission under Edwin Warfield III of Howard County, approved the broad outline of the report, and the University Board of Regents endorsed it.

But officials of state teacher colleges firmly rejected the proposal and Framptom, as president of the Board of Trustees of the State Teachers Colleges, blasted it as unworkable and harmful to the future teacher program.

Dr. Thoms G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, also was strongly opposed to the Warfield report on that point.

Curriculum Outlined

As okayed by the board, the proposed degree requirements call for 61 semester hours in certain basic fields.

These include 14 in English, 18 in mathematics and natural science. Other required courses include art and music, physical education, health education, psychology and philosophy.

A student aiming at a teaching career would take 30 hours in professional education courses and 37 in a special field.

That would make a total of 128 semester hours needed for graduation.

C&P Rate Hike Unjustified, Says Counsel

Cites 52 Per Cent Rise Since 1945

By JOHN A. LUNDQUIST

BALTIMORE (AP) — People's counsel for the Public Service Commission tried to show Wednesday that rate hikes granted during the past 15 years don't justify a further 10 per cent increase in telephone bills.

Flat rates for a private home phone have gone up 52 per cent to $7.60 since 1945 and party line, limited-call phones are up 84 per cent to $4.60, Rudolf A. Carrico pointed out.

Carrico questioned Griffin Morrel, vice president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in cross-examination of the utility's pending rate increase request before the PSC. The hearing was the first after several weeks' suspension, and two other company representatives testified before the next session was set for Thursday.

Does He "Suffer" Or Not?

Pointing out the wide difference in percentage stepups of the rates, Carrico asked, "Doesn't it follow that the person who tries to economize by subscribing to a cheaper service has suffered the greater increase?"

"I don't think he is suffering when he can make 45 calls a month for only $4.60," replied Morrel.

People's counsel also noted that a credit rating service had given the C&P a triple-A on its bond credit, the highest awarded. He said that showed the firm, Moody's, thought very highly of the utility's earnings capacity.

But Morrel said that wasn't a proper comparison.

"You're talking about profit on the one hand and interest on debentures on the other," he told Carrico.

Where Profits Go

"A substantial portion of your profits go to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.," Carrico said.

"Yes," replied Morrel, "but 9 million dollars comes back to the state of Maryland in the form of dividends to stockholders. There are 32,000 of them here."

Carrico said the utility's total employes had dropped from 11,317 in 1957 to 10,417 in 1959, or about 8 per cent. Yet, he added, the number of phones in service in the state was up 11 per cent to 1,200,733. Why fewer employes when the total of phones went up? Carrico asked.

"If we had to increase the number of employes every time we got an increase the rates would be awful, awful high," said Morrel.

The company has based its request for a 13½ million dollar increase (more than half of which would be in taxes), on higher cost of labor and materials and need for expanding capital improvements.

Gifts To Charity

In another jibe, Carrico wanted to know if a C&P customer wasn't in effect paying the costs of any charitable organizations the company contributed to.

"The rate payer pays all the proper expenses of the company," Morrel acknowledged, adding, "That's true in any business. We make contributions for good will and that's a very proper expense."

Also testifying Wednesday on cross-examination were E. K. Patten, general staff supervisor, and W. N. Rosser, staff engineer. The testimony was largely on technical matters.

At the beginning of the hearings, Baltimore attorney Hyman Pressman withdrew as a protestant against the C&P proposal. He especially had attacked the company's policy of charging monthly rates for service and equipment which allegedly had long been paid for. His own extension phone at home was an example, Pressman had declared.

But Wednesday he said he was withdrawing his motion. He said he realized if the PSC agreed with him, it could mean a shift in rates "from people who could better afford to pay to those who could less afford to pay."

Man Paroled In Jobless Fraud

Magistrate Barnett gave Bittinger a 30-day suspended sentence and placed him on probation for two years. Bittinger also was ordered to make restitution.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald W. Mason presented the case for the state and Bittinger was represented by Edward J. Ryan, local attorney.
